Woman Found Slain On Sidewalk In Northeast

5 Bullet Wounds In Head, Hand; Police Seek Man Espied Near Scene

The body of a red-haired young woman between 30 and 35 years old with four bullet wounds in her head and one in her left hand was found lying on the sidewalk with her feet in the gutter at the southwest corner of 7th and A sts. ne. last night about 8:45 p. m. by a woman passer-by.

The body of the woman who is still unidentified was found by Mrs. Grace Lucas, 631 A st. ne., who told police she was walking north on A st. when she saw the body lying in the shadow of one of the giant sycamore trees that line the street.

Then her attention was attracted immediately to a man, about 10 feet away, who was peering down a manhole in the sidewalk, the cover of which had been removed.

"What in the hell are you looking at?" she quoted the man as shouting.

Runs to Neighbor's Home

Frightened, she ran to the home of a neighbor, Rush Chamblin, as a drizzling rain dampened the sidewalk.

Chamblin called police and the body was taken to Casualty Hospital where the woman was pronounced dead at 8:55. Not until she was examined at the hospital was it discovered she had been shot.

There it was found she had three bullet wounds through her cheeks, one through the left part of the top of her head and one through the left hand. The wounds were made by a heavy caliber weapon, doctors said.

Sedan Parked Nearby

Mrs. Lucas said that after discovering the body, she noticed a dark sedan parked about 6 feet from the curbing and while she did not take full note of the number, she believes it to have been a District tag and the first numeral the figure 8.

Chamblin said that she arrived at his home in a state of considerable excitement and told him she had discovered the body of a woman lying on the sidewalk.

She also said, Chamblin said, that she had seen the body thrown from a car and a man pick the dead woman up.

However, an examination at the hospital revealed the body to have only minor brush burns, which would indicate, police said, that the body had been dragged from the car, and not thrown.

Across the street was the First Church of the Nazarene, services were in progress apparently when the body was deposited. The congregation unaware of the tragedy walked out to find detectives and reporters trying to solve Washington's latest murder mystery.

Clad in Sports Coat

The slain woman was described by police as being between 30 and 35, 5-feet-4-inches tall, weighing 130 pounds; reddish henna hair, blue eyes; one lower tooth gold capped, gold bridge in upper left. She wore a gray plaid sports coat, with blue and pink stripes with the label "Casual Clothes;" dark blue dress with small white pin stripe; black belt, tan stockings and black patent leather shoes, one of which is missing.

She wore a yellow metal ring with blue stone on a finger of her

Peace Proposal Signal For Stiff Senate Fight

By Robert C. Albright

With the composite backing of Administration leaders and former isolationists, a compromise foreign policy declaration committing this Government to a broad postwar peace objective was launched yesterday in an historic Senate debate.

It immediately collided with the determined opposition of a little band of internationally-minded Senators pledged to spell out the postwar terms so plainly that no future Senate can mistake them.

Opened With Warning

Yesterday's debate opened with a warning by Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally, leading sponsor of the compromise, that "isolation has failed; let us try collective security." But Connally urged the Senate not to try to "blueprint" this Nation's postwar role—to leave details of the peace to the peace table.

Upholding Connally's argument for a broad "common denominator" resolution, asserting only peace objectives without filling in the blanks, were Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan and Senator Guy M. Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa, nationalists before Pearl Harbor.

The day closed with a charge by Senator Joseph H. Ball (Republican) of Minnesota, leader of the drive to spell out peace objectives, that the compromise resolution is "so vague and general as to leave every individual member free in his own conscience to advocate, support or oppose whatever interpretation might suit him in the future."

Now, I Lay Me Down to Quibble

By the Associated Press

You could get a good argument in the United States Senate over the meaning of the Lord's Prayer, Senator Gillette (Democrat) of Iowa opined yesterday.

Gillette, in a humorous vein during debate on the Connally postwar declaration, proceeded to demonstrate how "quibblers over words" might wrangle about the meaning of a line of the Prayer. Word by word he gave this description of how the Senate might debate over it:

Give—"Some might say that first word implied a bounty, with the receiver returning nothing. They would say let's change that to read 'Oh Lord, make it possible for us to receive—"

Us—"Some might ask, what is meant by us? We ought to change that to read: 'The United Nations, or peoples of free and sovereign nations.'"

This day—"That would be much too restrictive; they would say. They would contend it should read: 'Give us this day, and each day hereafter . . .'

Our daily bread—"They would argue that daily bread was not definite enough. They would say it doesn't include cake or it doesn't include meat. Someone would say, 'I move to strike out the words daily bread and insert in lieu thereof the words "everything we need for our spiritual and physical well being."'"

Gillette is a member of the Senate subcommittee that drafted the Connally resolution.

Yanks Take Sparanise, Set Nazi Trap

Clark's Forces Threaten Foe Caught Between Rail Center, Sea

Allied Headquaters, Algiers, Oct. 25 (AP).—Driving 3 miles against determined resistance and repelling four violent counterattacks in 24 hours, Fifth Army troops have captured the important road and rail junction of Sparanise in the mountainous western sector of the Italian Front, 93 airline miles from Rome, a communique announced today.

Fall of the town, 13 miles from the Mediterranean end of the battle line, raised a severe threat to German forces between that point and the sea. A commentator declared, "'If they don't get out they will be caught in a pocket."

Sparanise is about 7 miles north of the Volturno River near the center of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army front. The advance placed Clark's troops across the strongly defended Regio Canal and, if continued, would split the Nazis' Massico Ridge line.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British, Canadian and Indian forces of the Eighth Army enlarged their bridgehead across the Trigno River in the eastern sector in stern fighting.

In crossing the Trigno, Montgomery carried the invasion of the peninsula from southern into central Italy, the river in this area being considered the dividing line. The stiffest fighting is in progress in Chisti Province.

In front of the Eighth Army hills rise to 2200 feet. Behind these tower still higher ridges, towering over 7500 feet, the highest point of the peninsula south of the Alps.

Air Fighting Intensified

Air warfare rose to a new tempo as American heavy bombers protected by Italy-based fighter squadrons plunged explosives on southern Austria and a German airfield at Tirana, Albania, and the Nazi air force threw at least 60 of its own fighters into the conflict. Fifteen German planes were destroyed, mainly in combats over Italy, and four Allied craft were missing. Three Nazi bombers were shot down in an attempted raid on Naples.

Flying Fortresses and Liberators participated in the attack on Austria, and for the first time were escorted by long-range P-38 Lightnings from Italian bases. The big bombers met heavy weather and were not able to make detailed reports of the results.

700 Nip Craft Lost in 2 Weeks In Southwest, South Pacific

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Tuesday), Oct. 26 (AP).—General MacArthur's air force destroyed 123 Japanese planes Saturday and Sunday in raids on reinforcements at Rabaul, New Britain, bringing the total wiped out there in four recent smashes to more than 300.

Raising the enemy's plane losses in two weeks in the South and Southwest Pacific to more than 700, MacArthur's bombers, escorted by fighters as they were in the record 350-ton raid of October 12, went back to Rabaul on the strength of reconnaissance photographs showing the enemy had sent in air replacements.

After destroying or badly damaging 177 planes in the first raid and 60 more in a raid October 18, aerial photography planes spotted 222 planes on the airdromes of Vunakanau, Rapopo and Tobera.

35 Planes Destroyed

The first attacks Saturday were high altitude bombing runs by Liberators, escorted by Lightnings. They dropped 105 tons of bombs. Twenty parked aircraft were destroyed and 15 of 50 intercepting fighters were shot down.

Sunday, Mitchell medium bombers made the flight of more than 300 miles across New Britain, screened by Lightnings, and destroyed 45 enemy planes on the ground. Between 60 and 70 Japanese planes tried to break up this attack and 43 were shot down.

Allied losses for the two new raids were two Lightnings and two Mitchells.

Today's communique said the new raids crippled "the enemy's air reinforcements which he was attempting to build up from rear areas."

Forty-five other Japanese planes were listed as probably destroyed in the Saturday and Sunday blows.

The Mitchells on Sunday employed for the third straight time their low-flying tactics which have bewildered Rabaul's bristling anti-aircraft defenses. They went in at treetop height, starting fires in supply dumps and strewing ruin in the areas where grounded planes are dispersed.

Japs Battle Fiercely

The Japanese battled fiercely to break up the Sunday attack, engaging the raiders in a running fight which lasted an hour.

The enemy's mounting air losses were heaped higher in the Northern Solomons by the latest in the almost daily series of attacks on Bougainville. Four times in one day, heavy bombers, torpedo bombers and divebombers, escorted by fighters, went after the airdromes of Kahili and Kara.

Twenty enemy planes on the ground probably were destroyed and others damaged. Fires were

When Thieves Fall Out

Alleged Mass Slaying Laid to Army Revolt

By Clark Lee

Somewhere in Southern Italy, Oct. 25 (INS).—A mass execution of 8000 Italian officers and men by the Germans on an island off Albania was reported today by Italian soldiers and civilians who recently escaped through the Nazi lines into southern Italy.

This report has not yet been confirmed by other sources, but it indicates one of the most brutal acts of Nazi terrorism of the entire war.

Two Italian divisions stationed on the Mediterranean island, according to the account given by the refugees, revolted after Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's recent declaration of war on Germans. They overwhelmed the small Nazi garrison.

But the Germans rushed in reinforcements, disarmed the Italians and shot 8000 of them, the refugees related.

The remainder of the Italian officers and soldiers, it was added, were taken to the Albanian mainland and, under threat of death, were forced to march to Germany on foot at a rate of 30 miles a day.

To sustain them on the grueling march toward forced labor in the Reich, the Italians were given only one small loaf of bread for each five men daily.

On the Italian mainland itself, reliable reports state, the Germans have not carried out such mass annihilations or anything approaching the scale of their wholesale murders in Poland and Russia. But they are retaliating savagely against any acts of Italian resistance, terrorizing the population and robbing and looting everywhere, with the consent of their officers.

Many thousands of Italians have been deported to Germany for slave labor.

In villages, towns and rural districts the Germans are carrying out a senseless program of brutality. For instance, in one area they shot all the cattle and forced the peasants to bury the beasts or carry them away. The people were forced to leave their homes to escape the contaminating stench.

Hungry Germans kill a pig or cow, cut off a small portion for meat and then forbid the peasants to carry away the rest.

On village streets and country roads Germans hold up Italians and take their watches and money. Most homes have been stripped of their valuables.

Many Italians who escaped from central and northern Italy report a defeatist attitude among the German troops who believe they are doomed and therefore take it out on the nearest whipping dog—the Italians.

Dnepropetrovsk Taken; Enemy Reported Fleeing From Crimea

London (Tuesday), Oct. 26 (AP). The Red army crushed Germany's powerful Dnieper River bend defenses yesterday with the capture of the industrial cities of Dnepropetrovsk and Dneprodzerzhinsk, spun the enemy into a "disordered retreat" near Krivoi Rog, and killed 2000 Germans in a new break-through above the Crimea, Moscow said today.

A badly mauled German army of perhaps one million faced a debacle in southern Russia, judging from Moscow's disclosures and the admissions of danger from Berlin.

(A Stockholm dispatch to the London Daily Express quoted a military spokesman in Berlin as admitting the Germans "are completely evacuating the Crimea and the territories north of it," said the International News Service.)

One Soviet army crossed the Dnieper near Kaidaki, 10 miles below Dnepropetrovsk, while a second moved on the city from the west. They smashed through elaborate concrete pillboxes and blockhouses to take the twin cities in the upper corner of the loop by storm, and captured "enormous quantities" of materiel.

"Trap-Within-a-Trap"

This skillful springing of a "trap-within-a-trap" was abetted by two arms of a larger Soviet pincers, one hammering at the gates of Krivoi Rog, 85 miles to the southwest, the other racing southwestward through fallen Melitopol toward the Crimea.

Thousands of Germans fell on the steppes above the Crimea, and Moscow announced the shattering of a German defense line based on the railway from Melitopol to the Crimea. A number of strongpoints were captured, including Rodionovka, 14 miles southwest of Melitopol on an inlet of the Sea of Azov.

Eight German counterattacks were beaten down before Krivoi Rog, and one Soviet unit smashed an entire Nazi regiment.

Front dispatches said the Twenty-third German Tank Division already had been trapped at Krivoi Rog, with its commander killed. At some points German troops even abandoned their clothing in their flight, the newspaper Pravda said.

Key to Ukraine Industries

Dnepropetrovsk itself normally supplied one-third of all Russia's cast iron, and the city of more than 500,000 is the key to control of all Russia's lower Ukraine industries. Dneprodzerzhinsk, formerly Kamenskoye, lies 20 miles to the west.

Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's army which toppled Zaporozhe, east bank city 60 miles to the south, crossed the Dnieper to join Gen. Ivan S. Konev's victorious loop army which moved in from the west.

The union of the two armies virtually freed the entire Dnieper bend area which includes the wrecked remains of the huge 110-million-dollar Dnieper dam and hy-

Half-Million Daily Will Fill War Fund Gap

By John Singerhoff
Post Staff Writer

A blond 5-year-old boy stood on a chair to reach the microphone at the Chamber of Commerce Hall of Flags yesterday and appealed to Washington not to take his home away.

Not only for himself did he plead, but also for his younger sister and brother. The three, because of an ill mother and a father who works long hours in a war plant, are cared for at the Washington Home for Foundlings.

Harold didn't say a word. He just stood there . . .

But the 200 or so War Fund workers who looked at him knew their efforts could not fail—that the people of Washington are going to dig into pockets and produce nearly two million dollars by Friday.

The sound of someone asking for two million dollars, giving only four days to raise such a sum, is frightening.

It does not, however, compare with the terrified wailing of two million homeless Chinese children, nor the agonizing groans of between five and seven million Chinese people who are starving to death.

This two million dollars—that's what the people of the Nation's

More Walkouts

By Ben W. Gilbert

A proposal to pay Illinois coal miners for underground travel time at a basic rate of 50 cents an hour—just half the present basic $1 an hour productive rate—appeared yesterday as a likely compromise settlement of the coal wage dispute, it was learned.

War Labor Board advocates of this method of settlement contend that the United Mine Workers accumulated a "credit" of 37½ cents a day when it signed a contract with Illinois coal operators abandoning its 7-hour day (excluding unpaid underground travel time) in favor of an 8½-hour day (including travel time).

Assuming that half the extra 1½ hours represents additional work time, with the remainder previously unpaid travel time, the "credit" would apply to paying for the ¾ hour of travel time. An

Postage Increases Weighed As Partial Tax Substitute

By Edward Ryan

A 4-cent stamp for the average letter, in place of the present 3, and other postage increases to net the Government 326.4 million more dollars a year were proposed yesterday to the House Ways and Means Committee as a partial substitute for higher taxes. Earlier the committee voted 18 to 6 to retain present estate and gift taxes.

Members predicted committee approval soon, possibly today, of the postage proposals in combination with excise increases totaling 1.25 billion dollars as the backbone of a tax bill increasing Federal revenues by not more than two billion dollars, barring an Administration go-ahead for a sales levy.

The proposed 4-cent mailing rate would apply to first class mail for out-of-town delivery. The present 3-cent out-of-town charge would be applied in turn to first-class mail for local delivery, for which the present rate is 2 cents per ounce. Air mail would be boosted from 6 cents an ounce to 10 cents. A money order up to $2.50 that now costs 6 cents would cost 10; one between $80 and $100 would cost 37 cents where the charge is now 22 cents; and there would be proportional increases for orders between $2.50 and $80.

The postage changes were proposed by Colin F. Stam, head of the Joint Congressional Tax Staff. They accompanied his program for excise tax changes to produce half the $2,500,000,000 the Administration proposed they should produce.

Stam recommended an $8 tax per gallon on distilled spirits as substitute for the present $6 and

Halloween Lantern Pumpkin Must Be Eaten After the Fun

By Walter Wood

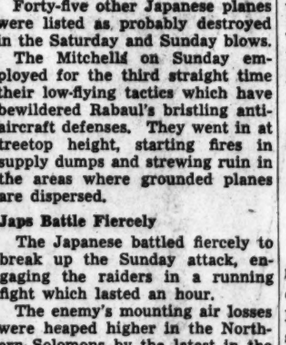
Unmindful that the hobgobblins might resent the intrusion, the War Production Board and the War Food Administration yesterday took a hand in the forthcoming celebration of Halloween, October 31.

Using a pumpkin for a jack-o-lantern is officially okay with the WFA, but treat it with care and make a pie of it when you're through because the pumpkin is now a war food.

Wear a costume if you wish, says the WPB, but try to make last year's do. Some, not plenty, have been manufactured by costumers for both youngsters and adults. You may be a bigger success at the masquerade in last year's model anyway, what with the WPB's regulations on clothing. Gone are the wide-bottom trousers of the gay caballero and the puffy sleeves and the voluminous pants of the clown. And no more metal buttons.

In asking that you eat your jack-o-lantern, the WFA backs up the soundness of its advice by pointing to the number of stamps that will be saved in war ration books. A 1-pound 6-ounce can of pumpkin costs only 16 cents, but 21 points are required.

And it's not only that, officials say. Canned pumpkin is not easy to find. The drought has cut the supply and the Midwest, greatest grower, is not moving the fruit to other parts of the country. Many farmers, it was said, are feeding pumpkins to their cattle.



WFA's request does not restrict artistic tendencies. Cut as many holes, eyes, ears and mouths in your Halloween pumpkin as you like. Decorate it as you wish.

All the WFA asks is that it not be burned. Use candle? Yes. But don't put the top on and smoke up the inside, for there's nothing much better than a pumpkin pie.

Bombs Away

London, Oct. 25 (AP).—Mediterranean-based American heavy bombers, escorted for the first time by long-range fighters based in Italy, struck at Austria yesterday in the campaign to bring Hitler's southern wall under the same devastating fire that already has burned and blackened German cities from the west.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's African headquarters briefly announced this memorable action today against the one Nazi area heretofore almost immune from air attack.

The Berlin radio said the bombers also had flown in from Italian bases and that the four-engined craft had then winged on to Britain to make it a shuttle bombing.

If true, this announcement would indicate the beginning of the fulfillment of the recent Allied promise to throw the mighty Mediterranean aerial armada into an all-out shuttle-bombing onslaught on Germany in conjunction with the even mightier Britain-based fleets.

Yugoslavs Wrest Port From Nazis

London, Oct. 25 (AP).—Kotor, Montenegro, with its landlocked harbor big enough to accommodate the entire Allied Mediterranean fleet, has been wrested from the Germans by the forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, war minister, the Yugoslav government at Cairo announced today.

Also claiming new successes against the Nazis in Yugoslavia, Gen. Josip Broz, known as Tito, asserted his Yugoslav Partisans were locked in desperate combat with General Mihailovic's Chetniks in the Montenegrin hills.

As internecine strife reached a new pitch of intensity, reports grew that Hitler was shaping new moves to control the seething Balkan Peninsula.

Allied control of Kotor could be significant. The port is only 120 miles across the Adriatic from Allied-held Bari, Italy, and it may yet play a big role in Balkan operations.

Tito reported the capture of Ivanic, near Zagreb, the capital of Croatia, as well as two German strongholds in western Bosnia, and declared his men had captured 2000 Germans, the largest number yet.

Both Tito's men and Mihailovic's army were credited in separate accounts with continuing effective-

Marigny's Singed Hands, Arms Described at Murder Trial

Nassau, Bahamas, Oct. 25 (AP).—An American detective told a Bahamas Supreme Court jury today the story of the singed hairs and the missing shirt offered by the Crown as damning testimony that Alfred de Marigny beat and burned to death his young wife's father, Sir Harry Oakes.

Capt. B. W. Melchen of the Miami police also laid the groundwork for introduction of a fingerprint with which the Crown will seek to show that De Marigny was in his father-in-law's bedroom at the time of the slaying the night of July 7-8.

Melchen was called after Dr. William Y. Sayad had quoted a threat by the accused man last spring to "crack the head of Sir Harry."

Still unconcerned, De Marigny met Dr. Sayad at a recess, slapped him on the back and shook hands cordially. The rest of the day he fidgeted in the prisoner's cell-like dock, sometimes yawning and once winking at a girl reporter.

Melchen told of being called to Nassau, along with Capt. James O. Barker of the Miami police, by the Duke of Windsor, Governor of the Bahamas, who was anxious that the slaying of one of the world's richest men be solved.

He questioned De Marigny the night of July 8, the day the body was discovered by Harold G. Christie, a house guest at the Oakes estate. De Marigny agreed to an examination of his body with a microscope, Melchen said, adding:

"I found burned hairs on his forearms and the backs of both

War Sidelights

Nazis Slay Churchmen, Poles Say

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—The Polish Telegraph Agency said today Bishop Nowowiejski, spiritual head of the Catholic Diocese of Plock, has been "tortured to death by the Nazis," along with the Archdeacon of Gostynin. Both churchmen were more than 80 years old.

"The German slaughter of Catholic priests is raging through all Poland," the agency said. "Father Jan Macha of Ruda has been beheaded at Katowice. In Gdynia, 12 other priests have been put to death. Canon Rochalski, of Sroda; the Poznan prelate, Father Prondzynski, and Fathers Potomski and Kopczynski of Pohorze have met the same fate.

At least eight more have been executed in Silesia. The Nazi concentration camp of Irowroclaw is filled with priests awaiting execution.

"In West Poland alone, more than 1600 priests have already lost their lives."

Bombers Avoid Houses

Leith, Scotland, Oct. 25 (AP).—The United States Flying Fortress attack on the Marienburg Focke Wulf factory October 9 was so accurate that, while the factory was destroyed, not a single house nearby was damaged, a repatriated Briton who saw it said today.

"In the French prisoner of war camp about 100 yards from the factory only one man was wounded," he said.

London, Oct. 25 (AP).—The famous woman sniper, Lieut. Ludmila Pavliuchenko, who is credited with killing 309 Nazis, has been awarded the title of "Hero of the Soviet Union," together with the Order of Lenin and the Gold Star Medal, the Moscow radio said tonight.

The lieutenant visited the United States last year with a student delegation.

WPB Has Plan To Boost Plant Efficiency 20%

A blueprint for a 20 per cent increase in aircraft production efficiency with present manpower is before the War Production Board, it was learned yesterday.

Simply stated the plan calls for lifting the efficiency of manufacturers with less than normal ratings to the normal for the country. Such an action would be equivalent to providing the aircraft industry with from 150,000 to 200,000 additional workers at one swoop, it was said.

About 22 manufacturers out of 70 are producing below average.

Officials are convinced that it can be done. To prove it, they point to the record of Ford's mammoth Willow Run plant in Michigan. About a year ago, the plant was regarded as a prize "lemon," with plane productivity per man hour down near the bottom of the list for the country.

During September, officials said, Willow Run made one of the best records—its productivity per manhour was near the top and helping to raise the average for the whole industry.

Although statistical quirks enter this picture, actually, Willow Run is now using its manpower about 40 times more efficiently than a year ago.

Since January, 1941, employment of workers in airplane plants has increased about eight times, but total amount of airframe weight produced per month has increased 17 times—indicating that efficiency per worker has more than doubled since the beginning of 1941.

A survey of aircraft plants has convinced the WPB that productivity of many individual plants can be increased substantially. Wide variations between plants are revealed, indicating that plants may improve merely by benefiting from the experience of their competitors.

Other measures will be taken also, suited to the individual problem.

Thus, it is hoped to lift the record of Brewster aircraft plant from near the bottom to near the top by the device of installing a new management. West Coast Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser has been given the job of running this plant by the Navy, after much difficulty with a series of earlier managers.

WPB executive vice chairman Charles E. Wilson has asked a number of plants to install incentive wage systems to improve production and to look into the possible adoption of a 10-hour day. Wider subcontracting is being urged for plants with tough schedules which are situated in overcrowded communities, particularly on the West Coast.

For the special benefit of West Coast aircraft manufacturing, comprehensive manpower controls were set up recently.

Kaiser has advocated making manhour productivity records public to create competition among producers.

Without attempting to apologize for bad management, officials say it is not fair to blame all the inefficient plants for their standing. Many of them have been victims of design changes dictated by strategy, and have been able only recently to turn to continuous production for any length of time.

Standley Sees Russia Inclining To Victorianism

Reversion to Victorianism in Russia within the next two decades was predicted by Admiral William H. Standley, who recently resigned as Ambassador to Russia, as he cited stricter regimentation of her youngsters.

Declining to make any statements of political nature, the former Ambassador to Russia last night described for members of the California State Society the wartime educational and industrial systems of the country.

Admiral Standley declared that collective farmers are "better fed than any other people of Russia" since they may produce goods in addition to the "norm" designated by the government and can trade the overproduction for other articles. A suit of clothes, for instance, he said, is purchased with food, since money is of little value.

"Compared to tte Russian people," Admiral Standley asserted "we don't even know we're in the war. These people are in practically the same position as were the pioneers in the West 50 years ago. They have no privileges."

droelectic works destroyed by the Russians in their retreat from the area in August, 1941.

The junction also aroused the imminent possibility of a German withdrawal 175 miles westward to the Bug River in an attempt to hold the approaches to the Black Sea port of Odessa and the many rail lines running into Rumania and Poland.

Marshal Stalin ordered 20 salvoes from 224 Moscow cannon—the second big night celebration witnessed by U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who are attending the tripower political and military conference in the Soviet capital. The other celebration was for Saturday's capture of Melitopol, gateway to the steppes leading to the Crimea.

Heavily-armored Stormovik planes were reported strafing the Germans retreating southwest from Dnepropetrovsk along the railway to Kosiorovo, 75 miles away.

These enemy troops also were hounded by the prospect of being trapped by Soviet units battering at Krivoi Rog, only 20 miles northwest of Kosiorovo. The Moscow bulletin said the Russians gained two to five more miles, which would put them practically at its gates.

An Axis broadcast Sunday said some Russian spearheads already had fought their way into Krivoi Rog.

Southwest of fallen Melitopol the Russians advancing on the Crimea were declared to have captured five enemy strongpoints, and were believed to be within 60 miles of the coveted peninsula.

German broadcasts admitted their troops were being pressed back under "waves of stubbornly attacking Russians," launched every 90 minutes.

The Russians said their troops knocked out 105 German tanks and shot down 49 planes Sunday, and front dispatches said huge stocks of booty were captured.

Pravda credited Red army tanks with paving the way for the successful smash across the Dnieper River loop toward the Black Sea, and quoted one captive German officer as saying: "Your tank men have done miracles. They appeared before us like ghosts and even though we had plenty of men fighting with good arms behind well prepared positions we were unable to withstand the suddenness of your tank attacks."

Reich Morale Badly Shaken, Prisoners Say

London, Oct. 25 (INS).—More than 3300 British prisoners of war landed today at the port of Leith, Scotland. Some had not seen their homes since they went to France four years ago with the British expeditionary forces.

They all said morale inside the Reich has been badly shaken. They said no one in Germany believes the country can hold out another year, that some Germans think the end will come before Christmas.

Held Together By Obedience

Right now, they said, Germany is only being held together by strict control and an innate German obedience to command and discipline.

The German people's despair, they said, took a sharp rise especially since the beginning of 1943 when the Russian winter offensive was rolling ahead and the Anglo-American troops were pushing into Tunisia.

Many Germans, it was added, frankly voiced the hope that American and British armies would invade western Europe soon and thus save them from the Russians.

Russians Fare Worse

Lance Corp. Andrew Leeds stressed the inadequate food at camps where British and American war prisoners were kept, but said "the Russians are treated far worse" in the German prison camps where they are confined.

Many said that as the RAF and American raids on Germany increased, the treatment of Allied prisoners in prison camps improved.

Two British Ships Sunk in Channel Fight

London, Oct. 25 (AP).—The British cruiser Charybdis was sunk and the destroyer Limbourne was damaged and had to be sunk in a Channel naval battle Saturday, the admiralty announced today.

The Charybdis and the Limbourne were a part of a British force engaged on an offensive sweep off the north coast between Ushant and the Channel Islands. Both vessels were struck by torpedoes.

The Berlin radio announced Saturday that a British force had clashed during the night with a German force protecting a convoy. The German announcement said that fire from their vessels was so effective that the British force "did not even get near."

It claimed at least two torpedo hits "on a large enemy unit."

H. M. S. Charybdis, a 5450-ton vessel, was built in 1940. She carried ten 5¼-inch guns and six torpedo tubes.

The destroyer Limbourne was laid down in 1939 and completed in 1940. The 904-ton vessel carried four 4-inch guns.

Senate Confirms Promotions of 11 Navy Captains

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated three Navy captains to be rear admirals and eight captains to be commodores in the Navy.

Nominated to be rear admirals were, with their usual addresses:

Carl H. Jones, Atmore, Ala.; Samuel P. Ginder, Altoona, Pa., and Forrest P. Sherman, Melrose, Mass.

Nominated to be commodores were:

Cortlandt C. Baughman, 3900 Cathedral ave., Washington, D. C.; Benjamon V. McCandlish, Petersburg, Va.; Campbell D. Edgar, Cazenovia, N. Y.; George H. Mills, Rutherfordton, N. C.; Byron McCandless, San Diego, Calif.; William M. Quigley, Brewster, N. Y.; Wallace B. Phillips, New York City, and James Fife, jr., Reno, Nev.

U. S. Exporting Rubber, Rep. Bolton Charges

Representative Bolton (Republican), Ohio, suggested yesterday that Congress investigate reports that crude rubber is being shipped abroad by the United States.

She told the House a shipment of rubber was reported to have arrived recently in Sweden from this country.

Nazi Patrols Fired on Jews Fleeing Denmark

Detailed information on the "purge" of Danish Jews by Germany, and of Sweden's efforts in the Jews' behalf, has been received here as follows:

September 30, Hitler began the persecution of the Danish Jews. Swedish sources say that many had received warning and were in flight toward Malmo, Landskrona and Helsingborg. Several drowned on the way or perished from cold. The German patrols fired on the boats whenever they had a chance. The Danish Press Association in Stockholm stated that more than 1600 Danish Jews were taken into custody. American Jewish Yearbook for 1942 shows 5690 Jews in Denmark.

The Swedish Minister in Berlin informed the German authorities that a serious reaction in Sweden could be expected as a result of the program. The Swedish government offered to give asylum to the 6000 Danish Jews. The German government did not make any reply. All Swedish newspapers condemn the German action. According to dispatches from Stockholm about 1000 escaped to Sweden. Most of them escaped in fishing boats or row boats. All formalities were dispensed with. All who had family or friends in Sweden went on immediately. Castle Orenas, north of Landskrona, was set up as a receiving center. The reception of the fugitives was very friendly and from the heart. The oldest was 75 years old, the youngest 3 months.

Many of the fugitives lived like hunted animals before getting across the sound, and many required medical attention. Radda Barnen, a benevolent association, has started collecting clothing and other necessities. A collection in Helsingborg has already totaled $10,000.

The Swedish press expressed deepest indignation and contempt for the German "manhunt."

PUC Fights OPA Intervention on Lighting Rates

A move to keep Washington Gas Light Company rates under the present sliding scale was effected yesterday when the Public Utilities Commission filed with the Supreme Commission filed a brief with the Supreme Court opposing OPA's petition to change them.

OPA's petition was filed in September succeeding the Court of Appeals action upholding the sliding scale plan now in effect.

Under this plan rates increase or decrease in accordance with the proportionate gains of the company. The OPA contends that under the Emergency Price Control Act, it has the right to advise a revision of the plan, a claim denied by the Court of Appeals.

Bowles Nominated To Succeed Brown

Gets Presidential Recommendation For Price Agency Post

The nomination of Chester Bowles, New York advertising man, to succeed Prentiss M. Brown as head of the Office of Price Administration was sent to Congress yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Bowles has been serving as general manager of the price and ration agency and was OPA director for Connecticut before coming to Washington in July. His selection for the national post vacated last week by resignation of the former Michigan Senator was generally predicted.

Senator Maloney (Democrat) of Connecticut paid tribute to Bowles soon after his nomination reached the Senate, and said he had won approval of "millions of people throughout the country," who believe OPA is distributing fairly the goods and food available to the civilian population in wartime.

Elsewhere, some of Bowles' activities were being pointed out as demonstrating the extent to which he has concentrated on administration since August 1. These included:

1. Replacement of every department head in the national office with the exception of the general counsel, George Burke, who is leaving within the next two or three weeks, and the head of the rent department, who has been made deputy administrator in charge of rent. Every division head in the price department likewise has been replaced with a man of long practical experience. A new head of the rationing department has been chosen, with directions for a thorough review of food rationing practices. A new administrator is being chosen for Region Two, covering New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Fourty-four businessmen have been brought into the Washington office with several others as part-time consultants.
2. Reduction of the number of authorized jobs in Washington from 4700 to 3850, and a cut of 600 in the number of field employes.
3. Abolition of the legal department, with attorneys, excepting the general counsel, reporting directly to the operating executives
4. Establishment of a new department of field operations, to improve the contacts between Washington and the country at large and to improve the standards of personnel and efficiency in the field.
5. Creation of a new department of enforcement, in charge of a deputy administrator, to make the enforcement program more effective.
6. Delegating of considerable new authority to field organizations and decentralizing of many functions hitherto maintained here.
7. Improvement of relations with other Government organizations, and the effecting of smoother operations in the Washington office through staff meetings and by other means.

Bowles was represented as deploring the fact that to date the complete reorganization of OPA upon which he has been engaged has required so much of his time that he has been unable to keep in close touch with Congress and heads of other agencies, and to confer with delegations visiting the Capital.

75,000 Need Work

Sightless To Hunt Jobs For Blind

Jobs for 75,000 unemployed blind persons in the United States are needed, and two young men, themselves blind, started intensive training in Washington yesterday to equip themselves to find work for some of them.

They are former Lieut. Raymond T. Frey, 27, and Karsten Ohnstad, 31. Lieutenant Frey lost his sight through explosion of a booby trap in February, 1943, near Cap Carson, Colo., where he was leading a platon and demonstrating how to locate traps. "I guess I tramped on it" he says.

Ohnstad was blinded 17 years ago as the result of being hit in the face by a football. He is a writer and lecturer, one of his books being "The World at My Fingertips."

Will Visit Blind Workers

The men are working under the supervision of Joseph F. Clunk, Chief of Service for the Blind of the U. S. Office of Education, and their lessons will consist of visits to places where the blind are employed, ranging from refreshment stands to war production plants.

The training of these men will consist largely, Clunk explained, in the technique of selling an employer on the idea that a blind person can become a highly efficient and desirable employe.

"We have trained employment supervisors—that is what Frey and Ohnstad will become—in 17 States at present. Through these supervisors we have been able to demonstrate that the blind, in proper places, are better employes than those with sight—no accidents, little absenteeism, and greater efficiency.

Many Employed By U. S.

There are about 200 on Government jobs in Washington. There are attorneys, dictaphone operators, file clerks, radio technicians and administrative officers, to name only a few of the posts held."

At present there are about 300,000 blind in the United States and one-fourth, 75,000, are employable. Between 12,000 and 14,000 are employed. Frey and Ohnstad hope, they said, to qualify by the first of the year as aides in the campaign of finding jobs for the three-division army of the blind.

While in training here Frey is making his home with relatives at 2915 Connecticut ave. nw, and Ohnstad lives at the YMCA, Eighteenth and G sts. nw. Each is married. Mrs. Frey lives in Lebanon, Pa., her husband's native place, and Mrs. Ohnstad in Minneapolis.

District Marine Ace Diffidently Recalls Downing 20 Jap Planes Since April Fool's Day

By Hanson H. Hathaway

America's second ranking Marine air ace, Lieut. Kenneth A. Walsh, 27, of 1222 Newton st. ne., with 20 Jap planes to his credit, not counting 4 "unconfirmed," diffidently told his story of air combat in South Pacific skies at a Navy press meeting, yesterday.

It was a story climaxing the life of a little shy lad on a bicycle who many years ago pedaled nightly to "Newark Airport in Jersey" to watch the evening mail plane take off, and only eclipsed by Marine air fighter, Maj. Joe Foss, who has 26 Japs to chalk up on the fuselage of the ships he flies.

"On April Fool's day, this year," the ace began shyly, "a large force of Jap bombers and fighters came down from the northern Solomons to raid Guadalcanal. I went up on my first combat mission. We jumped a flock of 25 Zeros and I shot down two in my first five minutes of fighting.

"Greatest Sport In World"

Lieutenant Walsh went on to tell of a Jap 20-milimeter shell blasting the hood of the cockpit; of his mounting excitement in what proved "to be the greatest sport in the world, air fighting," and downing a dive bomber before shoving off for home.

Thirteen Jap planes were knocked down by Corsair fighters in his maiden essay at air slaughter, Walsh revealed.

"After that taste of fighting, wild horses couldn't keep me on the ground," the flier said.

Lieutenant Walsh's records reveal he never missed a scheduled flight mission and that he has flown more than 250 hours in actual combat.

Thrice death reached across the skies for him, but each time he lived to fight again, to, as he grinned "come back for more."

Once, August 12, Walsh was in formation with 13 Corsairs covering a 24 Liberator bomber flight traveling slow because one of their numbers was crippled.

A superior force of Zeros came gunning down from high. Walsh got on the tail of one, sent a stream of bullets into him, and was turning to atack another when . . .

"I heard sounds like hail hitting a tin roof. A Zero was on my tail pouring lead into me.

With his plane nearly out of control, Walsh thought it was curtains for him. However, his wingman, Lieut. Bill Johnson of Birmingham, dove into and shot the Jap away.

The ace crash landed on the beach of New Georgia Island, got another plane and went back into the fight.

Two days later above Vella Lavella Island 20 millimeter shells severed his hydraulic line, blew up the right wing gas tank and bullets shot away his aerilon controls.

Fell Out of Control

Walsh again fell out of control, but righted his ship to come in at flight speed to land on Munda. Machinics took one look at the plane and consigned it to base junk heap! Again he took another plane and resumed the battle.

The Marines got 20 Japs that day.

The third brush with death was over Bougainville. Five Japs ganged Walsh . He got two, but "they chewed my ship up so badly I crashed into the sea where shore troops rescued me with a Higgins boat."

Starting with the April Fool's Day initial combat flight, Lieutenant Walsh's box score of Jap death reads: April 1, 2 Zeros, 1 dive-bomber; April 13, 3 Zeros; June 5, 1 Zero and float plane; August 12, 2 Zeros; August 15, 1 Zero and 2 dive-bombers; August 21, 1 Zero; August 23, 2 Zeros, and August 30, "a hot day for me," he said, "4 Zeros over Ballale and Vella Lavella."

He wears the Distinguished Flying Cross for the April 1 victories.

Also on his record is the sinking of a Jap supply ship, something he admitted in a characteristic afterthought:

"That was just sort of extra."

War Bond Rally at Catholic U. Tomorrow

John A. Reilly, general chairman of the District of Columbia War Finance Committee, with George B. Ingels of the Treasury, will address a war bond rally at Catholic University tomorrow, where all classes will be suspended from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

The goal at Catholic University is $75.000, of which $40,000 have been pledged toward buying a fighter plane which will bear the name "The Cardinal."

The Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, rector of the university, will give the invocation: Herman Axelrod, an engineering student, will be master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Dr. Ignatius Smith, O. P., dean of the school of philosophy, will speak for the faculty.

The benediction will be pronounced by the Right. Rev. Msgr. Edward B. Jordan, vice rector.

Trial Is Postponed On Abortion Charge

The District Court trial of Edna E. Gray, 61, Negro, charged with performing an abortion on a 22-year-old Government worker, was continued yesterday until next Monday. Postponement was granted when the United States attorney informed the court that the complaining witness was in a hospital.

U. S. Plane Fights Japanese Bomber Off Attu Island

A Japanese bomber operating in the vicinity of American positions on Attu Island in the Aleutians was attacked by a Navy patrol bomber and probably damaged Sunday afternoon (October 25 at the point on the other side of the international date line), the Navy reported yesterday.

This was the third recent occasion on which the Navy reported presence of enemy aircraft in the vicinity of the Aleutians.

NLRB Stops Review of Company Union Cases

By the Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board dropped proceedings yesterday in virtually all cases involving complaints of company domination of unions, as the result of the Comptroller General's interpretation of a congressional rider on the board's appropriation.

The board announced it would not proceed "in any company union cases where an agreement has been in existence at least three months without charges being filed."

The rider in the appropriation bill was backed by the American Federation of Labor's metal trades department during its quarrel with the CIO and the board in the Kaiser shipyard case, but the AFL's counsel today disputed the Comptroller General's interpretation.

Wagner Act Status

Joseph A. Padway, the counsel, said "the amendment to the appropriations bill certainly did not contemplate it would put company unions, dominated by employers in the same status as legitimate unions."

The rider did not amend the Wagner Act but provided that none of the board's fund for the current fiscal year could be used in "a complaint case arising over an agreement between management and labor which has been in existence for three months or longer without complaint being filed."

In this the AFL achieved at least temporarily its objective of preventing the board from proceeding with its complaint that the contracts between Kaiser and the AFL unions on the West Coast interfered with the employes' rights to choose their own bargaining agents.

Based on CIO Complaint

The board had charged that only a few employes, in one case no employes, had been hired when the closed shop contracts were signed. The board challenged the contracts on the complaint of the CIO. The AFL unions raised a defense fund of $57,000 and spent more than $40,000 in their campaign.

Comptroller Lindsay C. Warren said in his opinion "there would appear to be no room for doubt that in conformity with its stated purpose of accomplishing stabilization of labor relations, the Congress intended that existing agreements shall remain in effect and not be the subject of inquiry in proceedings by the NLRB during the fiscal year 1944, regardless of the nature of the unfair labor practice that may be in issue in a particular case."

Army Schools Of Government Being Investigated

An investigation of the Army Schools of Military Government and the Army orientation courses is being made by the House Committee on Military Affairs, Representative Durham (Democrat) of North Carolina announced yesterday.

The committee is studying source materials used by lecturers in Army schools and inquiring into the civilian agencies supplying the source material, Durham revealed.

Police Grill RCAF Cadet In N.Y. Slaying

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—The missing uniform of RCAF Cadet Wayne Lonergan, 26, was hunted by police today in the investigation into the bludgeon murder of his estranged wife, pretty 22-year-old Patricia Burton Lonergan.

As police fled to Toronto to question Lonergan, investigators here were told by John Frederick Harjes, in whose apartment Lonergan spent Saturday night, that the young flier left a note which told of borrowing one of Harjes' suits because he had met with an accident which destroyed the uniform.

Picked up in Toronto, Lonergan, in civilian clothes, told police his uniform had been stolen.

The cadet is to be returned here immediately unless he opposes extradition. Toronto police said Lonergan had "cuts and scratches on his face."

Indications of Struggle

A medical examiner said Mrs. Lonergan died of strangulation, fracture of the skull and a concussion of the brain. Scrapings of human skin were found under the fingernails.

Blood stains on the carpeted staircase leading to the bedroom furnished a clew, and, one detective said, ::indicated there was a battle royal in which Mrs. Lonergan fought desperately."

Mrs. Lonergan, mother of an 18-month-old son, was found dead in her bed yesterday, after the door was forced by Marine Capt. Peter Elser, former Harvard football star. Elser, who said he had an appointment with her, added he telephoned at 8 a. m. and was told by Elizabeth Black, the child's governess, that Mrs. Lonergan had not been seen there Sunday.

Door Broken Down

Mrs. Lucille Burton, the dead woman's mother, in the apartment at the time, asked Elser to come over. They broke in the bedroom door and found Mrs. Lonergan lying, unclothed, on the bed. On the floor nearby was a broken, blood-stained lamp, and another lamp, stained with blood, was under the bed, she said.

Jeanne Murphy, 22, blonde showgirl, told police she spent Saturday night with Lonergan, and met him again Sunday. He left by plane for Canada at 5 p. m., she said, adding she noted no scratches on him.

Held as a material witness was Mario Enzo Gabelline, 43, interior decorator who, police said, escorted Mrs. Lonergan Saturday night.

The apartment is a block north of the house where Veronica Gedeon, artist's model, and her mother and a boarder were slain on Easter Sunday, 1937, and about a block east of the apartment where Mrs. Nancy Titterton was slain by an upholsterer's helper in 1936.

De Marigny gave several different explanations for the burns, Melchen said.

They drove to De Marigny's home, "where he gave us his coat and pants and a pair of shoes. The clothing was well pressed and unwrinkled and the crease in the trousers were unmarred."

"We asked him for the shirt and tie he wore the night before," Melchen added, but a thorough search of the house failed to produce the articles.

The crown claims the clothing may have been burned and blood-stained.

Melchen said Barker processed a bedscreen in Sir Harry's room for fingerprints. It is on this screen that Barker will testify he found an impression of De Marigny's little right finger.

Then, Melchen said, De Marigny declared he had not been on the second floor of the house for three years.

Defense attorneys have followed a line of questioning designed to prove that De Marigny may have had an opportunity to touch the bedscreen after the investigation started.

Some of the witnesses told of seeing De Marigny go upstairs about noon July 9, and Melchen confirmed their accounts today by saying he took the accused man there for questioning.

However, he emphasized, the screen was under guard at the time.

Talk With Husband

In a lengthy conversation on the second floor, Melchen said, De Marigny told of taking his red-haired wife, Nancy, Sir Harry's eldest daughter, on a trip to California before they were married.

"He told me he was unable to reason with Sir Harry, 'who was a stupid old fool,'" Melchen continued. "He told of a quarrel with Sir Harry at West Palm Beach where Nancy was ill, and an operation had to be performed.

"He said he hated Sir Harry because he was unreasonable."

De Marigny told Melchen, the officer reported, that Lady Eunice Oakes sent a present of $10,000 which he and Nancy returned "because it was a gift to a poor relative or an orphan."

Melchen quoted the accused man as telling him of a "filthy letter" from his divorced wife, Ruth, to Lady Oakes, and saying that Attorney Walter W. Foskett of West Palm Beach showed the communication to Nancy.

"Foskett showed the letter to Lady Oakes, De Marigny said, to bring about a separation and he hated Foskett for that," Melchen added.

"He said he knew Nancy would come into an equal share of the estate, but he could take care of Nancy and himself."

Again a cross-examining defense attorney turned his questions in the direction of Christie, who testified last week.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
LADY EUNICE OAKES, whose arrival at Nassau, Bahamas, to testify for the prosecution in the murder trial of her son-in-law, Alfred de Marigny, charged with slaying her husband, wealthy Sir Harry Oakes, was announced over the weekend

Callender handed Melchen a towel previously identified as the one used by Christie to wipe Sir Harry's face when he tried to revive the 68-year-old baronet.

"Look at this," he said, pointing to a portion of one edge, "and see whether it appears scorched."

Melchen left the stand and went to a window to examine the towel through a magnifying glass.

"It might be, very slightly," he reported, "I would like to use a microscope before saying so."

"If you found it were scorched, wouldn't you consider that mysterious evidence in this case?"

"I can't say."

Questions About Towel

"If it is scorched, there must have been fire in that room when it was put there?"

"Not necessarily. It could have been scorched from embers."

Seated near the prisoner's dock were Sir Harry's sister, dressed in mourning, and her husband, Dr. Paul Ellis of Maine. Neither looked at De Marigny, and he did not glance in their direction.

Dr. Sayad, West Palm Beach, Fla., eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, testified that last spring Nancy entered Good Samaritan Hospital at West Palm Beach for an operation, the nature of which he did not reveal. Four days later De Marigny entered an adjoining room to undergo a tonsillectomy.

Dr. Sayad said De Marigny became upset after a conversation with Sir Harry, moved from the room and canceled the operation.

"I will crock Sir Harry's head," he quoted De Marigny.

"I told him he shouldn't make such remarks about his father-in-law."

Dr. Sayad testified De Marigny spoke after Sir Harry "told him to get out of the room next to Nancy's at the hospital or he would kick him out."

Says Wife Was Upset

Nancy was upset by the family strife, the physician added.

Describing the miscroscopic examination of the hairs on De Marigny's body, Melchen said.

"We asked him how he burned himself."

"He replied, "Maybe lighting cigarettes."

"We asked whether this would affect the forearms."

"'Hardly,' he said."

"He then said maybe he burned the hairs at an open fire at his chicken farm where water was heated for scalding chickens, or maybe it was when he had a singe by a barber three haircuts back."

At De Marigny's home where a search was made for the shirt, Melchen said, the defendant offered another explanation.

"He said. 'Here is how I may have burned my arms,' and he lighted one of the hurricane lamps in the house, moving his arm over the cabinet to show how it might have happened," Melchen continued.

Previous witnesses who attended a dinner party at De Marigny's home the night of the slaying recalled seeing him light the lamps and complain that he burned himself.

Simpler Payroll Accounting

Adds to Your Stock of Precious Time

TWO THOUSAND years ago, Ovid, the Roman writer, said: "Time is the soul of business." Even in his day, men knew that the essential ingredient of production is measured by the calendar and the clock.

Today, a world war has made even more priceless our store and treasure of time. And everywhere you will find Americans learning to do more with less of it—at the lathe, the desk or the typewriter. For time and manpower are one.

▲ FOR INSTANCE—this week many offices will produce today's complex payroll records in one-half the time formerly consumed. This despite the new "load" added by the Withholding Tax.

▲ THE REASON—a new payroll plan by Shaw-Walker automatically transfers each figure to the several essential records.

After writing payroll figures just once, every record needed is completed, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Withholding Tax, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes:

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash—whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

▲ A COMPLETE FOLDER has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

ALL MADE AT ONE WRITING: pay checks, employee pay statement, social security and withholding tax record, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary.

FOR THE DURATION any old file will do—it's the system itself that counts!

AFTER THE WAR transfer the system intact to any of the following:

A SHAW-WALKER FIRE FILE—the steel file with built-in fire protection. It gives safe-like security, even in severe fires.

OR THE DRAWERS of the Shaw-Walker steel desk. This is the famous new low desk for comfort and hard work.

THE Excello SHIRT

your form in fabric

Amazing—but here's the one shirt that fits as though it was measured, cut and sewn, for you alone. No sign of wrinkles around the neck or under your tie—because Excello construction redistributes the fabric to lie smoothly over the chest, with fullness in the back and at the sleeve head. No bulges or bunchiness from excess fabric under the arms—because Excello sleeves are set in like the sleeves of a fine tailored jacket, at an angle natural to your body. Most shirts, you know, have right-angle "scarecrow" sleeves. Try Excello—you've never known such perfection of fit, comfort and appearance. Excello Shirts priced from $3 upwards.

Costello, Called 'Slot Machine Czar,' Appears As Aurelio Disbarment Hearing Begins in N. Y.

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Frank Costello, called as the first witness in disbarment proceedings against Thomas A. Aurelio, former magistrate, testified today that Michael J. Kennedy, Tammany Hall leader, sought his aid in 1942 when Kennedy was campaigning for leadership of the hall.

Costello, described by District Attorney Frank S. Hogan as a "czar of the slot machine racket," was charged by Hogan with having influenced the nomination of Aurelio as the Democratic candidate for Supreme Court. Aurelio's candidacy has been repudiated by both the Democratic and Republican Parties, but his right to remain on the ballot was upheld by the courts.

Costello, testifying in proceedings before official Referee Charles B. Sears, said that he had known Kennedy, whom he called "Mike," for 10 or 12 years. He said he had luncheon with Kennedy early in 1942.

"He told me he was a candidate for election as executive leader of Tammany Hall and would I try to help him," Costello testified. "I said I couldn't very well because I had committed myself to help Congressman James Fay."

Later, he testified, Kennedy went to Costello's apartment.

"He (Kennedy) said he was making 'great strides,' and asked me if I was still with him and I replied, 'yes, to a certain extent,'" Costello continued.

The witness identified himself as being "connected with the Louisiana Mint Co.," which he explained manufactured a vending machine in which 5-cent pieces were inserted. Hogan then asked if the machine was not commonly known as a slot machine. Costello replied that it was.

Costello said he had known Aurelio "since the early part of 1943."

On August 28, when Hogan threw a bombshell into what promised to be only a routine, unopposed supreme court election, the district attorney charged Aurelio had pledged "undying loyalty" to Costello the day after he received the Democratic nomination.

Aurelio, who later resigned as a city magistrate, replied he had no knowledge of Costello's purported reputation prior to Hogan's statement.

Presiding Justice Francis Martin of the Appellate Division has said that if Aurelio should be elected and then be disbarred prior to taking an oath of office January 1, he would be ineligible to sit on the Supreme Court bench. If he is not ordered disbarred and wins the election, he could be removed only by a court of impeachment.

After Hogan had made his disclosures, Democrats and Republicans reconvened their judicial conventions. Republicans named George Frankenthaler under an independent party label, and Democrats indorsed Matthew M. Levy, American Labor Party candidate, for the Supreme Court post.

Peace Plan Stirs Heated Debate

berg with so many questions that the Texan accused them of "heckling" were Senators Carl Hatch of New Mexico and Claude Pepper of Florida (Democrats). Pepper sent to the desk the so-called "B-2 H-2" amendments, filling in the details left out by the compromise, on which the Senate showdown will turn.

Fight Apparently Hopeless

The so-called "B-2 H-2" Senators numbering some 12 or 13 members as the debate opened, were waging an apparently hopeless fight. Connally and Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley, who will speak for the compromise today claimed a majority of the Senate for the Connally resolution and predicted it would pass by more than a two-thirds vote. Their plain objective was an overwhelming vote that would give the action weight in the councils of the world. To command so many ballots the resolution had to be "general."

The small bipartisan band supporting "clarifying and strengthening amendments" were counting on the backing of the country to force changes that would make the resolution "means something." Following yesterday's debate, seven leaders of the group called a press conference. Said Senator Ball, "Time will tell; we've got to rely on the people."

Besides Ball and Hatch, attending the conference were two other original sponsors of the amendments, Senators Lister Hill (Democrat) of Alabama and Harold H. Burton (Republican) of Ohio. Present also were three who have cast their lot with them—Senators Pepper, Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina and Joseph H. Guffey of Pennsylvania (Democrats).

Votes But No Advice

They told newsmen that while seemingly giving the President blanket authority to go ahead and negotiate for an effective postwar world peace organization, the compromise bound the Senate to nothing. Said Senator Burton: "It will get a great many votes but will give no advice." Said Senator Hatch: "It is misleading alike to the country and our Allies."

Hardly had Connally and Vandenberg completed their opening statements, with 80 of the Senate's 96 Senators present and galleries filled, when Hatch and Pepper pressed for definitions of the resolution's general verbiage.

Both declined to be drawn into details, but Vandenberg said he personally believed the resolution envisoned "whatever instrumentality may be necessary in the future to preserve peace." Hatch commended the definition, but Vandenberg quickly explained that while this was his interpretation, the resolution reserved the Senate's right on details.

Too Late for Help

Pepper pressed Connally on whether "free and sovereign nations" would include governments in exile, such as France. Connally snapped that Pepper went to Harvard "and if the Senator can't define 'free,' I can't help him at this late date." Connally said France certainly would be eligible once it was free of the Axis yoke. Hatch remarked that the resolution seemingly would include Germany and Japan, if not France.

During one colloquy, Senator Gillette said it was his personal belief that the British dominions would not be eligible to full membership in the postwar world organization under the Senate resolution. He said he believed the Commonwealths of Australia, Canada and New Zealand fall "somewhat short" of being free and sovereign nations.

Would Attach Dictionary

At one point Connally haid the debate was degenerating "into a heckling machine" and that he was "not going to be heckled and browbeaten."

There was an outburst of merriment when Senator John A. Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut proposed an amendment giving dictionary meanings of the resolution's words.

Nub of much of the Hatch-Hill-Ball criticism was the charge that the Connally measure might pave the way for a "power alliance" with one or more nations, instead of a universal organization of nations. Barkley said he will answer that charge in his speech today.

District-Wide War Services Mobilization Is Launched

First steps to bring every Washington resident fully and responsibly into the continuing war effort through District-wide mobilization were taken by Civilian War Services division of the District government at a meeting in Hotel Willard yesterday.

Plans call for immediate appointment of War Services chairmen for each of the 66 Washington areas to head up a comprehensive program of activities affecting virtually every detail of civilian life from child care and domestic distress to consumer nutrition and recruiting of WACS and temporary workers for understaffed business houses and undermanned plants.

Specifically, the Civilian War Services plan to aid and counsel in the following problems:

(1) Provision of day care for children of working mothers.

(2) WAC recruiting drives to speed full enlistment of 90,000 women needed by the Army.

(3) Surveys to bring temporary workers into a manpower pool to relieve shortages in District business houses and plants, with emphasis on those willing to take part-time paid employment.

(4) Extension of the victory garden program, in face of food shortages indicatively threatened for next year.

(5) Encouragement of and planning for car sharing to expedite worker movements and reduce burdens of transport companies.

Thirty-one Area Chairmen

Thirty-one area chairmen are needed at once, according to Mrs. Verna D. Linzel, deputy executive officer of the division, headed by Harry P. Somerville.

The plan comprises appointment of five vice chairmen for each area, plus zone leaders to work with them, and block leaders to work with 15 families each.

The block leaders, who will be in intimate neighborly contact with their family charges, will constantly advise on problems rising from the war, explaining food shortages, informing where some foods, scarce in one area, may be had in another, and in general interpret changing wartime regulations and applying the entire program effectively.

An attack will be made on the housing situation in cooperation with the National Housing Authority, Mrs. Linzel said.

Rentals will be scanned, together with determination of eligibilities of home seekers and possibility of conversion of premises to safely and healthfully care for additional tenants.

In essence, the block plan of the local war services division is a method of bringing neighbors together in teams for war and humane service.

On 15-Family Basis

Final element in the plan is the "block" headed by a leader. Each unit of 15 families is a block and may occupy a whole city block, an entire apartment building or one or both sides of a street.

"The intent is to create a healthy and democratic representation in a city-wide attack on civilian war problems," Mrs. Linzel declared. "It intends to bring neighbors into cooperative relation with each other and thus to act unitedly for the common welfare."

Hundreds of volunteers are needed as the program swings into action following months of preliminary planning, she said.

Those wishing to take part may obtain full information by calling Executive 5440, Extension 43.

Labor Opens Battle to Abolish Poll Tax As Mead Says President Backs Movement

By the Associated Press

Organized labor opened a drive yesterday to obtain Senate passage of a bill outlawing collection of the poll tax as a requirement for voting—a measure which Senator Mead (Democrat) New York, declared "The President and our party leaders" favor.

Mead's statement to a New York delegation followed testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee by Joseph A. Padway, general counsel for the American Federation of Labor, that his organization "is in this fight to the finish."

At the same time, Lee Pressman, general counsel for the Congress of Industrial Organization, told the committee that "the right to vote for Federal officials is a right protected by the Constitution," and not "a privilege to be conferred or withdrawn at the whim of any State."

Legality uestioned

The Senate committee heard arguments on the constitutionality of the House-approved measure to prohibit collection of the tax in eight Southern States as a requirement for voting in primaries or general elections for United States Senators, Representatives and presidential electors.

Although a filibuster stymied Senate action last fall, Mead told the New York delegation that the time now is "favorable" for revival of the legislation.

The judiciary committee will reconvene today for questioning of Pressman. Opponents of the bill will be heard later.

Padway declared it would be "a shocking and dangerous thing" if the Congress fails to eliminate the poll tax which termed a "blight upon our elective system."

Charges Fallacy

He said arguments against the bill's constitutionality were based on what he called the fallacy that "the right to vote in Federal elections is derived from the States," when "it is entirely a right of national citizenship."

Pressman asserted that the requirement in the Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Virginia, Texas, Arkansas, South Carolina and Tennessee disenfranchised 10 million citizens. Tennessee's legislature repealed the poll tax in that State, but the State courts challenged the validity of the repeal.

Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas told Padway "you folks in the AFL charge a poll tax before you let a man work."

The Texas Senator said he referred to "closed shop" contracts under which payment of initiation fees and dues are required of workers.

"I admire the astuteness of the question," Padway said, "but the cases are not parallel."

Smith Instructor Dies in Bathtub

Northampton, Mass., Oct. 25 (AP). Victoria L. Schrager, 24-year-old Smith College faculty member, today was found dead, of natural causes, in the bathtub of her suite by a maid who came to serve her breakfast.

Miss Schrager of Chicago was graduated from Smith in 1940 with highest honors. College spokesmen described her as "one of the most brilliant students ever to graduate from the college."

Court to Rule on Antitrust Status of Insurance Firms

by the Associated Press

The question whether the Sherman Antitrust Act applies to insurance companies was booked for scrutiny yesterday by the Supreme Court.

The subject already has been raised in Congress where legislation has been introduced to exempt insurance companies specifically from the 53-year-old Sherman law and leave regulation of their activities to the States.

Along with the insurance case, stemming from the dismissal by a lower court of antitrust charges against a group of Southeastern fire insurance companies, the Supreme Court also:

Agreed to review litigation which the Justice Department said would determine whether States and counties have the right to tax $1,500,000,000 worth of Government owned equipment and buildings used by private companies producing war goods. The Justice Department appealed from a Pennsylvania court decision sustaining an Alleghany County, Pa., real estate tax on gun-making machinery in the Mesta Machine Co. plant at West Homestead, Pa.

To Rule on Newsboys

Agreed to settle the question whether full-time newsboys are bona fide employes of a newspaper or independent contractors. The National Labor Relations Board ruled that such newspaper vendors in Los Angeles are employes and therefore entitled to bargaining rights under the Labor Relations Act. A Federal Circuit Court ruled otherwise.

"Joker" Refused Review

Refused a review to William T. Reid of New Orleans, convicted of threatening President Roosevelt by remarking that if he had the opportunity, he would kill the Chief Executive. The Justice Department said that Reid, sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment, contended he was only joking.

Refused to interfere with a Wisconsin Supreme Court decision restraining a union from trying to force workers, through threats and assaults, to join the union. The case involved two Allis-Chalmers workers at West Allis, Wis., and the Allis-Chalmers workers union local No. 248.

The insurance case involves 198 fire insurance companies in Alabama, Florida, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, and the Southeastern Underwriters Association, an organization of the companies.

Outcome Far-reaching

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood at Atlanta dismissed indictments charging the companies with fixing rates and creating a monopoly, asserting that the Supreme Court for 75 years had ruled that the insurance business is not commerce and the companies therefore are not subject to the Antitrust Act.

The Justice Department appealed, explaining that the outcome of the case would determine whether further proceedings would be taken against other insurance groups.

Approval of 8c Hourly Rail Wage Boost Urged on Vinson

Congressmen were reported yesterday to be urging Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson to approve a contract granting an 8-cent-an-hour wage increase to nonoperating employes of the country's railroads, as union representatives returned to Washington on three alternative plans of action to secure their increase.

The unions were said to be contemplating action along the following lines:

1. Taking of a strike ballot in accordance with the Railway Labor Act, along with the poll that representatives of 350,000 operating employes have decided to take. An announcement on this question is expected today.

2. A request to Congress to enact legislation directing Vinson to approve the contract. Considerable support for this action has appeared in both houses of Congress, it was understood.

3. An appeal to the courts contending that Vinson acted illegally when he upset the Railroad Emergency Board award of an 8-cent increase on which the contract was based later. Subsequently President Roosevelt set up a second emergency board to give further consideration to the railroad workers' demands. The union leaders contend that this board has no legal standing, but was created independently of the Railway Labor Act.

Meanwhile, Vinson acted to relieve a tense railroad situation in Southern California by announcing approval of an additional 5 cents an hour increase for Pacific Electric Railway employes to provide a total boost of 8 cents an hour.

Vinson acted after the War Labor Board, in a special Sunday session, approved a 5 cents an hour wage increase for the Los Angeles Railway Co. employes, reversing a previous flat turndown.

Last summer Vinson trimmed a recommended 13 cents an hour boost to Pacific Electric workers to 3 cents an hour after WLB turned down the Los Angeles workers.

WLB said that it acted on the basis of "new evidence." Vinson approved a report of a second emergency board which reviewed the earlier Pacific Electric decision. In trimming the PE increase last summer, Vinson hinted that he would have authorized the 8 cent an hour boost had WLB approved a 5 cent an hour boost for the Los Angeles workers.

At present PE employes holding key jobs are paid 3 cents an hour less than LA employes doing similar work. The two decisions will equalize their rates at a higher level.

Earlier, Representative Miller (Republican) of Missouri added his voice to those of legislators who protested Vinson's handling of the national railway cases.

Miller accused President Roosevelt of playing politics with the railroaders' wage demands, and predicted that the President will see that they get more money and then "claim the credit" for himself.

Mrs. E. H. Hart Dies in N. Y.; Author, Publisher's Daughter

U. S. Declared Having Record Coal Stock Pile

By The Associated Press

New York, Oct. 25.—The Bituminous Coal Institute today said the United States now has one of the greatest bituminous coal stock pile in history—approximately 100 million tons—and said the industry was prepared to meet additional production goals in 1944.

In reply to gloomy Washington reports of looming coal shortages, the institute said the visible United States stock pile totals 75 million tons. In addition there is an estimated 10 million-ton "floating" stock pile (in transit), and at least 15 million tons in the invisible stock pile stored away in American basements.

Unmoved by what it termed "supposition alarums," the institute said that the industry was prepared to meet the previously set 600 million-ton quota by the end of the year, and declared this amount could probably be upped to 650 million tons for 1944, if extra production were needed to meet United States and British demands.

Policy Meeting Slated

The policy committee of the bituminous industry is scheduled to meet in New York Tuesday to prepare an industry statement on the coal situation.

Based on the experience of many years, industry spokesmen declare the Nation need not fear suffering from shortages and said demands can be met with the following "ifs" as its only reservations:

If—1, there are no more strikes; 2, absenteeism can be reduced; 3, drafting of miners is halted, and, 4, ample replacement machinery is available.

The coal institute said that a slump of 350,000 tons in coal production during the week of October 16, was not significant in itself. It pointed to Government records showing production in that week was 150,000 tons higher than the amount produced in the same week during 1942.

Employees Praised

"Absenteeism" in the mines runs as high as 15 per cent daily, the institute said, but added that by far the greater percentage of mine employees were "loyal, hard-working patriots."

The institute said United States Labor Department figures showed that miners were second only to the building trades construction workers among high wage earners in the basic industry groups.

Quoting Government figures, the institute said miners are now averaging $42.76 for a 37.1-hour work week, which it declared was the same average weekly wages earned in the shipbuilding and aircraft industries.

"We have too high a rate of absenteeism among miners who work seven hours a week less than most industries," the institute said, "and this is one of the first problems to overcome before assuming higher production responsibilities."

M. H. von Pagenhardt

Maxmillian Hugo von Pagenhardt, 59, construction engineer, died at his home at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Pagenhardt was born in Stuttgart, Germany, and attended the Royal School of Cadets, in Berlin from which he graduated in 1904 as a lieutenant in the German army. He then was a student in the school of ensigns, at Potsdam, until 1905 and then was made a lieutenant in 120th Infantry Regiment, known as the Kaiser Wilhelm 11 Regiment. He studied naval architecture at the Royal Polytechnikum, Charlottenburg, where he graduated in 1910. In the same year he came to the United States.

In 1918 he married Miss Marie Dupuy Adams.

He was founder and president of M. H. Pagenhardt & Co., engineers, designers and constructors of power plants.

He is survived by one son, Pvt. Robert von Pagenhardt, USA.

Representative Springer (Republican) of Indiana urged Congress yesterday to eliminate "some of the 19 lending agencies operating under the Department of Agriculture."

Unless this is done a "dire national catastrophe faces this Nation," he told the House, "because small rural banks face slow death from Government-subsidized competition."

"Many of these depression-created agencies of government have long since served their purpose and should be liquidated."

Reporter Finds WAVES Versatile, Alert, Courageous in Best Tradition of Navy

By Christine Sadler

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 25.—If the WAVES we have seen in action at the Naval Air Training Center here and at the Naval Air Station in Atlanta on the way down are a good cross-section of Navy women personnel during World War II, we'd like to get in on the Navy Day celebration with a special message to Secretary Frank Knox.

Sir, the WAVES are shipshape and seamanlike, working as civilians rarely work, and very proud to be a part of the shore establishment of the greatest Navy in the world. They are pleased with the reception Navy men have accorded them and intend to keep on doing more than anybody ever thought they could.

We believe that 1000 or more women serving in the Navy at these fields and at Whiting Field, 40 miles away, are a true cross section—for they come from all States and before they went into uniform were everything from fashion models and school teachers to 10-cent-store clerks, interior decorators, and just girls going to college.

Teach Aviation

That they have measured up in naval aviation shows they can take on any job the Navy asks. They do not fly, but they are teaching thousands of cadets to fly. They do not shoot, but they are teaching gunnery—all by mechanical and scientific devices new to this war, and certainly new to the women.

They are bringing in planes, charting weather maps, and managing secret communications work. One ensign in charge of publications at the base here is entitled to wear a gun and she intends to do so as soon as she learns to shoot. When she goes off the station now she has to have a guard with her and she thinks that's a waste of manpower. Along with another WAVE officer she had a "fire party" each week to burn secret documents. While that sounds glamorous, they consider it a chore. It takes the papers a long time to burn, and they'd rather be back on the job really working.

Become Radio Technicians

Adelaide N. Glow, Radioman Third Class, is teaching radio communications to 100 cadets, hopes to open an amateur radio station when the war is over. Every cadet must know international Morse code. And how Glow drills them!! She's training six WAVES, too, and soon they will be teaching at other stations.

Admiral G. D. Murray, the commandant, was in favor of women sailors from the first and "can think of no job a woman is not capable of doing if she is given sufficient training." All he asks is more of them and, personally, he would like to see the age limit on WAVES lowered from 20 to 18 years to boost recruiting.

With few exceptions, this is the attitude typical of other Navy men.

At Whiting Field, where 297 WAVES are working as "mechs" or in the link trainers teaching boys to fly, the opinion is the same. Lieut. Comdr. James Ogden, who admitted he had misgivings at first, is finding them "fully adequate" and Commandant Gillespie is all-out complimentary. A WAVE had just taught instrument flying to Commander Gillespie and he knew she had done a good job.

"These Girls Are Good"

"Air navigation is something," he declared, "and these girls are good at it."

The Whiting WAVES have been living under "pioneer conditions" while the field was under construction and still cannot get accustomed to the idea of having hot water with which to get the plane grease from their hands.

Marie Prengaman, former inspector for Westinghouse, and Marjorie Matney, who taught school in Virginia—both now machinist mates third class—were working over an engine when we entered, doing "minor repairs," they said.

"We don't know how good we are," they declared, "but we do love it and the men mechs have been grand to us. We both want to be kitchen mechanics when this war is over, though."

Three other "grease monkeys"—Dorothy Schneider, who used to work in a department store; Betty Medved, who was a secretary, and Berenice Scheuerman, who did advertising in Baltimore—were busy on another plane.

Thrill in Fixing Starter

According to Medved and Scheuerman "fixing a starter and hearing it really run again" is the greatest thrill in their lives. They like the work, despite what it does to fingernails, and couldn't be more happily situated, they said. Schneider, however, felt she had been misclassified "whatever the aptitude test showed." She had wanted to be a storekeeper and believed she would eventually be transferred to that work. "I would be happy here, if I could do the work," she said. The other two smiled and urged we pay no attention to "Mech" Schneider. "She'll be all right. A lot of them think like that at first, but she'll learn," they declared.

The older WAVE officers declare they will wear flowers in their hair the day they are dismissed from the Navy and "go on a buying spree for silly hats." But on second thought, they also make an exception. "Never, never will we go back to high-heeled shoes," they laugh.

At Last! A Miracle of Protection Against Rust
...The Billion Dollar Thief!

It's Ready and Waiting to Save You Money after the War
RUST is a robber that takes a billion dollars a year out of America's pockets. But now, rust has been handcuffed by a miracle of protection called Corronizing.
Already this amazing development is helping metal resist rust in scores of places. In coastal areas, where salt air has been taking a terrible toll of steel. In the tropics where warm, humid air shortened the life of even the finest alloys. Today, in those hard proving grounds, "Corronized" metals are lasting up to four times longer!
And it will be "Corronized" metals that after the war will save you money by making hundreds of articles you buy last up to four times longer than ever before.
You'll find "Corronized" window screens, measuring cups, wire fence, waterspouts, milk cans, pails, stoves, garden tools, tractor parts, garbage cans, and automobile mufflers . . .
Corronizing is a new, simple and inexpensive way to protect metal from corrosion and rust. But until Victory is won, "Corronized" products must wait. The Standard Steel Spring Company, developer of Corronizing, is busy making armor plate, bombs and other war material. But after the war it will pay you to look for the "Corronized" label before you buy. It will be your guarantee of getting more for your money . . . of products that will serve you up to four times as long.

Postage Boost Suggested to Tax-Framers

the Treasury's proposed $10. For beer he proposed an increase from $7 to $8, where the Treasury asked. $10. For wine, he suggested 40 cents to $1.50 per gallon to replace rates now ranging from 10 cents to $1.

He asked that gasoline taxes be increased from 1.5 cents per gallon to 2 cents.

$4 on Cigarettes

Where the Treasury proposed increasing the tax on cigarettes from $3.50 a thousand to $5, Stam recommended a new rate of $4 a thousand, to net 125 million dollars in new revenue, or about one-third of what the Administration sought from that source. He proposed a range $5 to $40 per thousand cigars, double the present scale.

His program indorsed in modified form Treasury proposals to tax candy and chewing gum, and Stam also recommended placing a tax on pari-mutuel wagering. The rate on soft drinks would be 1 cent tax on a 5-cent bottle; on candy the tax would be 15 per cent of the manufacturer's sale price, and on betting, 22 per cent of total wagers.

Even Mouth Wash

He also proposed a 10 per cent manufacturer's excise on soap, tooth paste and mouth wash, to raise 10 million dollars.

Other proposed increases:

Large cigarettes, increase from $8.40 a 1000 to $9.60 a 1000; electrical energy, up from 3 1-3 to 5 per cent of the sales price; electric light bulbs, increase from 5 to 15 per cent on manufacturers' sales price.

A 15 per cent rate would take the place of the present 10 per cent levy on jewelry, furs and fur-trimmed articles, luggage, wallets, and handbags; lipstip and rouge.

The tax on local telephone messages would be 15 per cent instead of 10, and on long distance 25 per cent instead of 20. Domestic telegrams would be subject to a 20 per cent rate, and cables to 15 per cent; the corresponding rates are now 15 and 10 per cent.

Travel taxes would be 15 per cent instead of 10.

Where the tax on theater admissions and the like is now 1 cent for each 10 cents spent, Stam's proposal would boost the rate to 2 cents for each 15 cents of the admission price. Cabarets would have a 15 per cent tax in place of the present 5 per cent. There would be a $20 tax instead of $10 on each bowling alley or pool table.

Stam's postage plans would boost present postal revenues about 30 per cent, officials said. These revenues totaled about 965 million dollars in the current fiscal year.

Most Promising Sources

The biggest single increases would be derived from first class mail, 162 million dollars; third class postage, 74.4 million dollars; second class postage, 26 million dollars; air mail, 22 million dollars, and money orders, 21 million dollars.

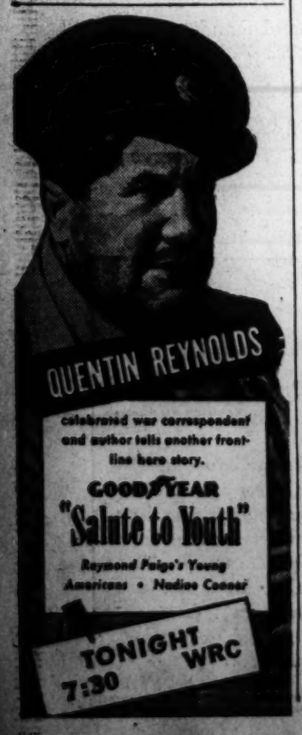
Stam's proposal called for applying the present 3 per cent tax on transportation of property to fourth class mail, and for doubling the second class, third class, insured and COD mail rates. Special delivery charges now ranging from 10 to 35 cents would be boosted to 12 to 40 cents, and registered mail from a range of 15 cents to $1 would go to a new scale running from 20 cents to $1.35.

Lanham to Speak At Dedication of Service Center

Representative Lanham (Democrat) of Texas, author of the Congressional Act which provided funds for the United Nations Service Center, will officiate at the dedication tomorrow.

Close to Union Station, the center will offer lodging and recreation services for transient servicemen, their families, and to servicewomen. Open house will be held between 10 a. m. and 9 p. m. today, and formal dedication will be at 5 p. m. tomorrow.

At the dedication tomorrow, Baird Snyder, 3d, assistant FWA administrator, will outline needs which the center will fill as he presents it to Floyd D. Akers, chairman of the War Hospitality Committee.



New Coal Mine Travel Payment Under Consideration by WLB

additional 37½ cents a day called for by the Illinois agreement is slated to be disallowed as an unvarnished wage increase, incompatible with the stabilization program.

Pay of 50 Cents an Hour

By sheer mathematical coincidence, this arrangement would pay miners for travel time at the rate of 50 cents an hour, exactly half the present work-time rate.

Actually, the proposed arrangement would give the miners about $1.15 a week more for a five-day week than they would have received by working the additional 45 minutes a day under their old seven-hour day contract, and about $2.30 a week more for a six-day week than they would have received by working the additional time under the old contract. Weekly "take home" wages are increased substantially, however, by the longer hours spent digging coal.

Over a week, the plan trims the original Illinois proposal about $2 for a five-day week and $3 for a six-day week.

Informed officials stated last night that this approach was favored by the public members of the board. Sources familiar with the board's procedures predicted that either the industry or labor bloc—probably the industry bloc—would side with the public members today to make a decision possible. However, other alternatives were also under consideration, it was learned.

More Miners Quit Work

The crystallization of WLB sentiment occurred as the Associated Press reported that the number of idle miners increased over the weekend to about 40,000, but that the number idle in Alabama—main trouble spot—actually decreased.

A WLB spokesman explained that the board took no action as a result of the strikes in the belief that UMW officials are making a "sincere effort" to get the men back to work. Saturday, Board Chairman William H. Davis warned the UMW that the board would call the Alabama stoppages to the attention of the President if they did not end promptly.

Strike Situation.

A roundup of the strike situation follows:

Alabama: Only 19,000 miners were out, compared to about 22,000 idle during the last 10 days.

Indiana: Nearly all deep mines employing 7000 miners were down—an increase over last week's daily average of about 3000 idle.

Pennsylvania: Comparatively quiet with only 600 idle until late yesterday when a big California, Pa., "captive" mine of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. became idle, bringing the State's idle to 2000.

Virginia: Approximately 1000 miners idle, with 11,000 working as usual.

Kentucky: An estimated total of 7500 idle. Partial resumption of work in the Big Sandy region.

Illinois: Idleness rose to 5500 compared with 4000 on Saturday.

West Virginia: About 700 men were idle, but more were expected to join the walkout on later shifts.

Six big mines went back into production in Alabama, according to the Associated Press, but crews were less than normal. UMW officials predicted that walkouts in the State would end soon, permitting a resumption of full steel production in the Birmingham area. However, captive mines of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., United States Steel Co. subsidiary, and generally the first affected by any walkouts in the State, remained down.

Bioff Takes Credit for Film Union Labeling

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—William Bioff, convicted extortioner and self-styled former boss of Hollywood, took credit today for union-labeling of motion pictures.

Continuing his testimony as a Government witness in the trial of eight men charged with extorting more than one million dollars from the motion picture industry, Bioff said that in 1937 he ordered producers to display the emblem of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage 7mployes, with which he was connected, on all films shown in this country and Canada.

"I told them no motion picture could be shown unless it bore the emblem of the IATSE," he said.

Bioff said he retained Sidney Korshak, whom he described as a Chicago lawyer, when he was returned to Chicago in 1939 to serve a unexpired term for pandering.

Korshak visited him in jail, the former union leader said, and told him Joseph Schenck, Twentieth Century-Fox executive, was "doing some talking in Washington." Bioff said he himself was facing an income tax indictment in Los Angeles, and Korshak suggested Schenck as a good victim in whose lap he could dump everything.

Bioff, with George Browne, former president of the IATSE, was convicted of extortion in 1941. He is currently serving a 20-year sentence.

Donald Jacocks, head of the Warner Brothers theater chain in northern New Jersey, testified his company paid $15,000 to Louis Kaufman, business agent of Newark Local 244, IATSE, and one of the defendants, in negotiation of a contract.

ness in wrecking German rail lines.

Tito again insistently charged he was having to fight Mihailovic's forces as well as Germans in the Montenegro-Albania border area.

The success of the guerilla campaign, however, was said by the Swiss radio to have irked Hitler to the point where he was planning to slice off one portion of Yugoslavia and add it to the Reich, giving Hungary another lump—probably as a bribe to keep a faltering satellite in the war.

Allies Bomb Tirana

Allied aviation bombed Tirana, capital of Albania, and raided Syros Island, southeast of Athens, Sunday.

The bombing of Tirana may be a spur to Albanian guerillas who a week ago were stirring against the German invaders.

Reports in Ankara said Bulgarian troops were moving into Yugoslavia to aid the Nazis against the guerillas and Bulgarian General Nikolof has set up headquarters between Nis and Skolpje.

The Ankara newspaper Aksham said Hitler was attempting to counter the Moscow tripartite conference by the creation of a Balkan confederation to set up a united front against the advancing Russians.

The correspondent said Bulgaria, Rumania, Croatia, Serbia, Montenegro and Albania would make up the federation.

Conflicting Claims

Cairo, Oct. 25 (AP).—Gen. Draja Mihailovic charged tonight that Partisans were not only attacking his Yugoslav army, but had claimed victories over the Germans for which his men alone were responsible.

King Peter's government, apparently angered by Partisan reports that Mihailovic's troops were fighting alongside the Germans against Josip Broz's guerillas issued the message. It said:

"The Partisans announced their formations had taken the towns of Nova Varos (in the hills 100 miles south of Belgrade) and Bilece. As a matter of fact our troops liberated Nova Varos from the Germans.

"While we were fighting the Germans far from the town, a Partisan unit entered it, attacking our forces there. Three days later their radio announced the capture of Nova Varos, although they were thrown back by our units the same day they entered. As far as the town of Bilece is concerned, it is firmly in the hands of democratic forces."

House Weighs Navy Contract Authority Bill

By the Associated Press

Legislation authorizing the Navy Department to make final settlements in Navy war contracts and approving payment of 90 per cent of the contract in advance of final settlement was introduced in the House yesterday.

Representative Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia, chairman of the House Naval Committee, who submitted the proposal, said it is similar to legislation now under consideration by the House Military Committee at the request of the War Department.

Under Vinson's bill the Government would be authorized to pay subcontractors directly or through the prime contractors, but would not hold the latter liable for excessive payments to the subcontractors. These would be refunded by the Government to the prime contractor and held against the subcontractor as a Government loan.

The Navy Department would also be authorized to make loans to contractors at not more than 6 per cent.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce's proposal to deny the comptroller general veto power over decisions of war service departments in reviewing advance payment claims and negotiated settlements on terminated contracts stirred sharp differences of opinion among members of the military committee.

Paul A. Shorb, a member of the chamber's committee on Federal finance, told the committee at a hearing that the proposal was made with a view to speeding up settlements. If Congress permits the comptroller general to sit in on the contract conferences, he should not be allowed to veto the decisions, although he should have authority in case of fraud, Shorb said.

Proceeding under the controller general's office, Shorb declared, would mean more audited settlements, thus creating delay. The service departments—War, Navy, Maritime and Treasury—could act quickly, he contended, through a central agency, under regulations to be made by Congress.

"If you shut the comptroller general out of the picture, what protection does the public have in cases where mistakes are made?" asked Chairman May (Democrat) of Kentucky.

Shorb replied that the C. of C. had not proposed that the comptroller general be shut out of reviews and negotiations entirely.

Representative Elston (Republican) of Ohio declared Shorb was "asking us to grant more power to one department (war) than has ever before been contained in a single bill."

Shorb contended an appeal could be taken to the courts from any unsatisfactory decisions.

The C. of C. proposed contractors and subcontractors be paid 75 per cent of their claims in advance on terminated contracts, the balance to be in loans or guarantee of loans at 4 per cent interest. The claims would be subject to a 30-day review. Excess advance payments would be treated as loans at 6 per cent interest.

Third Week Passes Without Shipping Loss in Atlantic

By the Associated Press

No announced losses of Allied or neutral shipping in the Western Atlantic were made last week, marking the third successive week without such announcements.

During the past nine weeks only two ships have been added to the list of U-boat victims in the Western Atlantic, now totaling 688 vessels.

Last week Vice Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the Eastern sea frontier, said only three ships have been sunk in the past 15 months in waters under his supervision, an area of 700,000 square miles from Canada to Florida ranging 300 miles seaward.

Admiral Andrews credited blimps, fast surface ships and planes, all working in close cooperation, as factors that have whittled down frontier losses from the peak period January through May, 1942.

Hellcat, New Fighter Plane, Outstrips Them All in Speed, Range, Altitude

By John G. Norris

Hitherto secret data on the performance and characteristics of the Grumman Hellcat were released by the Navy yesterday, revealing that the "hot" new carrier-based fighter plane has a speed of over 400 miles an hour and a longer range than virtually any other fighter now in action.

Range of the Hellcat was officially stated as "over 1500 miles," which compares with 1100-1300 mile range of the American Lightnings, Thunderbolts and Mustangs now operating at the fronts. Later models of these craft, about to go into combat are said to have much greater radius of action.

Many American fliers declare the new Grumman plane to be the best fighter now in existence, pointing to its record to date against the Japs. In the first clash with a superior force of Zeros, 21 of the latter were shot down with a loss of only two Hellcats.

Then in the recent attack on Wake Island our Hellcatse shot down 30 Zeros without a combat loss, officers revealed yesterday.

Officially, the Navy yesterday declared that the new fighter "in its short combat career" already has "established itself as one of the world's most effective military aircraft." These performance figures were released:

Speed—Is in the "400-mile-an-hour class" and "compares favorably with that of any plane in active service in any air force." It is "much faster than the fastest Japanese type now operating."

Altitude—Service ceiling is "over 35,000 feet," and "sufficiently high to assure that no enemy fighters or bombers will 'get on top' of the Hellcat."

Armament—Details of its firepower are still restricted, but it has been said that the Hellcat carries a respectable number of .50-caliber machine guns. Most important feature of its armament, airmen say, is that it carries much more ammunition than older craft.

The Hellcat, the Navy announcement disclosed, has a wing span of 42 feet, 10 inches, and its overall length is 33 feet, 6¼ inches. It is a single-engined, low-wing, all-metal, folding wing monoplane, with retractable landing gear, designed to operate either from carrier decks or land bases.

Like the Navy's other new fighter plane, the Vought Corsair, the Hellcat is powered by a 2000-horsepower Pratt and Whitney engine. The plan uses a three-bladed Hamilton Standard propeller.

Designed and put into production since Pearl Harbor, the Hellcat was developed to beat the Jap Zero. The Navy fighter then in service, the Grumman Wildcat, bore the burden until recently, is less maneuverable and cannot climb with the Zero, though having the advantage of greater armor, fire-power and structural strength. The successor to the Wildcat has all its virtues, plus outstanding performance in what it lacked.

Cabman Held in Traffic Death

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered that Alfred Church Young, Negro, 47, of 1833 T st. nw., be held for action of the grand jury under the Negligent Homicide Act. Young is alleged to have been operator of a cab which struck Dr. Harry Woodward, 75, of 2039 New Hampshire ave. nw., October 11 at 14th and W sts. nw. Dr. Woodward died several hours later at Garfield Hospital of a fractured skull, hemorrhage and shock.

In a second case George H. Le Carpentier, 30, of 1474 Columbia rd. nw., was exonerated by the coroner's jury in the death of Herman Evans, Negro, 71, of 1438 Newton st. nw., who died at Emergency Hospital, October 20, shortly after he was struck at 14th and Swann sts. nw. by a Capital Transit streetcar, operated by Le Carpentier. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

James A. Fincham, 46, of Rappahanock, Va., was instantly killed early yesterday morning when he was struck on Route 211, one-half mile east of Fort Washington, Va., by a car operated by Pvt. Theodore C. Sipe of Fort Belvoir, Va. According to police Private Snipe stated that Fincham darted out in front of his car. Coroner T. B. McCord of Fairfax County issued a certificate of accidental death yesterday.

Meanwhile two persons were injured slightly in a traffic accident early yesterday when a car, operated by William E. Austin, 27, Army Air Base, Baltimore, Md., collided at 11th and M sts. se., with a car, operated by Fred M. Plummer, 44, 1422 Potomac ave. se. The injured were Agnes Skinner, 55, of 513 M st. sw., who was admitted to Casualty Hospital for possible fracture of the right ankle and right elbow, and Lorraine Cordle, 32, of 515 M st. sw., who received slight leg injuries but refused medical treatment. Both were passengers in Plummer's car.

BOTH ARE DRIVING TOWARD VICTORY!

Thousands of our Greyhound men and women are in the Services today. Their technical skill as drivers, mechanics, transportation experts is helping them tackle me of the toughest war jobs with greater success. Other thousands are serving America at home — working hard to give you and millions of essential wartime travelers the best and most efficient transportation possible. They're moving the Nation's manpower along a front that's 65,000 miles long—operating the task force of the highways. Their job—like that of the Armed Forces—is to help America win!

Case For Prodding

We hope that the District Commissioners will not miss their opportunity to carry the local mad-dog problem to Congress. Our city council on the Hill, or at least an important segment of that council, was quick to demand the scalps of local officials when the disgraceful situation at Gallinger Hospital was exposed. The city fathers ought to be equally agile in throwing the burden of responsibility for misgovernment of the District back upon Congress whenever the occasion warrants it. And the mad-dog problem, under the present absurd system, is clearly one that demands the attention of the House and Senate.

Over a period of 65 years Congress has not trusted the local government to use its discretion in the handling of rabid dogs. It has maintained on the statute books specific instruction as to the muzzling of canine pets when an outbreak of rabies occurs. Health authorities of the District, the Federal Government and nearby suburban communities have agreed that the muzzling of dogs is an ineffective measure against rabies. Neighboring counties in Maryland put quarantines into effects weeks ago. Falls Church, Va., is contemplating revision of its ordinance so as to make protection of its residents against mad dogs more complete. But the poor, impotent District of Columbia must await the enactment of a statute by Congress before it can employ up-to-date methods of fighting this epidemic.

It is true, of course, that the congressional calendars are overloaded with important legislation dealing with national and international affairs. To divert the attention of Congress to mad dogs in the Capital at a time like the present is an appalling misuse of governmental machinery. Yet the problem is there and so long as Congress insists on retaining for itself the responsibilities of a city council, it should be sharply reminded of its failure to act as a city council. If the Commissioners were alert to the interests of the community, they would be prodding Congress to amend its obsolete law as sharply as the Holman Committee prodded District officials when the Gallinger situation was exposed.

Morals And The Mail

It would be instructive to examine the circulation figures of Esquire before and after the Post Office Department's inquiry into the morals of that sprightly magazine. Censors, from time immemorial, have been potent publicity agents. Many a book which, without their animadversions, might have been born to blush unseen has won renown through notoriety and brought a blush of shame, embarrassment or innocent amusement to a host of readers who might otherwise have passed it by. Guarding the public's morals is at best a thankless task, since it is altogether doubtful that the public desires to be guarded.

The magazine, we fancy, will not suffer from the current inquiry. True, its jokes are no more likely than any others to profit from laboratory inspection. A good joke simply cannot bear dissection. The whole amounts to something more than the sum of its parts. Reaction to it must be spontaneous, and the only gauge which can be applied to its merit must lie in the chuckle or guffaw which it elicits from its hearer. There is a fundamental incompatibility between obscenity and humor. If a jest is funny, it cannot at the same time be lewd.

Some of this reasoning can be applied to cartoons as well. A number of Esquire's drawings, however, have been designed to delight the eye, in addition to tickling the funnybone. And these are the drawings which have titillated the moral sense of the Post Office Department. Undeniably the magazine's girls are girls. The magazine's artists, indeed, sometimes stress their femininity so that not even the most callow youth would be likely to mistake the models for males. This, it is reliably reported, has won great favor for the publication among our men in uniform who prize its illustrations for pin-up purposes. We cannot help regarding this, on the whole, as a not unworthy contribution to the war effort.

No less an authority than the secretary of Boston's famed Watch and Ward Society has declared after inspecting some of Esquire's "girls" that, "after profound consideration of the subject, I didn't find anything bordering on the indecent or in any way lewd." In fact, this expert said he couldn't figure out why the Post Office Department had picked on the magazine in the first place. No more can we. It makes sense, of course, to deny second class mailing privileges, to plain pornography. But not even the most puritanical postmaster could place the magazine in this category. The only questions involved in this inquiry are questions of propriety. And they can best be left for settlement to the magazine's subscribers. After all, one man's mirth may be another man's prurience. The Postmaster General, we think, may have a hard time explaining how he came to be out hunting such comely witches.

Mr. Garey's Whitewash

Presumably the Lea Committee investigating the FCC has not yet decided whether to carry on with the counsel who helped to bring the committee into disrepute under the chairmanship of Representative Cox. A speech by that counsel, Eugene L. Garey, before the Radio Executives Club in New York the other day should help the committee to make up its mind. Mr. Garey told the radio executives that the charge to the effect that Mr. Cox's resolution "was introduced for the purpose of visiting reprisal on the FCC for certain so-called evidence it claimed to have discovered in connection with Judge Cox . . . is false." "If you get down to what came first, the hen or the egg," he went on to say, "the thing that came first was the resolution."

Here are the facts as they were related by Commissioner Clifford J. Durr, with thorough documentation, in his petition to Speaker Rayburn which lead to Mr. Cox's resignation from the committee chairmanship. Twice in 1940 Mr. Cox commended the FCC and demanded an investigation of the broadcasting industry. One reason he gave for sponsoring such an inquiry was that the industry was inspiring an attack upon the chairman of the FCC. The Congressman changed his tune two days after the FCC received a letter, in response to its inquiry into the stockholdings of two individuals who had testified in another case, revealing the existence of the Albany Herald Broadcasting Co., theretofore unknown to the commission. It was this company in which Congressman Cox had become a stockholder as a reward for his "legal services." (He had importuned the FCC to license the station in question, WALB.) As soon as the cat was out of the bag Mr. Cox denounced the FCC as an "ambitious Gestapo" and announced that he would introduce a resolution to have it investigated. His resolution came along five days later, but it died with the Seventy-seventh Congress.

Station WALB later asked the FCC to renew its license, change its frequency and assign its license to the Albany Herald Broadcasting Co., in which Congressman Cox was still a stockholder. The commission instructed its staff to proceed with hearings on these applications on January 5, 1943. The next day Mr. Cox again denounced the commission in a statement to the press for alleged terroristic control over communications and reintroduced his resolution. Its approval by the House was accompanied by one of the most malicious attacks that has ever been made on a Government agency by Mr. Cox or any other member of Congress.

In the face of this damning record Mr. Garey has the effrontery to whitewash his former boss in a public address and to pretend that the charges which forced Mr. Cox's resignation are false. It is difficult to imagine a more complete demonstration of his unfitness to continue directing the investigation of the FCC under the rules of fair play laid down by the reorganized committee.

Melitopol

With the capture of Melitopol and the advance on Krivoi Rog, the Red army's fall offensive appears to be building up to a terrific climax. It is no longer a question whether the Germans will succeed in establishing a defensible winter line, but whether they will succeed in extricating from the Dnieper bend and the Crimea the considerable forces now threatened with entrapment. No wonder, then, that Moscow reports tell of the Nazis throwing in more planes, tanks, troops and artillery in what is clearly a desperate effort to avoid such a disaster.

The Red army's immediate objective in the Dnieper bend is, of course, Krivoi Rog. Here Russia's greatest iron deposits are to be found. Important as are the economic gains which Russia would derive from the recapture of that city, however, they would be outweighed by its strategic advantages. For at Krivoi Rog the Red army would be within easy reach of the rail line running from Znemenka (which is already threatened) to Nikolaev, the terminus of the railroad running northwest out of the Crimea. Unless, therefore, the Russians are stopped in their tracks, an encirclement movement of even greater magnitude than that which the Red army successfully carried out at Stalingrad would be on its way to success.

This danger may explain in part the prolonged conferences reported to have taken place between Hitler and his army chiefs as well as with some of the leaders of the Balkan satellite states. They may also explain in part the stern warnings against defeatism which are being issued to the German people by Goebbels and Himmler. With the Allied aerial offensive showing no letup, and making Hamburgs of an increasingly long list of German cities, the Germans are now confronted with a Russian sweep of enormous magnitude. The outlook for the Reich is anything but bright, and while we must not assume that their morale has cracked, it is undoubtedly weakening steadily.

Hawaiian Case

The issue over habeas corpus in Hawaii may blow over as a result of the release of two German-American internees who were held incommunicado by the military authorities. It appears that Lieutenant General Richardson had acted under orders of General Marshall. But the denial of habeas corpus has revived an interest in precedents which shows a healthy vigilance in behalf of our civil liberties. A number of references have been made to the Milligan case. This, of course, is the classic instance involving the power of military administrators to suspend the right of habeas corpus among civilians arrested in wartime and to try them in military courts.

Lambdin P. Milligan was a citizen of Indiana, whose political persuasion in 1864 seems to have been that of a Copperhead, that is to say, of a secessionist sympathizer living in a Northern State. He was arrested on the order of the commander of the Indiana military district. He was tried by military tribunal, convicted of conspiracy to aid the rebels and sentenced to be hanged. Seven months after his arrest, and one month after the end of the Civil War, he appealed to the Federal Circuit Court for a writ of habeas corpus. The case did not reach the Supreme Court until the following year. It was argued at great length at a memorable session in March, 1866. In April of the same year the court decided unanimously that the military commission which had tried Milligan had been without lawful authority. The formal opinion, however, was not given until December. By this time, it appears, Milligan had been released under President Johnson's general amnesty, but the question involved had long since transcended his personal fate.

The same question is very much with us today, 77 years after Justice David Davis handed down the opinion of the majority of the court. This opinion drew a careful distinction between the suspension of habeas corpus in time of invasion or rebellion, as provided in the Constitution and specifically authorized by Congress in 1863, and the trial of civilian citizens under martial law, which, Justice Davis said, had no constitutional warrant and was utterly unjustified in areas where the civil courts continued to function. The principle at issue between Judge Metzger and Lieutenant General Richardson in Hawaii appears to be precisely on all fours with that involved in the Milligan case. And it induced Justice Davis to conclude that "Civil liberty and this kind of martial law cannot endure together; the antagonism is irreconcilable; and in the conflict one or the other must perish."

There is, however, a peculiar situation in existence in Hawaii. In the organic law of Hawaii Congress gave power to the civil governor to suspend writs of habeas corpus in case of "rebellion or invasion or imminent danger thereof, and when the public safety requires it." After Pearl Harbor such a proclamation was issued, and Hawaii came under full military law. Later some relaxation was allowed. Thus the civilian court feels that the very relaxation has ended the condition requiring the suspension of habeas corpus. This is the factual side of the dispute. However, since the Constitution follows the flag, it would seem that in this case the authority of suspension should have been specifically given by Congress.

Community Drive

With the closing days of the campaign at hand, the Community War Fund is still an uncomfortable distance from its goal. Some, perhaps, have failed as yet to chip in through sheer carelessness or oversight. Some, because of the stringency of other obligations, may have closed their ears and eyes to the appeal. It is a good time for every Washingtonian to pause and ask himself how well he has met his responsibilities as an individual to the community of which he is a part. This is a question which each of us must answer for himself.

The War Fund is an opportunity as well as an obligation. It is an avenue through which everyone can play a direct part in giving aid to the victims of war abroad, to the men and women of our fighting services and to those at home whom misfortune has handicapped or deprived of the privileges which we enjoy. This is a kind of aid which calls imperiously upon our generosity. If the giving of it entails sacrifice, it also carries warm satisfaction. It links all those who participate in a common fellowship which is the essence of our democratic way of life.

MOMENT OF GAZING

Let the book lie upon the knee,
And turn the slow and studious gaze
To the green leaf on the green tree:
It flourishes for certain days.

Be patient, be attentive, now;
This is the moment of event;
See the leaf loosened from the bough,
And the bough careless that it went.

See the air golden where the leaf,
All unregarded, seeks the ground,—
The way, ambiguous and brief,
The sound, a very little sound . . .

What will the book upon your knee
Tell you in half a hundred days,
That is not here for him to see
Who looks with slow and studious gaze?

Philippine Government

By Vicente Villamin

Constitution-buster

IT IS REPORTED in the press that the President of the United States has been asked by the President of the Philippines to engage in the perilous business of Constitution-busting by submitting to him for decision the question of whether the Philippine Constitution is still in operation here, although his government has functioned under it since its arrival in Washington over a year ago.

On November 15 next, President Quezon will have reached the constitutional time limit of eight consecutive years as President and will then have to give way to Vice President Sergio Osmena. This is quite in accordance with the Philippine Constitution. If, however, the charter is declared inoperative, then President Quezon is expected to continue in office until the cessation of the war. That is the long and short of the situation.

The Constitution, which may be set aside, came into existence by authority of the Act of Congress of March 24, 1934, which provides for Philippine independence in 1946. It was drafted by a constitutional convention at Manila in 1935, adopted by the Filipino electorate and approved by the President of the United States. If that act is a compact between the United States and the Philippines, the Constitution is the essence of that compact, and it can only be dissolved by dissolving the act itself, a course that would reverse America's liberal policy toward the Philippines.

Domestic Legislation

Since the Constitution is a part, by derivative process, of an American domestic legislation, there can be no doubt that it is in operation in the United States mainland and its enforcement does not constitute extraterritoriality.

The temporary military occupation of the Philippines by the enemy does not diminish by an iota the American sovereignty in those islands, nor does it disturb the legal continuity of its juridical instrumentality there, which is the Philippine government, wherever it may find itself through the exigencies of the war. It follows, therefore, that the Constitution is in full force and effect and its provisions should be observed as far as practicable pendente bello.

The sovereignty of the United States in any portion of its national domain, which includes the Philippines, is indestructible and coexists with the Nation's life; and any act of intrusion by any foreign power, however successful, affects only the physical possession of the domain thus occupied but not its sovereign ownership. The expulsion of the intruder is only a matter of time.

As the Japanese invaders have not in law destroyed the Philippine government and its Constitution in the incubus of American sovereignty, it is hard to understand the attempt now being made by some of its officials, through the use of strained interpretations and in defiance of the principle of estoppel, to try to do what the invaders have not succeeded in doing.

The absurdity of the attempt is stressed by the suggestion that President Roosevelt intervene to preserve the Philippine Constitution and the government under it, for once it is admitted that that Constitution is operative here the conclusion is irresistible that the President of the United States is being importuned to intervene to defend the constitution from the assault of no other than President Quezon himself.

Philippine Assembly

The act of the Philippine Assembly of December 14, 1941, is believed by some to allow President Quezon, if he so desires, to disregard the constitutional time limitation. That act did nothing but empower him to take all legal measures and coordinate all activities and resources for the more effective waging of the war. It could not have authorized him to perpetuate himself in office for the assembly did not have that power. Such action would have amounted to amending the constitution by unconstitutional method. President Quezon's powers, under the abovementioned act, were substantially similar to those of President Roosevelt's under the war emergency laws, and no one would ever suggest that the American President would or could suspend or amend the Constitution of the United States so he can go on in office indefinitely.

The incumbent President and Vice President were elected on November 11 and took the oath of office under the constitution on December 30, 1941, 22 days after the Japanese began their invasion of the islands. Thus they recognized the authority of that fundamental document. Later they came here and functioned under it. There is now no consistency or justification in trying to eliminate it as the source of their authority and power.

If the Philippine government succeeds in having its Constitution suspended and busted—and that is the meaning of the invitation to President Roosevelt to pass on its validity when it is challenged by no one—by what authority would that government then exist and function?

The Connally Resolution

LIKE A RUBBER blanket, the Connally resolution regarding American postwar policy is capable of being stretched to cover a great variety of strange bedfellows, but is too cold and clammy to warm any of them.

It bears the name of the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who is anything but an isolationist; but it also has the approval of certain Senators who are nothing else but.

It can mean all things to all men. Properly implemented, it can prove to be, as Senator Connally says it is, a "forward step" significant of an "advanced and responsible attitude toward foreign relationships." As it stands today, however, it is a draft on a bank unendowed with funds.

THE CONNALLY resolution consists altogether of only 65 words, of which 36 in all have to do with postwar policy. The third paragraph reads:

"That the United States, acting through its constitutional processes, join with free and sovereign nations in the establishment and maintenance of international authority with power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

If this sentence is read hurriedly its meaning appears to be clear, namely, that if the committee's recommendation is carried out the United States will form part of an international body capable of suppressing aggression.

But a closer study of the resolution creates doubt whether this sentence must necessarily be interpreted in this fashion.

FIRST OF ALL, there is the stipulation that the United States act "through its constitutional processes."

What does this mean? Does it merely mean that before the President or anyone else can commit the United States to any specific program of action in international affairs, the Senate will have to give its approval?

If that is all that the clause was intended to mean, then it was unnecessary to include it. Obviously, any treaty or covenant the Chief Executive makes with foreign powers will be subject to the Senate's constitutional authority to approve or disapprove.

OR IS THE CLAUSE merely a pointed reminder that while the Senate is willing to be on its way, it doesn't yet know where it is going; that while it is willing to talk generalities of postwar cooperation, it is unwilling or unready at this time to commit itself beyond generalities?

If that is the meaning of the "constitutional processes" clause, then we are obviously back where we started from. For it will always be possible for a third of the Senate plus one, to say that while they believe in American participation in a program of enforcing peace, they are opposed to the particular plan that may be worked out.

THIS, in fact, is precisely what happened in 1919.

Only a handful of Senators at that time were opposed to a League. What more than a third of them were opposed to was Wilson's League.

Thus, on January 29, 1919, one Senator declared:

"I am very frank to say that if the President can return to the United States with a league of nations which does not relinquish our sovereignty and which in reality will be a preventive of future wars, I shall welcome most gladly and enthusiastically this great accomplishment."

The Senator who said that was, believe it or not, Hiram Johnson of California who was so soon to discover that the league which Wilson brought back from Paris was not what he, Johnson, had had in mind at all.

REMEMBERING the great todo the Senate made about sovereignty in 1919 some will be excused for viewing with suspicion the clause in the Connally resolution which speaks of the United States joining with "free and sovereign nations."

Obviously since only free and sovereign nations can form part of an international order the emphasis given on this clause in the resolution suggests that no arrangement must be made which restricts the freedom or impairs the sovereignty of the United States, the Senate, of course, determining whether it does or not.

FINALLY, the question arises as to just what is meant by "power to prevent aggression and to preserve the peace of the world."

This seems like full and complete abandonment of isolation. It may mean just that although the rejection by the committee of the more precise and clear-cut Pepper and Wagner amendments raises doubts on that score.

It is obvious that in the effort to achieve unity the Senate Foreign Relations Committee sacrificed clarity. The suspicion will not down that the Senate resolution merely expresses Senate irresolution.

Need For Procurement Policy

I have been very much interested in your editorials this week entitled "Basis for Economy" and "High Costs." They indicated that there was at long last a realization of the great importance to the entire economy of the careful pricing and allocation of war materials. I was, therefore, the more disappointed in reading your editorial of this morning entitled "Savings or Taxes," which treated economies in war spending as only an "adjunct of a new tax program." I am not taking issue with your espousal of a sales tax upon which I believe there can be and are honest differences of opinion. But I regret your failure to realize how closely the inflation problem is related to faulty procurement and the inadequate analysis of the cost factors in war production, either in the original negotiation of contracts or in the renegotiation procedure.

We know that as a result of this lack of policy there have been not only excess but excessive profits, that the prices of war materials have been too high, that the salaries of managements have been increased unconscionably. But what we do not so clearly recognize is that stemming out of this situation has also been the increase in our cost of civilian goods, the rise in the cost of living, the pressures against wage limitations and price ceilings and the black markets. But these results are the inevitable consequences of the avoidance of proper cost analysis in the allocation of war business and these consequences will be accentuated if the same methods are employed in the termination of war contracts and the reconversion of industry to peace.

In response to the cry for speed in production in 1941 the much needed goods began to be delivered to be sure but we also had as a result the inflation of costs, prices and profits, bottlenecks of materials and manpower and a new group of war millionaires which a glance at the recently issued Treasury list of income tax payers for 1941 will clearly show. We are now hearing a cry for speed in termination and reconversion from the same quarters and if the same boys handle this that handled the war procurement we shall surely have saddled on the economy an exorbitant cost structure terrifically inflated prices and undoubtedly a brand new group of postwar millionaires.

Failure to require contractors to relate costs to adequate performance has enabled them not only to set their prices too high at the outset but also consistently to hold this level and even increase it, justifying the initial estimates by uncontrolled spending for labor, materials and general expenses. As an illustration, over two-thirds of the requests for increased wages which have been submitted to the War Labor Board have come from employers and not from employes or their representatives. The contractor to be sure pays an excess profits tax and is also subject to renegotiation but nowhere along the line is he called upon to justify these increased expenses by analysis of his production performance.

It may be granted that at the outset of war production it was difficult for the procurement agencies to make conservative estimates on war contracts but the vast experience which they have enjoyed should long ere now have permitted them to be more accurate. The amounts recaptured by the Government in excess profits taxes and through reconversion provide a measure of the failure of procurement.

These refunds, however, do not provide any cure for the inflation which has taken place in the civilian economy. Perhaps prices here and there on new contracts may be reduced but these cases are too rare. The damage has been done, costs have been raised, the pressures have been precipitated. Only by the complete reversal of the policy of procurement can this spiral of inflation be stopped or turned downward. This could be brought about if the onus of careful cost analysis were thrown where it belongs, that is, upon the war contractor himself. Firstly, the Government agents must cut prices on new contracts substantially. Their experience should enable them to do this. But secondly, if they err on the side of too low a price the renegotiation process could and should be employed, not only as it is now to recapture excessive profits, but also, as it was originally intended, to insure to the contractors a reasonable profit, that is by an upward adjustment of profits.

Cutting prices on Government contracts would be more effective than present price and wage controls. These merely freeze a given level of inflation but price reduction on war contracts could actually roll back the cost of living because Government business is by far the biggest influence in the national economy.

By not seeking to improve procurement the fact must be faced that all along the line the war contractor is now confronted with a system of rewards which penalizes him for estimating and planning for low cost production and rewards him for high cost showings. Initially his prices are set by relating "a reasonable profit" to his estimates. The higher the estimate the larger the "reasonable profit." In renegotiation his "reasonable profits" are determined by his overall cost showings; however, many factors the price adjustment boards may take into account. Finally, under the present corporate taxes both his postwar security and his "take home money" can only be increased by his successful resistance to price reduction.

On the other hand, a contractor faced with lower prices will perforce study his costs, will economize, will help make up the deficit in manpower by laying off unnecessary labor. He will have a real incentive for economy and efficiency of production. Such an incentive is totally lacking in the present setup. The reorientation of our procurement policies toward lower prices would have an immensely beneficial effect upon orderly transition to peace production and the soundness of the national economy in the years after the war.

Kremlin Conference

Molotov—They're here.

Stalin—How do they look?

Molotov—Pale, polite and persistent. I thought Secretary Hull seemed done in by the long plane journey.

Stalin—Nonsense. Those Americans love long plane trips. They must; they're always making them. Did they bring much luggage?

Molotov—Quite a few trunks.

Stalin—A lot of blueprints of the postwar world I suppose. How they turn those things out!

Molotov—Shall I show them in?

Stalin—Yes. It's your parley but I'll see them for a few minutes.

Stalin (as Secretaries Hull and Eden enter)—Ah, Comrade Hull!

Hull (wincing)—Brother Stalin!

* * * *

Molotov—Did you have a pleasant trip, Mr. Hull?

Hull—Yes, but I hate this parachute part of it.

Molotov—You're not in a parachute.

Hull—I must be, I seem to be floating in space.

Stalin—That's because of all those postwar ideas you are carrying. Do you have any sensations of being in parachute descent, Mr. Eden?

Stalin (to Mr. Hull)—See! He's a realist!

* * * *

Molotov—This is your first trip to Russia, Mr. Hull?

Hull—Yes. But I feel that I know a lot about it. I've read Willkie.

Stalin—How is Willkie's new movie "Second Mission to Moscow" coming on?

Mr. Hull—You're thinking of Mr. Davies.

Stalin (a little confused)—Possibly. So many of you Americans write so many books. Are you with Warner Brothers or Paramount now?

Mr. Hull—Neither. I do not contemplate either a book or a scenario.

Stalin (quite surprised)—Amazing! I shall order another eighteen-gun salute.

* * * *

(There is a terrific disturbance.)

Hull—Is that the salute?

Stalin—No; that must be Pravda getting out another editorial on the demand for a second front.

Molotov (to Mr. Hull)—We are all going to get along famously if we all talk the same language.

Mr. Hull—Are you implying that I must speak Russian with a Tennessee accent? Never!

Molotov—Im speaking figuratively. What I mean is that we must all put our cards on the table.

Stalin—Precisely. Here's the deck.

Mr. Hull—I brought my own.

Mr. Eden—Me, too.

Molotov—Don't you trust this one. It's Premier Stalin's personal deck?

Messrs. Hull and Eden—That's what we're afraid of.

* * * *

Mr. Eden—Are you with us to the finish in our stand for the unconditional surrender of Germany?

Stalin—Conditionally, yes.

Hull—How can anybody be for an unconditional surrender conditionally?

Stalin—I can see you do not really understand the European mind!

* * * *

Hull—Have you read the Senate subcommittee's resolution.

Stalin—I have. I guess it's what you Americans call batting practice.

(There is another crash.)

Hull—What was that?

Stalin—I guess that's Pravda reacting again.

Philippine Problem

The only solution to the Philippine problem, as I see it, would be the establishment of a new international order which would make impossible for any nation to covet any other nation's wealth and acquire that wealth by the force of arms. The main thing, then, is to defeat and crush Japan as a military power and to smash the aggressors. Until that is done there will be no independence for either the Philippines or any other small nation. TEDDY DE NOLASCO.

Today And Tomorrow

Governor Landon's Boner

THE SPEECH which former Governor Landon delivered last week contains the following statement:

"The only foreign policy the Administration has approved, and that by indirection, is the old discredited theory of a balance of power alliance. Alliances tend to separate the nations of the world rather than to pull them together. Especially is this true of the proposed exclusive alliance . . . I submit that the proposed British-American alliance is joint isolationism."

LIPPMANN

Since Governor Landon is supposed to be a responsible man, we have a right to ask him who has proposed an exclusive British-American alliance. He says in a public speech that "the Administration" has "approved" and "proposed" an exclusive alliance. When and by whom was an exclusive alliance proposed? The answer is that nobody who matters, not the President, the Prime Minister, Mr. Eden, Mr. Hull, Mr. Welles, Mr. Connally has approved or proposed an exclusive British-American alliance. If Governor Landon does not know that, it is because he hasn't taken the trouble to read the newspapers, much less to investigate the subject, before making his inflammable speech.

FOR IT is an inflammable speech. When a man who has been candidate for President of the United States tells the world that Britain and America are proposing an alliance which excludes Russia, China, France, our Latin-American neighbors, and our other European Allies, he is making a charge which, if it were believed abroad, would break up the United Nations and plunge the world into anarchy.

Yet all the world cannot be expected to know that Governor Landon has not read the newspapers or talked with anybody who knows the facts. Since the relations between the British and ourselves — from the United Kingdom through Canada to Australia and New Zealand—are those of a close working partnership, it is an inflammable thing to say that we are contemplating turning this working partnership into an exclusive alliance. It can only inflame jealousy and suspicion by the circulation of what is in fact a plain, unvarnished untruth.

The mischief of such reckless talk is that if it goes undenied, many will believe it. If it is denied, refuted, and denounced, it is advertised and treated more seriously than it deserves.

IT IS, however, easy to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that there cannot possibly be any truth in Governor Landon's charge, and that he has invented it without any evidence whatever. Every official statement from British and American sources has contemplated an eventual world organization, emerging from the grand alliance of the United Nations within which Britain, Russia, China, and the United States would be the principal guarantors of peace. There have been and there are some differences of opinion as to the responsibility which various other nations are able to discharge—what, for example, is to be the original role of France, whether China can assume responsibility outside of Eastern Asia and the Western Pacific.

But no one has ever proposed to exclude Russia. On the contrary it is the settled conviction in London and Washington that the inclusion of Russia is indispensable to any hope of order and peace. If any one were proposing to exclude Russia, would Mr. Eden, would Mr. Hull, have gone to Moscow—would Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt be waiting for the agreement to go half way around the world to meet Mr. Stalin? How then dare any one speak of a proposed exclusive British-American alliance when the whole effort of our diplomacy for more than a year has been to achieve an inclusive alliance?

GOVERNOR LANDON seems never to have heard of, and certainly never to have read, the Anglo-Soviet treaty signed May 26, 1942, with our approval. In that treaty, as Mr. Molotov explained, Part II provides for the collaboration of Britain and Russia "with other United Nations in the peace settlement and in the postwar period." So the fact is that while Governor Landon talks about an exclusive British-American alliance, the British already have a 20-year alliance with Russia to collaborate with the United Nations.

This is carrying loose talk beyond the permissible limits of loose talking. If Governor Landon is not prepared to retract his baseless charge, he ought at least to relapse into a decent silence on matters concerning which he is manifestly altogether ignorant.

Wartime Washington

By Merlo Pusey

Morale-Shattering Psychology

MORALE on the home front is beginning to sag again. The tornado that John L. Lewis whipped up some months ago is again sweeping through some of the country's coal mines with potentially disastrous results. A formidable army of railroad workers is threatening to cripple the Nation's transportation system in order to force compliance with its inflationary demands. And Congress appears to be falling down lamentably in its obligation to enact taxes that will pay a reasonable part of the cost of the war.

PUSEY

Further evidence of softening on the home front may be found in a White House conference of last week. Labor leaders pleaded for relaxation of wage restrictions and lower food prices in spite of the fact that take-home wages are going up and living costs down. President Roosevelt in turn promised to press his demands for subsidies to help pay consumers' food bills.

We might suppose, if we didn't know better, that the faces of the people were being ground into the sordid realities of war. Actually, very few of us on the home front have experienced anything more than superficial inconveniences. The average industrial worker is still putting in only 45 hours a week. There has been no step-up of working hours since April, and an increase of only two hours a week in the last year. Compared with what other nations at war are doing, we are still fighting in very leisurely fashion on the home front.

YET MANY powerful groups are bleating in public over the "sacrifices" they are making. Their attitude demands thoughtful consideration because of the effect it has upon troops at the fighting front as well as upon workers at home. General Eisenhower said the other day that his men who are bearing the brunt of battle "want to be assured above all else that the home front is behind them." They want us to realize that it is our war as much as it is theirs. If we revolt against shouldering the burdens of war at home, we not only cut up their morale; we also curtail the essential supplies flowing to them and jeopardize the victory they are winning at a horrible price in human lives.

We ought to ask ourselves in all candor, then, what is the cause of this jellyfish attitude on the home front. I think we can discard at once the idea that it springs from disloyalty. The people as a whole are deeply attached to institutions and the way of life for which the United States is fighting. They are overwhelmingly convinced that this war must be won. When they have been actually put to the test they have measured up to every requirement. Any discrimination to carry the burdens of war must spring therefore from lack of understanding or conviction as to what is necessary.

Now lack of understanding on the part of the public implies a failure of leadership. Millions of citizens are not doing all they might do to speed victory because their individual responsibility has never been made clear to them. To be sure President Roosevelt and many of his aides often warned of coming hardships and pointed to the necessity of sacrifices at home in time of total war. But the policies adopted have washed out from their words most of the stern realism they once seemed to contain.

Recently the Administration presented to Congress a tax program that was at first believed to be a courageous draft upon wartime earnings to help pay for the war and hold inflation in check. Upon examination, however, it was found to contain a scheme relieving millions of citizens of taxes they now pay. Congress has properly swept the whole thing into the waste basket, but now, apparently, it lacks the fortitude to replace the Treasury's vote-getting scheme by a stiff tax program of its own. Yet the controlling fact about our wartime economy is that it is piling up enormous sums in the hands of consumers which cannot be spent for want of goods to buy.

EVEN WHILE planning to reduce taxes or keep them at the present figure for millions of families of low and moderate income, the Administration advanced its subsidy program. How can the public be expected to face the realities of war with courage and determination in the face of this pampering? In effect, official Washington is saying to the rank and file: "The Nation is in danger of an inflationary cycle because we are putting so much money into your pockets in the form of wages, but don't you worry, we're not going to tax it away from you. And as for paying for the war, we'll take all we can get from the rich and borrow the rest. You won't even have to pay all your grocery bills. We'll borrow more money if Congress won't vote the taxes we have proposed, and bring down the cost of food with subsidies so that you may add to your savings while the men in uniform are risking their lives for your safety."

In other words, official policy has softened up our morale by repeated implications that no sacrifice is expected on the home front. Hunger, suffering, work in mud and jungles, back-breaking fatigue, loss of income and conveniences and dying for one's country are for the soldiers at the front. Men at home, if they don't like the higher wages and subsidies war has brought them, may even strike with impunity. And everyone is encouraged to demand his share of the bounties of war because of the undisputed evidence that millions are being wasted anyway.

The wonder is that the morale of men and women nursed along by such jelly-fish psychology is not cracking instead of merely sagging.

Few Draft Eligibles in U. S. Jobs Here, House Probe Shows

By Mary Spargo

Washington bureaus were virtually cleared of charges of being a haven for draft dodgers by the Costello Committee of the House in an interim report yesterday which said the real problem of deferments of Federal employes centered about the War and Navy Departments.

The committee indicated that less than 6938 men of draft age, including fathers and those who would be found 4-F, were in Government service here in Washington, and warned that even this figure was misleading since local boards have credited to some agencies persons who had never been on the payroll of those agencies.

The committee asserted that there were approximately 900,000 males of draft age in Government service, but added that the large majority of these were employed by either the War or Navy Departments outside Washington in arsenals and the like.

The War Department has reported deferments of 23,817 men of draft age; the Navy Department has reported deferments of 40,024, a total of 63,841. In the War Department, the committee said there are 300,000 of the 783,428 male employes on replacement tables, while according to the report the Navy Department has more than 400,000 on replacement schedules.

Replacement schedules, the committee report charged, "which are used on large numbers of these cases are subject to preparation in many ways that protect individuals of military age."

On the question of occupational deferments the committee said that in September Selective Service reported 115,397 names of persons with occupational deferments. The boards reported that of these 31,238 were made without official request.

That left 83,578 official requests of which 63,841 were made by the Army and Navy Departments.

Four other agencies with large field services take up more than 10,000 of the other ocupational deferments. These are the Departmentc of Commerce with 2402 deferments, Department of Justice, 3105; War Shipping Administration with 3259 and Maritime Commission with 2013. Further than that there are 2020 employes in the Panama Canal Zone and Hawaii, leaving the figure 6938 to represent occupational deferments in the general administrative branches of the government.

Even this figure had to be taken with a sprinkling of salt, the committee said. For example, the Office of Scientific Research and Development had credited to it a number of deferments of persons who were not employed by the Government but by contractors.

All figures given above are taken from the Selective Service statistics quoted by the committee. They do not appear to agree with the figures given by the special review committee on the deferment of Government employes, but do not change the major committee conclusion—that the number of deferments in Washington is very small compared to those given in the field by the Navy and War Departments.

The committee said that in more than 50 of the 72 agencies of the Federal Government there is no real problem of occupational deferment. A special review was recommended for those agencies having a larger number of deferments, the Department of Commerce, War Shipping Administration, Maritime Commission, Department of the Interior, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Bureau of Naturalization and Immigration.

The report took a crack at the civil service job descriptions, which it said were full of verbiage likely to mislead local boards, and give little clew to the actual duties of the individual. It took another swing at those in Government whose possession of academic degrees leads to the claim that they are scientists.

The report called for the Government employes of 20 agencies stationed abroad to be summoned for Selective Service. It pointed out that there are 2173 single men from 18 to 37 divided among these agencies and 1604 married men without children.

All Government employes who have occupational deferments not passed upon by the review committee should be reclassified immediately, the report said.

The committee further suggested:

1. Analysis of home front duties of servicemen to see if 4-F's could perform them.

2. Consideration of lower physical standards.

3. Possible consideration of means of accepting 4-F's without incurring pensions and extensive hospitalization in order to use these men in home front noncombat jobs.

4. Consideration of a program of transferring all combat men to actual combat service and replacing them with women or 4-F's.

5. Possible supplementary physical examinations with a view to placing those unfit for general military service on an inactive list subject to assignment here.

WMC Officials Of Region 4 Meet Here on Friday

State War Manpower Commission directors of WMC Region 4 will meet here with Regional Director Henry E. Treide Thursday to discuss operational problems of the new stabilization plan which went into effect October 15, it was announced yesterday.

The State directors of the region, which includes Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina and the District of Columbia, will confer with the regional labor-management committee Friday.

Hillman Sees Congress Default On Home Issues

Cincinnati, Oct. 25 (AP).—Sidney Hillman, national CIO executive, asserted today that Congress had defaulted on home front issues, and could not be trusted to make the peace.

Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, told a meeting of CIO representatives from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia that Congress had failed to offset inflation with an equitable tax program, with "a new batch of war millionaires" resulting.

Riebel to Testify Again Today

Frederick J. Riebel, jr., self-styled "last of the former presidents of the Brewster Aeronautical Corp," who admitted he talked "the rocking chair fleet" into putting him in control of the stormy affairs of the airplane plants will testify before a House Naval Affairs Subcommittee again today at 10 a. m.

The stentorian-voiced special consultant to the Navy Department is the most spectacular witness the prolonged hearings have yet discovered. His graphic illustrations of how he thought union stewards waved their arms and shouted "everybody out," when a strike was called at the Johnsville, Pa., plant kept a roomful of spectators rocking with laughter. Riebel several times disclaimed any intention of "putting on a show," but the crowd grew larger every hour as the dramatic account of Brewster's difficulties boomed down the halls of the old House Office Building.

The "last of the former presidents," who was succeeded by the calmly confident Henry Kaiser, production genius, is expected to tell still more of his trials and tribulations, particularly with Tom de Lorenzo, union leader, whom he spoke of as "De Lorenzo and his gang of forty thieves."

It was Riebel, according to his own testimony, who developed the idea of chartering a New York strip-tease show to entertain his employes and develop good relations with them. He told the committee he said "Nuts!" when the union wanted to come in on the affair and share the expenses.

NEW IDEA for Engine-Cooling

BURY A BIG, air-cooled radial aircraft engine in a tight armored compartment of a U. S. Army medium tank . . . and you have one of the toughest blast-cooling problems imaginable. ¶ A.M.&M. engineers solved this problem by designing a new fan with a laminar flow profile. Although made of steel, die-formed and welded, it weighed no more than the cast aluminum fan wheel which it replaced. Best of all, this new fan reduced engine temperatures by many degrees, thereby eliminating the hazards of overheating and consequent stalling. ¶ It is ENGINEERING COMPETENCE like this . . . plus the plant facilities and manpower for diversified, large-scale manufacturing that enables this company to develop and produce efficiently for the armed services and the essential wartime industries.

Land Denies 16-Fold Price Paid for Ships

Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman, yesterday denied the charge that the Maritime Commission has paid as high as 16 times their value for seven old ships.

Meanwhile, Senator Aiken (Republican) of Vermont renewed his complaint and told the Senate it should "take steps to stop this practice."

Aiken filed what he said were official reports of Comptroller General Lindsay Warren covering the alleged purchase from the Waterman Steamship Co. of Alabama, July 15, for $3,296,000 for five of the ships the commission assertedly valued on its books at $203,807.

Two other vesels were purchased September 14 from the Pan-Atlantic Steamship Corp., owned by Waterman, for $1,089,000 despite a book value of only $97,759.

Admiral Land, in a letter to Chairman Bailey of the Senate Commerce Committee, said that none of the reports of Aiken's press conference made reference to the "most important fact, namely, that the vessels were not purchased for cash."

Land said that the purchase figures represented trade-in allowances which were applied against the purchase by the steamship companies of at least an equivalent amount of new tonnage at wartime prices.

Land sent to Bailey a copy of the comptroller general's opinion which, he said, sustained the legality and propriety of allowing current market values for the old vessels as an inducement for the disposal by the commission of new ore carriers at current war costs.

3 Are Accused Of Mail Thefts; 2 Are Carriers

Three men were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday on charges of stealing from the mails. Two are letter carriers.

They are George Weiss, 24, and William Baskoutas, 20, both of 333 E st. nw., who were held under $1000 each for grand jury action after pleading guilty. They were appointed temporary carriers six months ago and police said they admitted stealing pieces of mail.

Thomas Buford, 27, Negro of 619 Kenilworth Terrace ne., who police said stole a parcel containing 50 cartons of cigarets from a mail bag in Union Station, was also arraigned. Bond in this case was set at $2500.

DuPont Nets $3.49 a Share

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., huge chemical concern, reported today consolidated net income for the nine months ended September 30 of $44,489,789 equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $3.49 a share. This compared with $42,430,095 or $3.31 a common share, for the corresponding period of 1942.

For the quarter ended September 30 net income was $14,934,289 equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $1.17 a common share, against $16,476,651 or $1.32 a common share in the comparable quarter last year.

Sales for the nine-month period, exclusive of the value of products made in Government-owned plants, were $427,189,325 against $368,968,021 in the like part of 1942.

First Boston Awarded Delaware Power Issues

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—First Boston Corp. and associates today were successful bidders for a new issue of 15 million dollars of 3 per cent bonds and four million dollars of preferred stock, offered at a competitive sale by the Delaware Power & Light Co.

The winning offer was 105.279 for the bonds and 102.819 for the stock with a 4 per cent rate.

The group expected to reoffer the two securities at 106.14 for the bonds and 104½ for the stock, subject to approval of the Securities and Exchange Commission as to prices paid the issuer and resale figures.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 25 (AP).—Weakness in oats created an easier undertone in grain markets today after rye had attempted to lead a rally when it was announced that the Food Distribution Administration was in the market for 35,000 barrels of rye flour. Oats dropped about a cent, wheat was off fractionally and rye was little changed at the finish.

Traders attributed the weakness in oats to further talk of possible ceilings on the grain, a small pickup in marketings from the Northwest and a slackening in demand. The new corn, soybean and sorghum crops should help ease the feeding situation, traders said, and the visible supply of oats last week increased 887,000 to 15,167,000 bushels.

At the close wheat was ⅛@¼ lower, December 1.54¼, May 1.52⅝; rye was ⅝ lower to ⅜ higher, December 1.13⅜; oats were down 1@1⅛ and barley was 1⅛@1⅝ lower.

The Food Distribution Administration asked for offers on 39,200 barrels of enriched hard wheat flour, but this action had little influence on prices. The request is understood to be in addition to offers for 200,000 barrels of enriched wheat flour made last week.

Film Has the Temerity To Name Correct Names

A NEW NOTE that seems a bit startling—at least it will seem so to Washingtonians—is sounded off in "Princess O'Rourke," the Warner Brothers item previewed yesterday morning by the drama desks.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND

"Daring" probably is not the word to describe the innovation, because it could have been consummated only with the tacit consent of those who by implication are most intimately involved. But when the picture moves into a remarkably realistic reproduction of the White House for its climax one wonders how come.

The usual custom in picture-making has been to camouflage well-known people and places under trick names that occasionally come close to the actual only through that "coincidental" happenstance so unfailingly recited in the film's main title. Not so in "Princess O'Rourke."

Here we have things called by their real names, with no attempt to conceal the fact that the White House is the White House, the Lincoln Room, the Lincoln Room, the black Scottie letter-carrier Fala, or that the unseen President is an active factor in the marriage of a royal princess to an American commoner, who happens to be a commercial airplane pilot.

Outside of the newsreels, this is as near as a President of the United States ever has come to being an "actor" in a comedy-romance designed strictly for light public entertainment. There is something in it about the value of American citizenship, morale and the like, but not enough to dominate the plot.

Yes, I know about "Sergeant York" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and the others to which the office of President has been important, but they are not quite parallel.

Not that this is to be construed as in any sense a criticism. "Princess O'Rourke" is one of the most delightful of the season's releases, thanks largely to the "authenticity" that marks its most vital passages.

The skillful playing of Olivia de Havilland and Robert Cummings, in the costellar roles, and Charles Coburn, Jack Carson, Jane Wyman, Minor Watson and Harry Davenport in support, of course, has much to do with it, too.

But the most heartening thing to note is that Hollywood gradually is working up its courage sufficiently to call a spade a spade without cringing at the likelihood of a shower of damage suits.

I doubt that the United States Government will sue the Warner Brothers for libel on the strength of the "Princess." You will understand why when the picture comes along to the Earle screen the week of Novmber 11.

Winning the distinction of being the first "battle scene" picture to be voted the Boxoffice Blue Ribbon Award by the National Screen Council, "So Proudly We Hail" achieved the championship rating for September. But it was necessary for the Mark Sandrich Paramount production, costarring Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake, to nose out "Watch on the Rhine" in a photographic finish to win.

Grand Opera in the Offing

A season of eight grand operas, presented on successive Saturdays, will be inaugurated in Constitution Hall on October 30 by the Columbia Opera Company of New York, which should not be confused with Washington's own Columbia Light Opera Company.

The bill for this Saturday's matinee, at 2:30, will be "Rigoletto," with Luisa Coronina in the role of Gilda; Saturday night, at 8:30, Bizet's "Carmen," with Louise Caselotti in the title part.

Six other works will be sung by this all-American company at Saturday matinees and nights, respectively, as follows: "Barber of Seville" and "Aida," November 6; "La Traviata" and the double bill of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Il Pagliacci," November 13; "La Tosca" and "Il Trovatore," November 20. Tickets at Kitt's, 1330 G st., if that's what you've been wondering about.

Harry Hunter, former local film executive and now managing director of all Paramount interests—both distribution and exhibition—in Australia, arrived back home at The Mayflower from "Down Under" last Friday and will be disclosing the filum situation in the Antipodes to local ears until October 31. Then back to New York and thence to California, whence he was to have set sail for Sydney on November 9—only that ship was canceled and there isn't another one until a month later. So Harry will have to twirl his thumbs in this country until the middle of December, or thereabouts—and how he hates it! More of Mr. Hunter and his hunches later—I hope.

LEONARD LYONS

Times Square Tattle

New York, Oct. 25.

Mayor LaGuardia still has been unable to find someone to serve as his secretary. Reuben Lazarus is filling that post temporarily, until the mayor can get a suitable replacement . . . One evening last week, when Fiorello left City Hall, he saw Harry Wertheimer, the eccentric peddler of shoelaces and oddments who has been a City Hall Plaza character for many years. "Harry," was the mayor's greeting to the eccentric peddler, "how would you like to be my secretary?" . . . "Well, Mr. Mayor, it's this way," the peddler replied, "Maybe some people say I'm crazy. Maybe I am crazy. But Mr. Mayor—THAT crazy I'm not."

MELVYN DOUGLAS

LaGuardia is expected to announce his indorsement of the City Council candidacy of Mike Quill, head of the Transport Workers Union . . . The new copies of Etta Shiber's best-seller, "Paris Underground," will give collaboration credit to A. Farkas . . . Arthur Lesser, proprietor of the two successful night clubs, La Vie Parisienne and the Folies Bergere, has been classified 1-A. At the outbreak of the war and until the fall of France, Lesser was a lieutenant in the French army . . . Capt. Melvyn Douglas, the film star who enlisted as a private, is on his way to the Pacific. His eldest son will enter the Navy shortly.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

LAST WEEK'S secret session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to consider plans for permanent peace should have been witnessed by every mother anxious to rid the world of future war.

The doors were closed to press and public, but here is what happened.

Four Senators called on the committee to urge a resolution with real teeth, embracing a police force, and authorizing the USA to join with United Nations and others to set up world machinery for peace.

These four Senators were Ball of Minnesota, Burton of Ohio, Hatch of New Mexico and Hill of Alabama. For short, they are called B2H2. They are not members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, so handsome chairman "Long Tom" Connally kept them waiting while he polled the committee on the more conservative resolution which its own members had drawn up. Their much more vague resolution has the approval of such isolationists as North Dakota's Nye, which makes many non-isolationists leery of it.

Chairman Connally went the rounds. He asked what each member thought of the committee's own resolution. After he had put most of them on record for the conservative resolution, he finally mentioned the fact that the four non-member Senators—B2H2—were present.

"Does the committee wish to hear them?" he asked.

Garner Admits Taking 'Dive' in Bout Here

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To the surprise of nobody, Ossie Bluege was handed a new contract to manage the Nats, obviously because he had landed the club in second place in 1942 to the surprise of practically everybody. There never was any doubt that he would be rehired.

POVICH

The Nats were pretty good box office last year. Their 580,000 home admissions labeled them the third best crowd-drawing club in the league. They fell only 7000 shy of the Yankees' home attendance figure, and were only 40,000 to the rear of the attendance champions, the Tigers. The money was coming in nicely, and the fact that Bluege had his club in the first division most of the season was no drawback.

Under Bluege, the Nats were harmonious enough. In fact, Washington managers are rarely troubled by player eruptions. Bucky Harris had no trouble with the players during his eight-year term as the Washington pilot. There was a bit of a set-to between Bob Johnson and Alex Carrasquel on the dug-out steps last summer, and a two-punch battle between Gerry Priddy and Mickey Vernon at Detroit but Bluege and his conduct of the club was involved in neither.

The last time there was a squabble on the Nats between a manager and a player was in 1933, a pennant-winning year. That's when Joe Cronin and Goose Goslin weren't speaking to each other. One of the first things Cronin did after winning the 1933 pennant was to trade Goslin to Detroit.

Bluege did very well with a team that wasn't supposed to go anywhere, and which had been quoted as 100-to-1 shots by a St. Louis bookmaker the week before the pennant race started. The Nats the year before had ended up in a tie for seventh place with the Browns, and off that form, weren't formidable.

Another man who would seem to deserve a new contract with the Nats is Clark Griffith, president of the club. That will probably be attended to in January at the annual stockholders' meeting. For 23 consecutive years now, the stockholders have been reelecting Griffith and any failure to do so would be an upset, but never did they have more cause to continue him in office.

Mr. Griffith is a smart old guy and he must get a whopping assist for what the Nats achieved last season. He did a fancy bit of long-range planning to provide Bluege with the personnel of a second-place ball club. Griffith was one of the few persons in the world with ideas, last winter, that the Nats could come close to winning the pennant.

He knew the league generally would be weaker and that any club which could show improvement would automatically move up in the standings. His Nats did become the only improved club in the league, as a result of his clever shuffling of talent and despite the failure of fellows like Stan Spence and Mickey Vernon to hit the ball hard.

The man around whom Griffith built the Washington infield was Gerald Priddy and he separated himself from a huge bundle of cash to bring Priddy from the Yankees. He bought Bob Johnson from Philadelphia to bolster his outfield and, to keep Johnson happy, he quibbled not at all with the big fellow on his salary demands.

When Ellis Clary bogged down as a third baseman, Griffith pulled no punches in an attempt to protect that spot on the team. He offered the Browns $40,000 for Harlond Clift in early June, but was turned down. Eventually he got Clift and Johnny Niggeling for two players and nearly $30,000 in cash, but by that time the Nats were no longer a pennant factor. Niggeling was a powerful help, though, in the three-cornered battle for second place with Cleveland and Detroit.

It was Griffith who brought Milo Candini to the Nats last winter. With a pachydermic memory, Griffith recalled Candini as the Yankee rookie who had looked like a sure-fire big leaguer in an exhibition game two years before, and insisted that he be included in the Priddy trade. It didn't take much persuasion for the Yanks to send the sore-armed Candini along, and the eight straight games he won helped to get the Nats off to a fancy start in the race.

The stockholders should be pleased with Griffith's administration. He fought from the start of the season for a solid booking of night baseball here and finally got it approved by Judge Landis. The night games pleased the customers, too. They averaged near 13,000 fans per game. It was a pretty good year all around.

Statement Says He Got $300 to Quit

By Al Costello

A written statement by John Garner, in which he confessed he "threw" last Monday's fight at Turner's Arena to Tee Hubert, was exploded in the faces of a stunned Boxing Commission yesterday by Walter Johnson, Garner's erstwhile manager.

Garner, who was inducted into the Army Saturday and is now stationed at Camp Lee, Va., said in the statement that he was paid the sum of $300 by John Carter, manager of Hubert, to "lose the fight to Hubert."

Contacted last night in Ward B at Camp Lee, Va., Garner readily admitted writing the letter and receiving $300 before the fight. He also said he had been promised more money and also a share of the betting winnings, which he estimated to be between $2000 and $3000. He said he did not receive either the extra money or his "cut" of the winnings.

Carter immediately denied the accusation, branded the allegation a "damned lie" and questioned the authenticity of the missive. Johnson said the letter, dated October 21, four days after the fight, was written in his place of business in the presence of other witnesses besides himself, whom he named. The statement itself, written on the Boxing Commission's summons to Johnson to appear yesterday, was in pencil and did not contain witnesses' signatures.

Here's the Letter

The letter read:

"I, John Garner, in some way, just don't know how to express myself to the boxing fans the Commission of Washington. But, I must admit my wrongdoing in my last fight with Tee Hubert. I was paid $300 to lose the fight to Hubert by Mr. John Carter.

"Though I am very sorry I made, should I say, a disgrace to all boxing fans, but I intend to render my help to Walter Johnson, my manager, in which I realize the predicament I have left him in. I am writing this in his behalf as to clean him and help him so he will be able to continue on with the boys who are capable of going places in the boxing game. Therefore I realize just how you all feel toward me, but I know it is rather late to explain. But the truth is what you want, so that's it. As I am now going in the Army Saturday but I will make every effort to do my part, as I would like to fight again. I'm very sorry I made the mistake which I did."

(Signed) JOHN GARNER.
October 21, 1943.

The commission was prompted to hold an investigation after ringside comments last Monday indicated something was not entirely right with the surprise ending, which saw Garner knocked out, flat on his face, in four rounds. Garner and Hubert, both Negroes, as are their managers, were fighting for the District light-heavyweight title. Last Monday morning Garner was quoted a 7-to-5 favorite but at bell time that night the odds had shifted mysteriously, so that Hubert was as much as a 2-to-1 favorite in some spots. Even before the fight got under way, rumors swept through the Arena the fight was going to be a "baggie."

They Couldn't Ignore It

When Garner was finally counted out by Referee Charley Reynolds, a subdued but persistent babble of "tank" and "bag fight" swept the place. The murmer, gradually gaining headway as it swept through the Arena, created such a furore it could not be ignored by the Boxing Commission. Later in the week, Chairman Claude W. Owen contacted his two colleagues, Thomas P. Morgan, jr., and Police Inspector Clarence W. Talley and the three unanimously agreed to call in all concerned, including the fighters, their managers and handlers, the two judges, Jimmy Sullivan and Bob Mulhall, who was pinch-hitting for the absent Frank Schuyler; Referee Charley Reynolds and Promoter Joe Turner.

Commissioner Morgan, who conducted the probe until the arrival of Chairman Owen, expressed the opinion that the fight was entirely on the level. Promoter Turner said he thought it was one of the best fights he had ever promoted and Judges Sullivan and Mulhall reported they had seen nothing which aroused their suspicions. Dr. John DeMayo, commission physician, said that when he visited Garner's dressing room after he had been counted out, there was no doubt that Garner had been hit

Lane and Parks Fight to Draw Before 1572

Larry Lane, 193, Trenton, and Georgie Parks, 187, fought 10 rounds to an unexciting draw last night at Turner's Arena. Only in the fourth, when Lane went down from a half punch, half slip, for no count did the crowd of 1572 paid admissions show any enthusiasm.

The gross gate was $2464.

In the eight-round semifinal, Bob Wade, 163, Newark, and Billy Duncan, 171, Fort Belvoir, boxed to a draw.

Aaron Perry, 141, Washington, scored a technical kayo over Earl Wentk, 146, Baltimore, in 1:40 of the fifth. Jimmy Bell, 183, Washington, outpointed Dan Biggers, 185, Baltimore, in six and Joey Sole, 150, Baltimore, decisioned Lee Rosen, 148, Baltimore, in another six.

Leo Durocher To Manage Flock Again

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—President Branch Rickey today dispelled the fog obscuring Leo Durocher's future with the Brooklyn baseball club by announcing abruptly that the peppery pilot again would manage the Dodgers in 1944.

The contract is for one year, and is to manage only. The terms were not disclosed, but Durocher said "it is the best contract I've ever had since I've been in baseball." Rickey himself, in response to a suggestion that the document, which replaces a player-manager contract Durocher had this year, called for a substantial salary cut, warned that he wouldn't advise anyone to "go out on a limb on that."

Status Cleared

The announcement, made at a press conference, terminated Durocher's mugwump status of the past month. Rickey released him from the player-manager contract late in the season with the explanation that he wanted to be free to negotiate with Durocher as a free agent. Since then rumors, mostly to the effect that Durocher was through as a Dodger, were heard frequently, and the impression was left that Durocher was riding the fence, waiting patiently for Rickey to push him one way or another.

Rickey said Durocher had not approached him concerning a 1944 contract, and that he himself had not considered anyone else, although he later admitted he had talked at length to Bill Terry, whom he said he greatly admires, and Terry might have gained the impression he would be considered for the job if Durocher was not rehired.

Hope for Confidence

Asked if he felt that Durocher could regain the control and confidence of the players, which appeared to be slipping from his grasp following the Bobo Newsom incident last summer, Rickey said he was "terribly hopeful he can,' and added that he had talked to all the players except one personnaly.

Durocher, summoned to the conference, said he was certain he could settle any differences he might have with players before next season, and that with the exception of one unnamed man he liked every player.

What Do They Want, 73-0?

How About Giving Cardinals Some Credit? Bergman Asks

Redskin Coach Feels Club Beat Good Team; Wilbur Moore Suffers Rib Injury From Kick

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Redskin Coach Dutch Bergman was not recommending any bonus payments for his squad yesterday but at the same time he was a trifle peeved at those who belittled the 'Skins for ONLY beating the Chicago Cardinals 13-7 Sunday in Griffith Stadium.

Dutch had a right to ask what he had to do to make good in this town? After all the Redskins are the only unbeaten, untied team in the league and Dutch is inclined to think the Cardinals were vastly underrated, not only by the fans but by his own football players.

"I told those fellows all week the Cardinals were going to be tough," Dutch said yesterday. "You can throw out that exhibition game in Buffalo when we beat them 43-21, they have come a long way since that time.

'A Good Ball Club'

"They pushed the Bears all over the field during a scoreless first half two weeks ago, and had every right in the world to beat Detroit in the game they lost, 7-0. Any team with ends like Rucinski and Currivan, linemen like Bulger, Baker and Stewart and backs such as Bukant and Grigas is a good ball club," Dutch went on.

Dutch was quick to admit the Redskins played some stupid football. But he also asked when the second guessers had seen a team charge, block, tackle, scratch and claw and drive like the Cardinals. "Give us a touchdown where Moore fumbled inside their 10-yard line and they might have figured it was just another defeat," Dutch said, "but that gave them life and we were fortunate to get out with the ball game."

Wilbur Moore, scoreless for the first time Sunday but a big man in the Redskin victory, turned up yesterday for treatment for what may be a rib separation or a torn cartilage. Moore was kicked in the ribs in a scuffle after a Baugh pass near midfield in the second quarter, and although he returned to the game he favored his injured side.

Seymour, Farkas Hurt

Bob Seymour came out with a sore and bruised hip and Andy Farkas pulled a leg muscle, fortunate for the Redskins, however, after Andy returned the second-half kickoff 81 yards and later scored the second touchdown.

Bergman is counting on his injured regulars, Bob Masterson and George Smith, to return to competition against the Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday in Ebbetts Field. The above pair and Moore, Seymour and Farkas will take it easy as the Redskins resume twilight practice sessions today at Griffith Stadium.

Bergman expects to receive scout reports today on the Bear-Dodger game last Sunday in Chicago. Brooklyn finally scored a touchdown, three of them in fact, but according to accounts on the game from Chicago the Bears were inclined to ease up after posting a 26-0 lead. The game was played in a dismal setting of rain and mud.

Cardinal Coach Phil Handler took his team to Pittsburgh last night where they will remain until Sunday's meeting with the Phil-Pitt Eagles. Handler's chief regret over Sunday's loss was the absence from the game of Ronnie Cahill, the Cards' exceptional rookie passer who until Sunday trailed only Sammy Baugh and Sid Luckman on the passing record list. Cahill was in for one pass but was useless with miseries in his back.

Pro Football Attendance Up 28.7% for Year

Chicago, Oct. 25 (AP).—Attendance for the first 18 games in the 1943 National Football League season is 460,612—an increase of 28.7 per cent over the first 18 games last year, league officials said today.

Much of the increase was attributed to the drawing power of the Lions in Detroit. The Lions failed to win a game last year, but started the 1943 season strongly, attracting more customers for their first three home engagements than for their entire home schedule in 1942.

Roosevelt, Western in Spot Game

What promises to be the best spot game of the inter-High series—Western vs. Roosevelt—will be played at Central Stadium at 3 p. m. Saturday, J. Dallas Shirley, director of Senior High Schools physical education, announced last night.

The teams are tied for second place in the series. Each has won and lost one game. Both boast heavier lines than the average local high school team this year and both favor hard and swift running attacks rather than aerial offensives.

In short, it looks like one of the better games of the year. On the basis of past performance Roosevelt looks a shade better than Western, for the Riders defeated Eastern 15 to 7, while Western lost a tough one to the Ramblers, 7 to 0. On the other hand, Western handed a decisive 20-6 drubbing to Central last week, while Roosevelt barely eased over that hurdle with a 7 to 6 victory.

On Friday Wilson, still barely in the running for the league championship playoff, meets Eastern at 4 p. m. and Tech will play at Anacostia. Most of the Friday interest will be centered, however, on how Coolidge makes out against Washington-Lee at Ballston. The Generals have trounced every Washington high school team they've met so far this year.

Central will meet St. John's Prep Cadets under the Griffith Stadium lights Friday night in an annual clash. Other games Friday include Bullis Prep vs. George Washington High at Alexandria; Mount Vernon at Gonzaga, Georgetown Prep at Landon and St. Albans at Baltimore Friends. On Saturday Randolph Macon will play at Alexandria Episcopal and Devitt will meet National Training School at Woodrow Wilson Stadium.—McBRIDE.

Rockingham Breaks Pari-mutuel Records

Concord, N. H., Oct. 25 (AP).—Rockingham race track continues to break all local pari-mutuel betting records, the State Racing Commission reported today.

The State netted $130,000 from the Salem track last week, bringing the total for the current meet to $527,799, compared with $293,200 for the four opening weeks of the meet last fall.

Navy Drills Against Irish Plays

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Oct. 25.—Facing an undefeated Notre Dame football team that has used nearly every trick in the book in smothering its opponents this season, Navy's squad went through light scrimmage today after trying to master the plays used by the Irish.

The Middies came out of the Georgia Tech game in good shape and Capt. John E. Whelchel, Navy's head coach, reported no injuries among the Tars.

While they admit that the Irish are favored to bowl over the Sailors, the Navy coaching staff is not conceding th game by any means.

And even the players themselves realize they are facing stiff opposition next Saturday, the toughest and speediest they have yet met on a gridiron this year.

Notre Dame has marched over Pitt, Georgia Tech, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois, while the Midshipmen are undefeated to date through wins over North Carolina Preflight ,Cornell, Duke, Penn State and Georgia Tech.

Whelchel did not show much satisfaction today with the slow start which Navy exhibited against Tech Saturday night, nor did he indicate agreement with the Tars' showing against Penn.

The Midshipmen are buckling down this week to master the T formation which the Irish have used so successfully and they will be thoroughly schooled in hard driving and accurate football before the week is out.

South Africans Beat Army Nurses Ten, 7-3

Cairo, Oct. 25 (AP).—Louise Behn, United States Army nurse from Rock Island, Ill., tripled in the fourth inning to score two runs, but a South African WAAFS team defeated the Army nurses in a softball game, 7 to 3, before a vociferous crowd of Allied troops and officers today.

The South Africans scored five runs in the first inning.

Sergt. Tom Gorman, formerly of the New York Giants, was umpire.

Hart to Meet Dorazio Here

Soldier Al Hart of the Army War College last night agreed to box "Dynamite Gus" Dorazio in a 12-round return bout at Uline Arena on Friday night, November 5.

Hart, who recently lost a close decision to Dorazio at Uline Arena but who had "Dynamite Gus" hanging on at the finish, wanted a 15-round route, and Dorazio, who considers Hart one of the toughest heavyweights he has ever fought, held out for 10. They compromised.

Dorazio has made two great fights here previously, losing a disputed decision to Joe Baksi at Uline's several months ago, and winning a slambang fight from Hart here only recently.

Big Purses Set for Pimlico

Stakes Total Over $65,000 Next 5 Days

By Walter Haight

Racing fans hereabouts drew a blank yesterday but starting today they will have five programs of block-busting proportions coming to them at the combined Pimlico meeting. More than $65,000 in stakes will be distributed during the five remaining racing days this week, winding up with a double blast on Saturday with the Pimlico Special and the Exterminator Handicap sharing the spotlight.

Variety is the word for the week's features. Steeplechasers, handicap horses and 2-year-olds all will have their innings. Today's card is featured by the $7500 added Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap, a test of two and a half miles and some of the best jumping stock in the Nation will be on hand, including the year's top money-winners Brother Jones and Rouge Dragon.

Tomorrow the glare will be focused on juvenile fillies. The rich Selima Stakes at a mile and a sixteenth is slated to draw from ten to a dozen entries, with the winner taking down in the neighborhood of $20,000. The injury to Bee Mac, Hopeful winner, has left the race a wide open affair.

Eastern Shore Runs Saturday

One of Havre de Grace's fixtures will be on the topspot on Thursday. The Eastern Shore, a 6-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds, should provide a merry scramble. Broad Grin, winner of the Spalding Low Jenkins; Director J. E., who took the main money in the Richard Johnson; Quarter Moon, winner of the Maryland Futurity and Pensive, the Calumet star, are due to tangle in this field.

Fillies and mares will provide the chief action Friday in the Queen Isabella, a Pimlico race. Likely to start in the $7500 added battle are Nellie L., Barbara Childs, Fad, Red Rosette, Baby Darling, Night Glow, Challomine, Silvestra and Gondalina. There is a possibility that Stefanita will start although she is now in New York.

Stake Winners to Meet

While Saturday's Pimlico Special will not be up to the standard of some of the past renewals, it should be a good race. Principal interest will be in the meeting of Shut Out, from the Greentree Stable, and Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up.

A field of five appears in order, with W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule, Foxcatcher's Fairy Manhurst and T. B. Martin's Bolingbroke the ones likely to contest for the $25,000 winner-take-all first prize.

Pimlico's annual marathon, the Exterminator at 2 miles and 70 yards, always provides good entertainment. Fairy Manhurst, a good router, may go in this race and pass up the Special. Others who may start are Kansas, Half Crown, Jacsteal, Abbe Pierre, Corydon and Dove Pie.

Garner Admits Taking 'Dive' Here

hard and was "still suffering from a physical shock."

Then Johnson was called to testify. Morgan asked him if he thought Garner performed at his best. Johnson candidly said Garner did not. Morgan asked why and Johnson then produced Garner's letter.

Johnson, upon questioning, said Garner, who had borrowed $2 from him the preceding Saturday, showed him $300 before the fight but it was not until after the fight that he entertained any suspicion that the "fix" was on. He said he had even bet on Garner and naturally had lost his money.

The $300 angle is a bit mysterious. Earlier, when Turner was negotiating with Carter and Johnson for the match, Carter insisted Garner make 165 pounds and demanded a $300 forfeit posted. Turner, at Garner's behest, posted the money with the understanding it would be deducted from Garner's purse if he did not make the weight. Garner came in at 168 and Carter was given the $300 which he claims he still has in his possession. Johnson was emphatic in his statement that he didn't know there was anything wrong before the bout.

John L. Sullivan, Garner's trainer, testified Garner did not fight according to plan and paid no attention to his instructions between rounds, not even speaking. But he, too, denied knowledge of any "fix."

The commissioners, challenged as to the authenticity of Garner's letter by Carter, announced they will make every effort to have Garner appear before them in person, and plan to contact the War Department to ascertain whether Garner can be given leave or whether a representative of the ring body can interview him at Camp Lee or wherever he may be stationed.

Until such time as Garner is interviewed personally, the matter rests.

Almost overlooked under the sensational disclosure of Garner's letter was Promoter Goldie Ahearn's petition to the commission requesting two Monday night dates per month at Uline Arena. Advised by Migiel J. Uline, arena owner, that he must vacate unless successful in landing some Mondays, Ahearn is faced with the necessity of going out of business unless he, Uline, Turner and the commission work out a compromise. Ahearn's request was taken under advisement.

Notre Dame Still Leads In Grid Poll

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—By men who know their football best, it is Notre Dame 97 to 6.

For the fourth straight time in the Associated Press' weekly poll to determine the country's best football team the Irish topped the table, this time by garnering 97 of the 103 first place votes cast.

And, as in the past three weeks, Army and Navy come right behind but the Notre Dame margin is almost as lopsided as the scores the Frank Leahy machine has pounded out over Pittsburgh, Georgia Tech, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Army got five of the first place tickets not marked for the Irish but trailed 1,023 to 891 in points. The remaining ballot was earmarked for Purdue, fourth place team for the second straight week.

Although the same ten clubs remained in the select circle there was little resemblance after the top four between the ranking of today as compared with that seven days ago.

Southern California hopped from seventh to fifth following its 6-to-0 verdict over the College of Pacific. The latter club skidded from sixth to tenth and Michigan, victor over Minnesota, shot from tenth to seventh. Duke and Iowa Preflight, both idle last weekend, exchanged eighth and ninth places, and Pennsylvania, winner by 33 to 0 over Columbia, slumped from fifth to sixth.

The poll adds even more interest to the games the next two weekends which involve Notre Dame and Navy at Cleveland and Army vs. Penn at Philadelphia this Saturday.

The following week the Irish and Cadets meet in New York while the Middies visit the Quakers.

Those four games and the switching of talent by the graduation of naval athletes at Notre Dame, Purdue, Southern California, Penn, Michigan, Duke and the College of Pacific after this Saturday's contests may break the top-ten monopoly, something rivals have been unable to do on the field of play.

Of the winners, seven of the teams are undefeated with Michigan, Duke and College of Pacific having been subdued only once each.

The leading clubs, 10 points for first place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third, etc. (first place votes shown in parentheses):

	First	Ten
Notre Dame (97)		1028
Army (5)		891
Navy		683
Purdue (1)		596
Southern California		521
Pennsylvania		502
Michigan		431
Duke		229
Iowa Pre-Flight		215
College of Pacific		162

Second ten—Washington, 93; Texas, 43; Tulsa, 41; Southwestern Institute of Louisiana, 39; Northwestern, 35; Colorado College, 21; Del Monte Pre-Flight, 19; Great Lakes, 11; Texas A. and M., 7; California, 5.

Also rans—Tulane, 4; Dartmouth, 4; Southwestern of Texas, 3; Colorado, 2; Louisiana State, 2; Indiana, 1; Randolph Field, 1; Arkansas A. and M., 1.

Greater Duck Yield for Md. Area Foreseen

By Tom Moore McBride

Glenn L. Martin, president of the Maryland and Washington Committee for Ducks Unlimited and president of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, predicted last night that more liberal wildfowl hunting laws for this area as well as the rest of the country will come into being because of the predator research now being conducted by Ducks Unlimited.

Martin told a gathering of sportsmen at the Mayflower that the findings of Ducks Unlimited researchers would show that shooting kills but 10 per cent of the duck population, drought, sudden droughts, botulism from stagnant ponds and predators, such as crows, jackfish, magpies and ground squirrels—all in the duck-breeding areas—accounted for 70 per cent more.

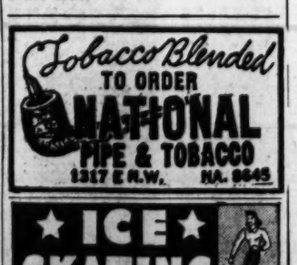
Better Bags Assured

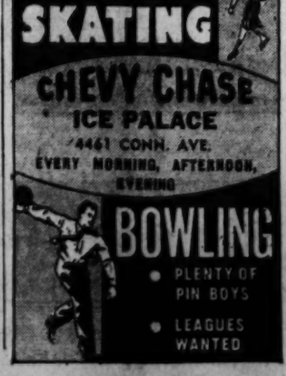
When the research along these lines is completed and compiled it will be turned over to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. Director Ira L. Gabrialson has assured Ducks Unlimited, Martin said, that liberalized bag limits and extended seasons will result if the completed findings bear out early expectations.

The sportsmen present were treated to a preview of how their dollars contributed toward the "Maryland Duck Factory" of Ducks Unlimited in Manitoba will be employed. Motion pictures of the work of the conservation program in the Canadian wildfowl breeding grounds showed how drained lands are being converted into natural habitation, fires and flash floods controlled.

The project of the Maryland-Washington Committee of Ducks Unlimited will provide 100,000 acres of breeding grounds in Riding Mountain National Park, Manitobia, the heart of the mallard and redhead breeding grounds. Especially pertinent to this area is the fact that mallards and redheads constitute the principal bag in the Chesapeake Bay area. These ducks from Central Canada fly almost due east on their migrations, then take the Atlantic flyway south—directly through this section.

The cost of the Maryland-Washington project will be $25,000, much of which already has been raised. Completion of the breeding area in about three years will mean increased hundreds of thousands of ducks for this area—to really make the name of the project, "Maryland Duck Factory," come true.





Draft Appeals Board Decides 59 Cases

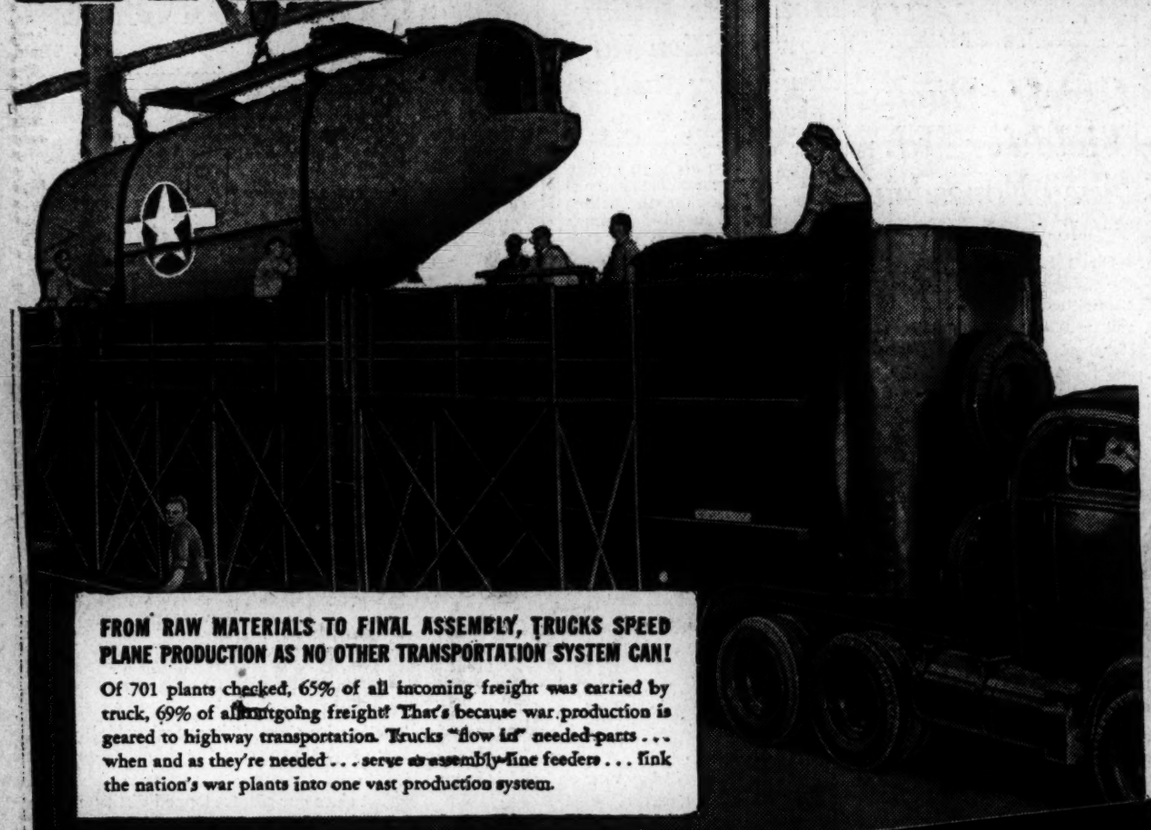
As local draft boards reported that scores of District fathers are volunteering for induction to assure service in the branch of their choice, three Washington fathers, who were classified as available by their boards, won dependency appeals, the Selective Service Board of Appeals announced yesterday.

While two men received "extreme hardship" deferments, sixteen others lost appeals for reclassification in 3-D, the board revealed in reporting actions for the week ending October 2.

Proportionately more appeals were granted during that period, however, than in the past few weeks, as local boards' decisions were overruled in about half of the cases heard. Occupational pleas of eighteen men were acted on fav

VICTORY STALLS IF HIGHWAYS FAIL

MEN IN TRUCKS ARE DOING A JOB NO OTHER TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM CAN HANDLE!



FROM RAW MATERIALS TO FINAL ASSEMBLY, TRUCKS SPEED PLANE PRODUCTION AS NO OTHER TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM CAN!

Of 701 plants checked, 65% of all incoming freight was carried by truck, 69% of all outgoing freight! That's because war production is geared to highway transportation. Trucks "flow in" needed parts . . . when and as they're needed . . . serve as assembly-line feeders . . . link the nation's war plants into one vast production system.

LET'S never forget—this is a motorized war! Battle-fronts—vital war industries—farms—all are geared to motor transportation. Because no other system equals the flexibility and delivery speed of trucks!

Today—with 1/20th the carrying capacity of the rails, trucks are hauling 1/4 the rail load . . . and getting it there *in less than half the time!

That includes most rush shipments for war plants, many of them built where only truck transport can serve them . . . most of our food . . . millions of tons of equipment, ammunition, supplies for fighting men overseas.

Highways—under such strain—and ravaged by weather—do wear out.

Roads are built to be "expendable" just as military equipment is. Yet, roads must be kept usable—or victory will stall. To shorten the war, trucks must be kept rolling—fast . . . Roads must be maintained properly—now!

WITH 1/20 THE CARRYING CAPACITY OF THE RAILS, TRUCKS CARRY 1/4 the rail load!

*Based on a comparison of tons carried in inter-city movement

GOOD ROADS OR BAD—TRUCKS MUST GET THROUGH!

ROADS LIKE THIS ROB OUR WAR EFFORT OF PRECIOUS GAS, RUBBER AND EQUIPMENT

See that "blister"? Weather did that. Every dollar denied now for repair of roads will in time be paid for in repairs to trucks, buses and cars. With gas, rubber, and replacement parts greatly restricted, even minor damage from roads can lay trucks up . . . impose added burdens on those that roll. Road commissioners despite terrific handicaps have managed to keep traffic moving, but greater road maintenance is needed to keep the war effort rolling in high!

WITHOUT HIGHWAYS MANY WAR PLANTS COULDN'T WORK

Fast highway transportation—by cars and buses—gets millions of war workers to plants that no other transport system reaches. When bad roads delay workers, war production bogs down, victory's stalled.

LET'S PLAN AMERICA'S POST-WAR ROADS RIGHT NOW!

Roads the way you want 'em—not a patch-quilt of local construction, but a unified highway system free from bottle necks, blind curves, and slow-moving, congested traffic. New roads are a post-war "must", provide vast employment. But to get them requires planning now.

TRUCKS SUPPLY THE MONEY FOR ROAD UPKEEP . . . LET'S GIVE OUR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONS THE MEN AND MATERIAL THEY NEED!

Highways Commissions, restricted by priorities and shortages of manpower, materials and equipment, have done a swell job keeping essential roads usable. But—

Road damage—due to weathering and heavier war traffic—is increasing . . . while road maintenance is decreasing. Highway replacement and reconstruction is now less than one-third of normal—according to the U. S. Public Roads Commissioner. Unless adequate repairs are authorized soon, this increasing road damage will hamper all highway traffic—trucks, buses, essential cars—impairing, wasting, and damaging precious motor equipment . . . and impeding the nation's war effort.

It's not solely a question of money. Special taxes paid by America's 5,000,000 trucks exceed one half billion dollars annually. While your car rests, trucks are paying for our highways.

Roads can and must be maintained! They are America's production lifeline. But our Highway Commissions need tools, materials, and men—now!

Oust Morgenthau Move Under Way in Congress

A congressional drive is quietly underway to ease out Henry Morgenthau as Secretary of the Treasury. Economic Stabilizer Fred M. Vinson is the choice of the congressional bloc to succeed him. Morgenthau hasn't been able to get along with Congress. Last year his tax program was tossed into the ashcan and he was rebuked when he presented the Administration's tax plan several weeks ago. He has since left the country for a battlefront tour. The truth is that Assistant President Jimmy Byrnes and Vinson already have superseded Morgenthau on tax matters, and it was their plan that the Secretary had to defend before the House Ways and Means Committee. Morgenthau is a close personal friend of the President's, but the President wants Congress to pass the Administration tax bill or some approximation of it.

KLUTTZ

A big commotion which the 600 Government girls in Barton Hall dormitory are still talking about took place Sunday morning. Sunday breakfast is a problem for the girls. No restaurants are nearby. The best they can do is get coffee and cakes in the service shop. Several days earlier the girls had been told that paper cups were no longer available and the management of the service shop hereafter would lease each girl a pottery cup for 15 cents. The girls would have to take their cups with them when they wanted coffee. It was sort of like the old barber shop custom of years ago, when each man had his own individual shaving mug.

Petty annoyances like this make people sore. And the girls got good and mad. Some of them went downtown Saturday night and bought their own cups. Why, they said, should they put up 15 cents for a 5-cent cup, even if they were promised the money back when the cups where turned in? Sporting their own cups, the girls marched into the service shop Sunday morning. No, the management announced, you can't buy coffee in those cups. Each of you must put up 15 cents for one of our special cups. That set off the verbal fireworks and, as one of the participants explained, a near riot. What happened is none too clear except that the situation got so bad that service was suspended, the shop was closed and several conferences preceded its reopening.

All this points up a bad situation which Public Buildings Administration has been doing its best to cure—Sunday meals. The girls who work for the Navy Department can go across the street and eat in the K cafeteria even though this place doesn't open until 11 o'clock, a late hour. PBA has begged Navy to let the girls take Sunday meals in its cafeteria. Absolutely not, says Navy, thinking only of the convenience of its own employes. But that's typical of Federal agencies; each of them thinks only for itself, and they never stop to consider what's best for the entire Government service. The girls in the dorms who get sore and go back home will hurt Navy as well as the other agencies by their stories of red tape and failure of agencies to cooperate with one another.

John J. Haggerty, who entered the postal service here in 1918 as a stenographer, yesterday was nominated to the Senate for comptroller of the Post Office Department . . . Interior Undersecretary Abe Fortas will report to the Navy Friday as an ordinary seaman . . . The job of general manager of OPA will be abolished for all practical purposes but the authority of Jim Rogers, Chester Bowles' personal assistant, will be stepped up . . . Lawrence Appley, War Manpower executive director, will speak to the Society for Personnel Administration tonight at the YWCA. Lieut. Norman Smith will explain Navy's four-star recognition program . . . War Production Board will soon decentralize priority application work and some of the control materials plan activities.

The Costello Committee investigating draft deferements in the Federal service made a report yesterday that sounded like a toy pistol in comparison with all the loud draft-doging charges some of its members have been making. It believes a review of deferments should be made in the Army, Navy, Commerce Department, War Shipping, Maritime Commission, Interior Department, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Immigration and Naturalization. Most of these, of course, are the real war agencies and it would be surprising if they didn't have many deferred employes. The committee didn't find much to fuss about in the other agencies. One very important problem it did point out is the fact that Army and Navy officers work side by side with civilians which lowers civilian morale. The committee didn't say so, but perhaps many of the people were commissioned to keep them from being called draft-dodgers by Congressmen.

The stenographer who wrote the letter published here Saturday on how inexperienced clerks were promoted ahead of her appears to have plenty of company. A dozen OPA secreatries said they had similar experiences and stenos from 20-odd other agencies wrote in to say "amen."

Symphony Holds First Rehearsal

Citizen Group Reelects A. J. Driscoll

A. J. Driscoll was elected president of the Midcity Citizens Association last night for the twenty-seventh consecutive time.

Other officers reelected were Miss Edith L. Grosvenor, vice president; Maurice E. Saulsbury, secretary; John L. C. Sullivan, financial secretary and treasurer and George A. Warren and Robert W. Eaves, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Association.

Other business included adoption of the following resolutions: Regretting the resignation of Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; opposing change in the present designation of 15th and 17th sts. nw. south of K; asking for more rigid enforcement by police of the dog licensing regulations, and asking a traffic light at 12th and M sts. nw.

Trinidad Citizens

Senator Holman's subcommittee which investigated Gallinger Hospital was commended last night by the Trinidad Citizens Association for its accomplishment in obtaining recommendation by the District Commissioners for $250,000 to remedy the conditions. The organization which met at the home of Martin G. Stecker, secretary-treasurer, 1121 4th st. ne., also expressed approval of putting the hospital employes on a 48-hour week.

A petition for more local buses on the line from 17th st. and Pennsylvania ave. se., through Bladensburg rd., into Maryland was authorized and the Commissioners were asked to improve the lighting system in the H st. underpass.

Deanwood Civic

Members of the Deanwood Civic Association met at the Deanwood School last night and elected the following officers for the year: Patrick Tolliver, president; John Marcus, first vice president; William Nichols, sr., second vice president; Frank Shears, treasurer; Mrs. Lena Dyson, recording secretary; Mrs. Lottie J. Smith, corresponding secretary; Percy Ellis, parliamentarian, and the Rev. James Fountain, chaplain.

Society of Natives

Robert L. Haycock, who was appointed superintendent of District public schools last week, discussed last night the early history of Georgetown, where he was born, and began teaching school with children from canal house boats as his first pupils. He was principal speaker at a meeting of the Society of Natives of the District of the Women's City Club Building.

Georgetown Citizens

The executive committee of the Georgetown Citizens Association last night recommended that Congress be notified that the members favor election of a District delegate to the national legislative body with the District government remaining under congressional supervision. This action was taken at a meeting of the association at St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O sts. nw.

The membership appointed a committee of four members to consider the executive committee's recommendation. A report of the latter group will be submitted at the next meeting of the association. Harry Wender, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, spoke on "The Function of Citizens Associations in Wartime Washington." John H. Gartland, president of the Georgetown Citizens Association, presided.

Wild Life Meeting

The national president of the Izaak Walton League, Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, will be guest speaker tonight before the Arlington-Fairfax chapter of the league at a restaurant at the intersection of Lee Highway and Glebe rd., at 8:30.

Symphony Now Boasts 16 Women

The first rehearsal for the thirteenth season of the National Symphony Orchestra was conducted yesterday morning at Constitution Hall with 16 women in its personnel—more feminine players than in any other major United States symphony orchestra.

The National Symphony now has a personnel of 90, an addition of 10 over last season. Its present size and range of instruments compare with the largest and best known symphony orchestras in the country, it is said. The opening concert is scheduled for November 3.

Women have been on the roster of the orchestra players for several years in the harp and string sections. Last winter there were seven in the orchestra and the number was increased to nine for the summer season at the Watergate.

The National Symphony has now acquired several new distinctions. It is the only major symphony orchestra whose assistant concert-master is a woman, Marguerite Kuehne, and it is the only nationally known orchestra with a woman trombonist, Dorothy Ziegler. Hans Kindler is the director of the orchestra.

Woman Found Slain on Street

left hand, and also wore a two-strand cultured pearl necklace. Her clothes bore no laundry mark and no pocketbook was found.

Casual Clothes, according to police, are manufactured in Chicago by a wholesale tailor. The name is a trade designation and police believe it is handled by a local concern, which they were trying to locate.

Investigators pointed out a few significant facts that police are investigating. One of these was that the manhole in which Mrs. Lucas said she saw the man peering, was in deep shadow and that would indicate familiarity with the scene on the part of the man. It also was noted that at the well-lighted intersection there was a storm sewer which could have been seen easily by a passing motorist, even one unfamiliar with the area.

Mrs. Lucas said the only description she could give of the man was that he was wearing a dark overcoat.

However, later in the night the police broadcast a lookout for a white man, 35 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighing about 170 pounds.

They also sought a dark car, of District registration, with license number unknown, suspected of having blood stains on the inside and possible bullet holes.

The body was taken to the District Morgue for examination by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. No autopsy was performed because it was obvious what caused the woman's death.

A police photographer made numerous pictures of the victim for possible future identification. Her fingerprints were taken to be checked in the local and F. B. I. fingerprint bureaus.

D. C. Budget Consolidation Held Unwise

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren of the General Accounting Office has told Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee that "proposed rearrangement and consolidation of the District budget for the fiscal year 1945 . . . are not believed to be in the best interests of the District."

In a letter to the director of the Bureau of the Budget, of which a copy was sent to Randolph, Warren said: "If the rearrangement (now under consideration by the Commissioners) were enacted into law, numerous appropriations would be consolidated and the control now exercised by the Congress would, to some extent, be lost."

Usually Desirable

Warren's letter went on: "Simplification of Government procedures is always desirable, provided the interests of the public and the control of the Congress are not sacrificed as a result.

"Close examination discloses that the functions of several of the offices, created as separate and distinct organizations for the purpose of independently safeguarding the interests of the public and the District, would be placed under the direction of one official (presumably an executive officer) who in turn would be accountable to the Commissioners.

Hampering Possible

"While it is presumed that said executive officer would be impartially interested in the proper performance of each of the offices under his direction, and that he would likewise be concerned as to the creditable performance of each organization, there would remain the possibility that officials in charge of the respective offices concerned may be hampered in the free exercise of their functions at the discretion of the official who exercises control over the funds appropriation.

"Under the provisions of the proposed budget there is no guaranty that the allotments would be made fairly and equitably, in accordance with the intent of Congress as in the past, or in keeping with the budget estimates and justifications. There is little doubt but that as a result the accounting and auditing problems of both the District and the GAO would be multiplied and that established safeguards would be removed."

Homeless Dogs Called Rabies Crisis Factor

Dogs abandoned by their owners who are finding it hard to get meat for them are aggravating the rabies crisis in Washington, it was learned yesterday, as two more persons were bitten in the metropolitan area.

Dr. James G. Cumming, chief of the preventable disease unit of the department, said citizens who do not care enough for their pets to feed them properly should hava enough concern for others to take them to the pound nad have them destroyed.

Since beginning of the epidemic in last June, 68 animals, including several cats, have been declared rabid in Health Department laboratories and 84 persons have been bitten by rabid animals, according to Dr. Meloin P. Isaminger, public relations officer of the Health Department.

Five Cases in 10 Years

During the entire preceding decade, he said, only five cases of rabid animals were reported in the District, and these involved pets brought from outside this area.

Doctor Cumming said the communicable disease is being spread by "lots of dogs running at large." The disease can be spread from animal to animal only by bites, according to Doctor Isaminger, although humans are known to have received the virus from an afflicted pet's saliva entering an open cut.

Max Jankner, 41, of 3348 Baker st. nw. was bitten on the right knee in front of 3415 Clay st. ne., by a dog whose owner lives nearby, according to police. The dog was ordered confined pending investigation.

Johnny Fieser, 2½-year-old son of James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the Red Cross, and Mrs. Fieser, of 5009 Edgemoor Lane, Bethesda, Md., was treated at Georgetown Hospital last night for a dog bite on the forehead, said to have been inflicted by his pet bulldog at his home. Police said no disposition had yet been made of the dog.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland, meanwhile recommended that persons voluntarily keep their dogs on leashes. Muzzling has been ordered under the District law, but no further restrictions are allowable without further legislation, according to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Commissioners yesterday took no action, but reported they are still studying possibility of asking legislation to enforce recommendations of health officers of the District and surrounding areas to quarantine dogs.

The Health Department yesterday took four dog heads into its laboratories from the pound for chemical tests, and reports on these will be ready tomorrow morning. Three heads were found to be infected on Saturday.

No Hardship Seen

Dog lovers pointed out that the proper diet for a dog should not be a hardship on any family.

Poundmaster Frank B. Marks said they will eat "almost anything." "They like meat, of course," he said.

A suitable diet can be made up of point-free horse meat, well cooked and ground, he declared. Mix the meat with vegetables—carrots, greens, beans, etc., but "gravy and bread is enough for a good meal for a dog." he added.

He reported also that 30 dogs came into the pound's possession yesterday. Some were picked up by the pound's two trucks, but the majority were turned over by owners, he said. None of them received yesterday appeared rabid, Marks reported.

Lecture on 'Rabies'

Maj. Howard L. Kester, USA, Northwood Park, Md., and stationed at Walter Reed Hospital will address the Parent-Teacher Association of the Four Corners' schools on "Rabies" tonight at 8 p. m. The meeting will be held in the primary building.

600 Put on 48-Hr. Week At Gallinger

More than 600 employes of Gallinger Hospital and the Upshur Street Hospital for tuberculosis convalescents have been put on a 48-hour week with the approval of District Budget Officer Walter Fowler, it was announced yesterday.

Employes affected include the nursing staff, 206; attendants, 114; orderlies and maids, 54; and also 60 orderlies and maids on temporary appointments.

Also dietary, 104; nurses home staff, 12; X-ray, 4; laboratory, 12; laundry, 25; telephone operators, 13; and elevator operators, 15.

Dr. Edgar Bocock, superintendent, said it is not considered necessary to change the work week of employes in other departments.

All employes making $1440 or more will receive increases in pay under present civil service regulations. Those receiving $2900 or over will receive a flat rate of pay for the extra time, and those receiving between $1440 and $2900 will receive a proportionate increase. Employes working for less than $1440 are already receiving a flat wartime annual increase of $300.

The longer work week will add $12,000 a year to salaries of employes affected, but will not require further appropriations. There are 176 vacancies in the hospital for which salaries are not being expended because persons cannot be found to fill them.

War Fund Luncheon

FOUNDLING A SPEAKER—Representatives of various organizations that are aided by the Community War Fund appeared on the program yesterday at a war fund luncheon. Photo shows 5-year-old Harold, a foundling, of the Washington Home for Foundlings, telling how the war fund helps him. Also speaking were Eagle Scout Robert Moy, 15, of Troop 11, and Pvt. Ann Farrafamo of the WACS who spoke on behalf of the USO

Capital must throw into the campaign by Friday—will appease the hunger and provide shelter for the gallant Chinese who are fighting Axis terrorism.

The two million dollars— scarcely two dollars from every resident of Metropolitan Washington—will allow little Harold and his sister and brother to remain at the foundling home and keep his father in the war effort where he is needed.

Will Reaffirm Pledge

The two million dollars will make up the $4,800,000 goal of the Community War Fund and reaffirm the pledge to America we made by sending the Third War Loan Drive zooming over the top.

The second progress report from fund workers read at the box luncheon yesterday was disheartening.

It said that the fund total increased only 6.6 per cent over the weekend; it showed only $218,427 in gifts and pledges were received; it showed a total of $2,816,476 of the goal, 58.6 per cent, had been collected.

The Advanced Gifts Division remained in the lead of the major divisions. Seventy-three per cent or $408,443 of its $550,000 quota has been reached.

Other Division Reports

Other divisions reported pledges in brotherhood to the home, service and United Nations fronts as follows:

Business and Finance, $758,764, 57 per cent of a $1,350,000 goal; Government, $1,574,621, 65 per cent of a $2,400,000 quota; Metropolitan, $58,323, 19 per cent of a $300,000 objective.

The latter group began solicitations last Wednesday and E. K. Morris, chairman, said contributions so far had maintained the high average of $18 per pledge.

County divisions reported as follows: Arlington, $6611, 15 per cent of $48,500 goal; Montgomery County, $6735, 7 per cent of $87,374 and Prince Georges, $2976, 9 per cent of a $32,626 goal.

Fairfax County did not report.

The luncheon meeting yesterday revealed that several groups in Washington have oversubscribed their goals. Included were White House employes with 115 per cent; United Nations' section, $800 over the top, and The Friendship section team of the Metropolitan division with 152 per cent.

WPB Workers Stage Rally

In the meantime, workers of the WPB staged a rally at the Social Security Auditorium yesterday at which it was reported WPB has reached 65 per cent of its $140,000 goal.

A check for $250 was tendered the War Fund yesterday by Oscar Chapman, assistant secretary of the Interior. He said the amount represented surplus funds received by the United Nations' Forum, a non-profit group, from a series of lectures.

Coleman Jennings, chairman of the War Fund Drive had indicated the drive will end Friday with the exception of scattered solicitations of individuals not reached during the main drive.

Report luncheons will be held tomorrow and Friday.

Victory Sidelights

Restaurateur to Seek 'Loan' Of Points to Stay in Business

Mrs. Lillian J. Richards, operator of The Stables, a restaurant located at 2622 E st. nw., who has been suspended from operating her restaurant until she is able to make up a shortage in meat coupons, said last night she intended conferring with John L. Laskey, chief attorney for the local OPA, to determine if she could not obtain a "loan" of sufficient points to permit her to continue in business.

Mrs. Richards said it would take her four months to amass sufficient points to make up the shortage. She said she hoped to work out a plan for continuing in business and at the same time make the shortage good.

Laskey said he did not know how this could be done but the policy of the OPA was to aid a business to continue operating as long as it could be done legally.

Dancing Lessons Tonight

The old-fashioned square dance is in for a renewal of youth. Free lessons will be given tonight from 8:30 to 11 p. m. for war workers, both men and women, as well as servicemen and women at the Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, 10th st. and Massachusetts ave. ne.

Those in the service or on war jobs who live in the section are invited to join the classes which will be held each Tuesday night. Miss Ester Conklin, new director of USO program at Ingram and three other northeast Protestant churches, announces Ralph Case will call the figures of the dance and three of the Colorado Boys, radio musicians, will play.

City News in Brief

Sidney Winereb, owner of the Lenox Pawnbrokers Exchange, 1925 14th st. nw., reported to police yesterday that thieves had broken into the shop early yesterday and taken 14 watches, 8 diamond rings and various articles of clothing. He placed the total value at $369.

A wrist watch and $250 in currency were reported taken from a room in the Ambassador Hotel early yesterday. The report was made to police by Ezra Frizzell of Union, N. J., who was staying there.

Cabaret Dance Tomorrow

The Colorado Society, which discontinued social functions a year ago owing to war conditions, will resume them tomorrow with a cabaret dance at the Statler Hotel from 9 to 12 p. m. Among the guests of honor will be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Wiley Rutledge, formerly of Colorado, Senators Edwin C. Johnson and Eugene D. Millikin and the Colorado House delegation. Colorado singers will be among the entertainers. All Colorado servicemen in the Washington area have been invited.

Society to Omit Meal

Members of the D. C. Society of the American Revolution will dispense with supper at their October meeting to be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel. Food rationing and shortage of labor caused the deviation from the usual custom of serving a supper. Robert D. Brinker, historian, will present his paper, "Scottish Friends and Associates of George Washington" and Capt. Harry M. Dengler will speak on "Treasury Enforcement Agencies."

Hobby Show Tonight

A hobby show by civilian defense messengers will be held today at 8 p. m. at the gymnasium of Roosevelt High School. Mrs. J. S. Y. Ivins is in charge.

Accused Man Freed

Justice David A. Pine directed a not-guilty verdict yesterday in the case against Rufus O'Neal, 42, Negro, of 1624 Church st. nw., charged with second-degree murder. Attorney Robert I. Miller, in cross-examination of Government witnesses, showed that the slaying of Robert Rouse, 39, of 712 Rhode Island ave. nw., was in self-defense.

House Votes 4 D. C. Bills In Fast Time

The House yesterday gave speedy passage to four District bills, one of which already has been approved by the Senate.

The measure, which awaits only the President's signature, strengthens the present concealed-weapons law and provides that "no person within the District carry either openly or concealed on or about his person, except in his dwelling house or place of business or on other land possessed by him, a pistol, without a licesne therefor issued, or any deadly or dangerous weapon capable of being so concealed."

Introduced at the request of the Attorney General, the bill would tighten a loophole in existing legislation, whereby a criminal can escape punishment by exhibiting a weapon to police, thus removing it from the "concealed" category.

Other bills would:

Make operators of streetcars and bicycles subject to traffic laws on an equal basis with motorists, as applied to driving while under the influence of liquor or in hit-and-run cases.

Amend the District law on tax-deed sales of property for the non-payment of taxes, to permit owners a five-year period to redeem the property and clear the title.

Permit the use of District-owned property to develop parking lot facilities.

During the brief discussion of District measures, Majority Leader McCormack made a protest against "misunderstandings between residents of the District and members of Congress," which he said had been fostered by "one or two newspapers."

"I feel that efforts should be made to build up confidence and trust between District residents and Congress," McCormack declared, adding that members of the House have given "prompt consideration" to District legislation, and that local measures have not been deferred until District Day if more immediate action was needed.

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee agreed with McCormack and said that "on both sides of the aisle, there has been complete cooperation with the committee."

Worlds Apart, Soldier Sends Wife Flowers

Mrs. Daisy C. Hicks yesterday received a gardenia corsage and a box of red roses on her second wedding anniversary.

The flowers came from her husband, Lieut. James L. Hicks, "a soldier somewhere in the Southwest Pacific Islands."

Several days ago, The Post received the following letter:

"Dear Miss Crawford: I am a soldier somewhere in the Southwest Pacific islands and I am having other troubles besides a few Japs.

"You see the 25th of October is my wedding anniversary (the second one) and regulations will not permit me to cable flowers to my wife and the Red Cross came through with the suggestion that I contact some person in D. C. and have them order them for me.

"The only thing to be found on this island concerning Washington, D. C., was Page 6B of the June 29 issue of The Washington Post, and there I found you handle all other business services not listed on this particular page. Well, there are a couple of funeral design ads on the page, but in my mind they don't tie in so well with a guy's anniversary, so I am forced to call on you for 'services not listed.'

"Enclosed you will find a money order for $10 with which I should like you to purchase my wife a nice bunch of flowers and have them delivered to her, not before, not after, but on October 25, 1943. Personally, I like her in gardenias, but I am not specifying any particular flower, for being a woman you know more about what they are wearing and all that kind of stuff.

"Now, Miss Crawford, I realize that this might be a bit out of your line, but please don't let me down with that famous 'too little—too late' stuff for which your city is so noted. Please leave that to the boys on the Hill and get them there on time. I came a long way just to get to the place where I could have a money order filled.

"Remember! No fair alibiing. She'd forgive me I know, but I'd never forget it.

"Yours in the service, James L. Hicks, 2d Lt., QMC."

Everybody's Happy

Order carried out, lieutenant, The Post is pleased to report, and you made your wife extremely happy, we want you to know.

Lieutenant Hicks, who worked in the Tariff Commission between 1934-39 and took graduate work at Howard University, enlisted in the Army in November, 1940. He has been overseas since March, 1942, and after he was graduated from OCS in Australia, Hicks was commissioned in March of this year.

Mrs. Hicks, a native Washingtonian, lives at 1317 Q st. nw., and works in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Curtains to Army

Know why a lot of curtain nets are turning up missing in the stores? Because Uncle Sam had to have such tremendous orders of mosquito netting and the manufacturers of curtain nets are best equipped to turn this out. Fifty million yards of mosquito netting was one goal for the Government's needs, and there'll be more needed.

"I know with pride
The friendship of Americans, that clear kind,
Motiveless hospitality; the warm,
Always surprising, always beguiling charm
Of being made to feel at home.
I find
And have found all the time that I've returned
This heartening friendliness."
Noel Coward, in the British edition of Stars and Stripes.

(News Item—Native tribes in the war zones have one general conception of Americans—that they are generous.)

"All over Italy I heard the same thing. People would ask my nationality and when I said 'American' they would say: 'You are blessed by God' Everywhere I heard that phrase." Ann Corio in an interview.

I

Heaven help us, who live in a glass house at which all the world is looking,
To be our best rather than our worst through all the difficult days ahead
Of dealing with our neighbors near and far
Yes and even with our enemies;
May we speak with the courage,
act with the daring and the vision
That made this Nation possible,
And that all the world associates with the intrepid youthful Americans;
Rather than with the timid and fumbling caution
Of a nation grown old and fat and fearful.

II

May our sincerity, our friendliness, our passion for fair play,
Our kindliness, our easy, democratic self-assurance,
Our vigor, our enthusiasm and our faith
Obscure from all the world our weaknesses—
The shrewdness of the Yankee trader, the braggadocio
Of the village show-off, the vulgar "push" of the big towner,
The self-satisfaction of the ignorant; the provinciality of the professional patriot,
The thin lipped stubbornness of the rock-ribbed farmer,
The smart aleck omniscience of young—and even old—America
All the small and stultifying traits that we possess,
All of the weaknesses to which we are particularly prone,
And which a groping confused world should not look on,
Lose faith in all its steerings, hope in all its aspirations.

III

Above all, may we be generous even as the world believes us,
Not only in our possessions but in our souls,
May the petulent, neurasthenic voices of those who fear
They will not have enough to eat tomorrow,
And the hysterical alarms of those who fear they'll "be outsmarted" be "made suckers"
By those whose ways are different be kept in minor key,
May be give what we have to give not fretfully nor arrogantly,
Not patronizingly like Lady Bountiful,
But gladly and humbly; may we especially give generously
Of trust, long patience, delicate understanding
As benefits a people "blessed by God," secure in that blessing.

Women's Club News

By Genevieve Reynolds

If the Russians believe the United States is merely an automaton of Great Britain, then the conversations now taking place at Moscow will fail. On the other hand, if the Russians are convinced that we have a definite policy of our own, success is possible. So declared J. Franklin Carter, jr., radio news analyst, author and former economic specialist of the State Department.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Guest speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club's luncheon meeting yesterday, Mr. Carter, better known to radio audiences as J. Franklin, traced our relations with Russia from the beginning through the present day. He pointed out that as a whole our relations always had been friendly, but that in the past we had had little understanding and few contacts with the Russian people—also, very few misunderstandings.

Declaring that we have more in common with Russia than probably any other country, Mr. Carter said that it would be far better to cultivate these things we have in common rather than emphasize the differences.

"Like us, Russia has many races," he explained. "Economically it is tremendously rich in raw materials. In fact, it is in the same position we were 50 years ago. Unlike us, however, it has never encouraged foreign immigration and capital.

"We have a right to insist that Russia develop her resources for the good of the world and to enter freely into world trade. However, it is only right that she be freed from the geographical bottleneck (no outlet to the seas). This could be done with trade arrangements."

If the peace is a political one, you can expect Russia to dominate the eastern part of Europe and Great Britain the western—which Mr. Carter predicts will lead to another war. He thinks it far better and safer to have a pan-Europe than a divided Europe; and there is far more hope for durable peace if Europe can be a self-supporting continent.

"Our task, as I see it," he said, "is for us to have an American policy which in the long run will be in the best interests of Russia and Europe itself."

Pointing out that the Russians already have organized and are supporting a Committee for Free Germany, he expressed the belief that they are dealing more realistically with facts than we or our allies. Then he added, "I would not be surprised if Russia doesn't have a Japanese free committee in the making to be ready to deal with them when the war ends."

Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, club president, presided.

Preceding the luncheon meeting, the club held another of its study group meetings on Russia. Mrs. Charles Harron is in charge of the club's series of programs on Russia.

Bits of This and That . . .

The Air Corps Woman's Club is sponsoring a meeting of all the wives of Air Corps officers on duty in and around Washington, 11 o'clock this morning in the caucus room of the Old House Office Building. Mrs. Henry H. Arnold, wife of the commanding general of the Army Air Forces, is in charge. Maj. Gen. D. N. W. Grant, chief flight surgeon of the Army Air Corps, tells about "Women at the Front." . . . Friday is the day set for the Florence Crittenton Home's annual rally. Time is 11 a. m., and the place, the home at 4759 Reservoir rd. nw. Devotional services will be conducted by Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, pastor of the Church of the Reformation. Short talks will be given by Dr. Robert Barrett, president of the National Florence Crittenton Mission, and Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, national executive secretary. Mrs. Bevan Sharplers will be soloist. For a nominal sum you can stay for luncheon following the program, provided you telephone EM. 4300 for reservations. Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, president of the board, will preside. Mrs. George Price, second vice president, is in charge of the program.

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Star Pork Sausage Patties Save Time, Points

If wartime activities leave you with less time, here's an idea that'll save minutes . . . and ration stamps, too! Try Star Pork Sausage with French Toast! It's a hearty, nutritious meat feast that you can whisk together in 20 minutes!

You'll need 1 pound of sausage to serve 4 or 5 persons. Cut the ingredients proportionately to fix a meal for fewer. When you buy the pork sausage, ask for Armour's Star Pure Pork Sausage. It's a delicious, rich meat . . . tastily seasoned. And, it's made fresh every day in sausage kitchens throughout the country.

Shape pork sausage into 5 or 6 patties and place in a cold frying pan. Turn heat low and fry slowly for 15 minutes, pouring off fat as it accumulates. (And here's a food saving trick: save the fat for your French toast.)

Meanwhile, mix 1 cup milk with 1 beaten egg, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. sugar. Dip half slices of day old bread in this mixture and fry until golden brown in the sausage fat. Serve the toast with tart jelly and sausage patties.

BUY ONLY WHAT YOU NEED

Army Requires Many Furnishings For Servicemen

By Martha Ellyn

Martha Ellyn

If you can forgo buying such household items as sheets, pillowslips, blankets and wool comforters you will be doing a patriotic thing. There is a tremendous need for all such domestic furnishings by the armed forces.

If you don't find the size and color of bath towel you have been accustomed to buying when you go into the stores, don't fret. Many of the looms which formerly wove bath towels and washcloths have been converted to making sandbags. Anyway, the armed forces need a large part of the towel production.

Of course, buy what you actually need, but don't indulge yourself in high piles for the linen closet just to make it look pretty. And if your regulation size bath towels wear thin in the middle, cut them in two and hem the cut side. These make fine hand towels for the kitchen.

Blanket factories, too, are busy producing for Army contracts, so there isn't the great supply of blankets we had in peacetimes. But you will find the ones made of mixtures of wool and rayon surprisingly warm.

Those luxurious satin-quilted, down-filled comforters are becoming very scarce. But there is a goodly supply of the quilted rayon taffeta ones which will keep you as snug as a bug. Tufted spreads are no longer plentiful, since their manufacture has been curtailed, but the woven type is plentiful at this particular writing.

Most women are doing knitting for the Red Cross or some other kind of needlework which contributes to the war effort. To keep the supplies intact it is fine to have a place to keep yarn, needles, hooks, threads and the like. A sewing cabinet is a great comfort to the person who does needlework. The ones shown in the furniture stores not only are equipped for keeping spools of thread intact but also make an attractive piece of furniture on which to place a lamp, a potted plant or some particular decorative piece which needs a resting place.

Most of the furniture factories are busy making airplane equipment, gunstocks and other war necessities, but the small pieces of wood needed to make the small cabinets are still available. And many stores had large inventories which have held out very well up to this time.

A combination of utility and decor is the mahogany sewing cabinet pictured here. With home sewing becoming increasingly necessary, this compact way for keeping equipment together not only saves time and nerves, but keeps the items from being strewn around the house and often lost

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

"Please," writes Mrs. E. A. M., "give me a list of essentials for a baby's layet. Also, may one omit the bassinet and put baby right into a crib?"

In view of many wartime shortages of infant clothes, one should buy fewer garments and launder oftener so baby can be kept fresh and clean.

Here is a list of barest necessities:

2 knitted, all-cotton bands for use until the navel dressing comes off.

2 dozen diapers (two dozen or more to be made at home).

3 knitted, or cotton-flannel nighties, the first bought ready-made, the second made at home.

4 cotton-flannel kimonas to be worn until baby is old enough for dresses, if a girl, or creepers if a boy, six weeks to two monhts probably.

Some warm squares of material, 36 by 36, knitted or crocheted of wool, or made of woolen material bound with ribbon or ready-made, when they can be bought, for use around the baby. Bootees are nice but are not essential during the cold weather.

The toilet basket will contain powder, baby oil, baby soap, soft wash cloths and towels, absorbent cotton and toothpicks (or a commercial, cotton-wrapped toothpick), boric acid crystals and safety pins.

The crib, which you can use immediately if you wish, should have a mattress-protector of wet-resistant material and a soft, quilted cotton protector, plus 6 or 7 sheets, two soft, light, all-wool blankets and probably a comforter.

Our leaflet, "Layets and Confinement Necessities," does not take shortages into account as they are too temporary. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man of Fine Background, With Highly Paid Job In Government Service, Obliges Wife to Work To Share Household Expenses; This Bothers Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When my professor-husband and I got married, about six years ago, friends and colleagues said both of us were to be congratulated. In my heart, I congratulated myself,—on having been fortunate enough to fall deeply in love with a man who had excellent training, an attractive personality and a good character; and who also loved me. Before we were married, Paul had lived in a one-room apartment. I lived in an apartment large enough to comfortably entertain six dinner guests. When we returned from our honeymoon, my apartment became our apartment, with little or no discussion. I rather expected Paul to take on the role of head of the household. He continued to act like a guest, instead.

At the end of our first month together, I got out the budget book and showed him how I had been keeping and paying accounts each month. I had lived on a current basis, saving something each month. He looked, but said little. When he drew his first salary check after marriage, he sent his bank a check to cover money he had borrowed for our honeymoon (the first I knew of that transaction); sent his father a check for $25 and repaid other personal debts created before marriage. I paid the household bills, thinking Paul wanted to clear up his old debts so that he could start "even with the world" the next month. But when the bills came in at the end of the second month, Paul boldly told me that for the time being, he could not contribute to our household expenses more than his living expenses had been before we were married. I was shocked.

I have never been a gold digger. I was not looking for a man with money. I believed that Paul, with his fine background, could be depended upon to do the right thing at all times. His parents,—both well trained professional people,—were respected by the people in the little city where they had lived and worked many years. He had had the best training that our universities have to offer,—in art, literature, music and other subjects; as well as in his own special field of social science. Harvard University had recognized his past achievements by giving him a fellowship when he was ready to begin work on his Ph. D. degree. All his actions in the two years I knew him before he proposed indicated that he was "all wool, and a yard wide."

A Pleasant Fellow, Gracious in Manner

Soon after Pearl Harbor, Paul came to Washington to accept a position with one of the Government agencies,—at a specialist's salary that more than doubles his old salary. He suggested that I get a job in Washington, too,—but advised me not to resign my old job until I had landed the new one. Just a week after reaching Washington, I secured a good job in my own field; and when we started looking for an apartment, Paul told me we would share the household expenses equally, which we have done. I have no difficulty paying my share of the household bills, doctor bills, etc. I contribute to the church, Red Cross, Community War Fund and other needy causes. Ten per cent of my income is invested in war bonds. But after these items are taken care of, I do not have enough money left to clothe myself decently. And Paul has given me less than $50 worth of clothing (or jewelry, or personal gifts) since we have been married; and he has made no financial provision for me in case of his death. He makes no contribution to war relief agencies or other causes; and he buys no war bonds. He remembers his mother with flowers on her birthday and at Easter; but a year hasn't passed, since we married, that he hasn't drawn checks on her account. She worships him, if a mother ever did worship her son. Paul has a sunny disposition. His fellow workers respect him. We seldom fuss; and never over money matters. We seem never to tire of each other's company. He compliments me as often as he did when we were first married.

Is there a satisfactory solution to what I believe is a serious problem in our household, namely,—My husband either not realizing his obligations to me; or not wanting to meet these obligations? If your answer is "No,"—how can I become more philosophical about the matter? It is beginning to make me feel a little bitter. I want our tie to become stronger as the years go by. MRS. P. B.

His Parasitism Can Be Curbed

DEAR MRS. P. B.: There is a potential practical corrective of the material aspect of your problem,—yes. It is a remedy to be boldly applied in blunt action, comparable to that employed by your husband in the first place, when he blandly maneuvered you into the wholly self supporting position you have occupied ever since. The remedy consists in simply refusing,—effective November 1,—to longer abide by his unseemly directive that you are to share household expenses equally: which is to say, pay your own freight (while improving his standard of living) in return for the implied privilege of being his wife.

The prescription follows: Sit down with your budget book and draft a blueprint of a proposed New Deal, financially, on the home front:—a blueprint which exactly embodies your (obviously dependable) ideas of what would be mutually fair; and wholly satisfactory to you. Then submit that budget plan to him; saying it is the one you intend to abide by in future,—and no fooling. Tell him the living-costs assigned to him will go unpaid,—unless he pays them. That blueprint should (in my opinion) specify that your husband is to meet in full the basic costs of household maintenance,—i. e., rent, light, heat, food, telephone and laundry services. This is his minimum obligation as a married man; and one which, on his salary, he has no pretext for disclaiming or evading. Therefore, you owe him no apology for demanding, as you must,—and sitting tight until he produces,—that legally obligatory contribution to a way-of-life he voluntarily initiated.

He Is Infantile, Needs Firm Handling

In view of his confirmed parasitic traits, it seriously behooves you to unblushingly conserve your earnings for your own use, as a form of personal security and as a source of personal esthetic satisfaction. Perhaps I should explain, your husband is an infantile personality,—his peculiar attitude toward money reflecting the spendthrift self indulgence and stingy greed of a lifelong spoiled child. And his infantilism constitutes the psychological,—as opposed to the material,—aspect of your difficult problem with him. And let me say here: The infantile personality at any age requires firm dispassionate handling if cooperation is to be secured. But to return to the budget: If, out of your earnings, you meet all your wardrobe and grooming expenses and your doctor bills, and supply your own "personal allowance" for day-to-day miscellany, you will be generously doing your partner's share financially, in the circumstances. The balance of your income is yours,—strictly yours,—to invest and disburse to worthy causes in the proportion that you see fit. M. H.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain

The Miss America of 1943 is considered typical of the American girl. If that is true, we certainly are fortunate. Our country must be full of young women who are unusually healthy, beautiful, poised, talented and tall.

Jean Bartel, the University of California student who walked away with the crown, is the tallest queen we have ever had. She is five feet, eight inches, without shoes. The next tallest, Frances Burke of Philadelphia, who reigned in 1940, stood five feet, nine and one-half inches, but that was in high heels. This year's runner-up is not exactly petite. She is Muriel Smith, a Floridian, and is five feet six, without shoes.

Do you know what happened to most of the tall girls who competed for the crown in the past? They were eliminated because they didn't know how to carry their height. One of the officials of the national pageant told me so. And that, tall girls, ought to make you want to spruce up your posture!

Talent and beauty are two other requirements and Jean has plenty of both. She is a singer—and she really can sing. As for beauty, the Tussy cosmetics people think so highly of her looks that they are sending her around the country on a bond-selling tour that should fill our war chest to the brim. You'll be seeing her. Unless her schedule has been changed, she is in Georgia about now.

Back of that voice and loveliness is the sparkle of radiant health. Jean likes the right foods (I won't run through the list again this week!) and has always gone in for exercise. She dislikes the term "bathing beauty" and told me that "the only time I get into a bathing suit is when I go swimming." I wanted to know how often that might be and learned it is "every chance I get, always several times a week."

She never diets and her weight is 130 pounds, with these measurements: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 23 inches; hips, 35 inches. Now, that's what I call streamlined!

Like any other tall girl who suddenly shoots up, Jean confided that "There was a time when I felt rather self-conscious, but as soon as I got out into the world I began to like being tall. I believe every tall girl should make the most of her height."

Thanks to lessons in ballet and modern dancing, she never went through what is known as the "awkward age." All of you tall girls can't take up dancing, but you can do exercise that put your muscles through the same movements. Contrary to her rule, Jean got into her bathing suit and illustrated a couple especially for you. One is backward arm circling with arms bent, fingers resting on shoulder tips. Keep your head up, chin level, back straight, and move the elbows in wide backward circles. The other is a waist trimmer. You stand erect, feet parallel and wide apart, knees straight, arms down at sides. Now, swing your trunk down and up at one side, flinging arms overhead; down and up to other side, arms overhead. That does it!

Sarah Babbitt of New York Is Bride of Lieut. J. D. Stamm

Bridegroom Served as Aide to Uncle, Joseph E. Davies, at Embassy in Moscow

Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, served as best man at the wedding of his nephew, Lieut. John Davies Stamm, USNR., and Miss Sara Barney Babbitt, daughter of Mrs. John Edward Babbitt of New York and Walpole, N. H., which took place yesterday in New York. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Stamm, of Milwaukee, Wis. He served as private secretary to Mr. Davies in Moscow and accompanied him on his "second mission to Moscow" as his Naval aide.

The ceremony was held in St. Bartholomew's Church with the Rt. Rev. Benjamin F. P. Ivins, Episcopal Bishop of Milwaukee, officiating, assisted by the Rev. George P. T. Sargent.

The bride was given in marriage by C. Donald Dallas of New York. She wore a white satin gown trimmed in rose point lace in bolero effect which had been worn by her grandmother. Her short, tulle veil was held by a high coronet of rose point lace which belongs to the bridegroom's mother. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Marion Barney of Chicago, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Colby Cleveland of New London, N. H., Mrs. Robert Leon Grosjean of Mount Kisco, N. Y., cousin of the bridegroom; Mrs. F. William Ludington, jr., all classmates of the bride at Vassar College. They wore gowns of coral velvet with ostrich feather headdresses to match and carried camellias in the same tone.

Ushers were Maj. Robert Leon Grosjean, Capt. Joseph D. Ryle, Lieut. Comdr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, Lieut. Clement B. Hoopes, Thomas W. Dewart, Albert E. Johnson, Lieut. (j. g.) Alfred Derby Mittendorf, jr., and Lieut. (j g.) F. William Ludington, jr., all USNR.

After the ceremony a small reception was given at the River Club. Lieutenant Stamm, who has been on active duty since August, 1941, has taken his bride to Mexico City by plane for a brief wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 35 Sutton pl. S., New York.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Judge Samuel S. Barney of the United States Court of Claims, Washington. She attended Milton Academy, Emma Willard School and Vassar College. She was formerly affiliated with the Museum of Modern Art and is now at the Durlacher Brothers Gallery.

Lieutenant Stamm was graduated from Lawrenceville School and New York University. Before being called to active duty in the Navy in August, 1941, he was on the staff of the Hartford Courant, Hartford, Conn., and the New York Herald Tribune. Lieut. Stamm is a member of the University Club and Athletic Club of New York and the Army-Navy Club of Washington. He is stationed at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Joseph E. Davis and Mrs. Millard Tydings and Mrs. Burdette Fitch of Washington, the two latter cousins of the bridegroom, were present at the wedding.

About Washington . . .

WHEN THE MINISTER of Iran and Mme. Shayesteh receive a number of Capitalites tomorrow afternoon, the fete will be in honor of the twenty-third birthday of their country's Imperial Majesty, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. He is the husband of the former Princess Fawzia (now Empress Fanzieh) who is a sister of King Farouk of Egypt.

Their wedding in Teheran, back in 1939, prompted a brilliant reception at the Iranian Legation here, with the then Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Hadjeb-Davallou as hosts. Incidentally, that particular party was a double celebration, marking both the nuptial rites and the anniversary of the coronation ceremony for the current ruler's father, Shah Mirza Riza Pahlavi.

"YOU OUGHT TO BE in pictures," somebody said to Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Patrick Hurley at a party given a few weeks ago. They had just gone down the receiving line at the Iraq Legation's reception for the visiting Arabian princes, and like many other celebrities had faced the kleig lights and movie cameras with a smile.

"Oh, please, please don't say that," begged attractive Mrs. Hurley. "You know Pat and I don't have that 'Hollywood look' at all!"

She was wrong, of course. They do—definitely. Along with half a dozen other distinguished couples in the Capital, they could give any glamour team in filmland a run for its money.

Mrs. Casey

Some of the others in the handsomest - couples - in - Washington class — the grade-A glamour class, if you please—are the retiring Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, War Manpower Commissioner and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Edward Stettinius, Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal, Representative and Mrs. A. S. Monroney, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett, and former Representative and Mrs. Joseph Casey.

Mention of Mrs. Casey reminds me of a bit of conversational by-play between her and Eric Johnston the other day.

"I turned on the radio while you were making a speech yesterday, Mr. Johnston," she said. "I didn't know who you were at first, but I must say, I thought you talked very much as if you were a presidential candidate."

"Evidently, you hadn't heard my views on that subject," he said. And then he told her about his recent published statement that he had no desire to have a job either end of Pennsylvania Avenue, would far rather be at either end of the Main Street in any other town in America.

"That statement proves it," said Mrs. Casey with a twinkle. "Obviously, you are a presidential candidate."

EVEN IN AN ERA when launchings are so frequent most of them get only slight mention in the press, the one scheduled for Sunday at the Kearney (N. J.) Shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., will make the headlines.

On hand to swing that traditional bottle of champagne across the proud prow of the transport Gen. William Mitchell will be Mrs. Thomas B. Byrd, widow of Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, and among those witnessing the ceremony will be a hand-picked group of notables, several of whom were close friends of the one-time chief of the Army Air Corps whose prophecies regarding the growing importance of aviation have long since come true.

Before her first marriage, Mrs. Byrd was Miss Elizabeth Trumbull Miller of Grosse Point, Mich., daughter of Sidney Miller, widely known Detroit attorney. She became the bride of General Mitchell in 1923 and was at his bedside when he died in a New York hospital in 1936. Her son, William, jr., and her daughter, Lucy, attended the wedding in New York in November, 1938, when she was married to Thomas Bolling Byrd of Winchester. Shortly afterward, they took a year's lease on Kentmere, the Clarke County estate of Kenneth Gilpin.

Mr. Byrd, the "Tom" of the noted "Tom, Dick and Harry" trio in the famous Byrd clan—the other two being Admiral Richard E. Byrd of South Pole fame, and Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia—is the son of Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, and is a noted Virginia lawyer. His wife recently sold her 150-acre Virginia estate, Boxwood, to Christopher G. Greer.

HERE AND THERE: Senora Sara de Mejia, wife of the late Minister of El Salvador to Washington, got several important additions to her autograph book during her recent trip to Washington. At one dinner in her honor, she asked, and received, signatures from Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Representative and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Senator Holman of Oregon, and several others. Senora de Mejia has been collecting autographs and mementos since 1884. One signature she prizes especially is that of the late President Taft . . . Eleanor Martin, the widely known artist, is completing a portrait of Countess Lasocka, of the Polish Embassy, and will soon begin her third portrait of Princess Hohenlohe. The latter's second portrait was sent to her stepfather, Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, in London.

POPULAR COL. Edmund Starling, who shone as the guest of honor at the 5-to-7 farewell party given Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore T. Hayes at the Mayflower, shared some of the spotlight with Admiral William H. Standley, former United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union. Recently returned from Moscow, Admiral Standley freely expressed his opinions about the outcome of the Stalin-Hull conference and seemed to think that the Secretary of State would be able to deal successfully with Stalin.

Admrl. Standley

What he said was off the record, but the gist of it was that no national leader invites an equally prominent man to his home, or his country, unless he is in the mood to negotiate in a manner that will be satisfactory both to him and his guest.

Purely Personal

Laurence Steinhardt, United States Ambassador to Turkey, has returned to Washington after spending a few days out of town and is staying at the Mayflower.

The Costa Rican Ambassador and Senora de Escalante will entertain at a reception at the embassy on November 10 for visiting newspapermen from Costa Rica, Senor Don Abelardo Bonilla, Senor Don Ruben Hernandez Poveda and Senor Don Joaquin Vargas Coto. They will represent Costa Rica in the large contingent of visiting Latin-American journalists to arrive here early in November.

Lieut. George Kent, USNR., and Mrs. Kent entertained at a late afternoon party yesterday in honor of Mme. Onno Liebert, of New York, who is visiting them for a few days.

Miss Patricia Madigan, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John Madigan, celebrated her twenty-first birthday at a buffet supper Saturday evening at her parent's home.

Joseph C. Grew, former United States Ambassador to Japan, and Mrs. Grew will leave today for a few days' stay in New York where they will stay at Mayfair House.

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

NOTICE OF SPECIAL COMMISSIONER IN Chancery, in the Circuit Court of Kanawha County, West Virginia. Edgar B. Sims, auditor of the State of West Virginia and ex officio Insurance Commissioner of the State of West Virginia, vs. Fidelity Assurance Association, a corporation. In Chancery No. 16724. By decree of said Court entered in said cause on the 26th day of July, 1943, it was adjudged, ordered and decreed as follows: "First: That the defendant, Fidelity Assurance Association was, at the time of the filing of the bill of complaint herein, and is, at the present time, insolvent. Second: That the affairs and business of the said defendant are not susceptible of reorganization or rehabilitation. Third: That it is necessary and proper that the affairs and business of said defendant be wound up and liquidated, its assets converted into cash and distributed among those entitled thereto. Fourth: That this cause be, and the same is hereby referred to John J. D. Preston, who is hereby appointed Special Commissioner in Chancery of this Court, to take, state and report an account showing: 1. All the property and assets of the defendant, Fidelity Assurance Association, whether real or personal, and of every kind and character, including claims liquidated or unliquidated, where located and the liens, trusts, encumbrances or other claims thereon. 2. The amount, character, and priorities of all indebtedness, direct or indirect, including guaranties of said Fidelity Assurance Association, together with the respective securities held or pledged therefor, including the outstanding securities issued by the defendant, Fidelity Assurance Association, and, respectively, the purchasers and owners thereof, the State of their residence at the date of purchase, and at the date of the institution of these proceedings, the amounts paid therefor, the cash surrender value thereof, and the priorities and/or liens of the same. 3. The amount of the issued and outstanding capital stock of said Fidelity Assurance Association, the several classes thereof, their preferences and priorities, and the names and addresses of the respective holders. 4. The amount, character, and description of all securities, properties, or assets of Fidelity Assurance Association, deposited with the Treasurer of the State of West Virginia pursuant to the provisions of the statutes of said State; the amount, character, and description of all securities, properties, or assets deposited with officials of other States or others, pursuant to the laws or requirements of said States; the extent to which the same may be or has been applied to the payment of claims of residents of said States or other persons entitled thereto; the extent of any surplus over the amount of said claims, or any deficiency therein entitling such persons to share in the assets deposited in West Virginia, and in such latter event, the extent to which said persons are entitled to share in said assets, and other assets not so deposited but within the jurisdiction of the Court. 5. Any assets of Fidelity Assurance Association which may exist in the form of probable causes of action against any officer, director or stockholder of the Association, or against any other person for any act, whether or not wrongful, the commission or omission of which may have subjected such person to liability to the Association. 6. Any other matters which may be required by any party in interest, the same being pertinent, or such other matters as said Commissioner himself may deem pertinent, whether so requested or not. "The status of the assets and liabilities of the defendant company, and other matters to be contained in said account, shall be ascertained by the Commissioner as of the date of the institution of this suit, and said account shall further show, where deemed pertinent, by the Commissioner, any changes in such status which may have accrued since said date including the amount of sales, collections, and payments made by the Special Receivers. But before proceeding to take said account, the said Commissioner shall publish once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper published in Kanawha County, a notice stating the time, place, and purpose of taking the account. And what said Commissioner shall do under this decree, he shall report to this Court." Given under my hand this 15th day of October, 1943. JOHN J. D. PRESTON, Special Commissioner in Chancery. Notice. To all creditors, contract holders, stockholders and lien creditors of Fidelity Assurance Association of Wheeling, West Virginia (formerly Fidelity Investment Association), to all persons having any claims, demands or rights against said association, to all parties in interest in the above-entitled cause, and to all other persons interested in the subject matters involved in said suit. Take notice: That, pursuant to the authority and in execution of the requirements of the foregoing order of the Circuit Court of Kanawha County, West Virginia, the undersigned Special Commissioner in Chancery, to whom the aforesaid cause has been referred in the manner and for the purposes as above set forth, will at 10 o'clock A. M., on the 22ND DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1943, at his office, 400 Union Building, Charleston, West Virginia, proceed to execute said decree of reference and take proof, receive evidence, hear arguments in respect of, and determine the correctness, amounts, liens and priorities of the claims, rights and demands of all persons in interest in respect of Fidelity Assurance Association, and all other matters and things pertinent and relevant to such proceedings and in said cause. Proceedings before said Special Commissioner will be continued and adjourned from time to time to such other times and places, and for such general or special purposes, as hereafter may be determined, fixed and announced by the said Special Commissioner until the taking of said account and the execution of said decree of reference shall have been completed. At the time and place aforesaid, and/or designated adjournments thereof, the parties and all claimants, creditors and interested persons are required to attend and produce such proper evidence as they may desire or be advised and as will enable the undersigned to comply with said decree. Given under my hand this 15th day of October, 1943. JOHN J. D. PRESTON, Special Commissioner in Chancery. The above parties and persons are further informed and advised: 1. Creditors and those having causes of action against the Fidelity Assurance Association must have proper proof thereof filed heretofore with the West Virginia Special Receivers of said Association, Messrs. H. Isaiah Smith and A. P. Hudson, Wheeling, West Virginia, or hereafter with the undersigned Special Commissioner in Chancery. 2. Proofs of claim heretofore properly executed and filed with said Special Receivers for Fidelity Assurance Association, appointed by the Circuit Court of Kanawha County, West Virginia, Messrs. H. Isaiah Smith and A. P. Hudson, whose address is Fidelity Building, Wheeling, West Virginia, are to be delivered by the said Receivers to, and will be received and accepted by, the undersigned Special Commissioner; hence it is not necessary for claimants who have so filed their proofs to file additional or further proofs with the undersigned Commissioner, unless individually notified to the contrary by him. 3. Claimants who have not heretofore filed proper proofs with said West Virginia State Court Special Receivers must file their proofs with the undersigned Commissioner at his office on or before the aforesaid hearing date November 22, 1943. 4. Claimants and interested persons who have not heretofore received, procured or filed proof of claim, may procure forms for their proofs upon request in writing (giving name, address and contract number if possible) addressed to Messrs. H. Isaiah Smith and A. P. Hudson, Special Receivers, Fidelity Assurance Association, Wheeling, W. Va. 5. Contract holders of Fidelity Assurance Association who were residents on April 11, 1941, of the States of Alabama, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia or Wisconsin, wherein deposits of securities were made with State authorities by Fidelity Assurance Association, under statutory requirements for the benefit of such contract holders, should communicate with the proper official in their respective States. Information as to such officials may be obtained from the above-named West Virginia receivers. 6. Contract holders of Fidelity Assurance Association who on April 11, 1941, were residents of any State other than those listed above in (5), and who have not received a form for or filed a proof of claim, may receive a proper form therefor and all necessary information upon request from said West Virginia receivers. 7. All (a) contract holders of the said Association whose claims conflict with the books and records of the Association, (b) creditors whose claims are not admitted by said Special Receivers as being lawful or correct, and (c) persons with causes of action against the Association, may be given special or separate hearings on definite dates and at designated places by the undersigned Commissioner upon proper request granted, or after notice by the said Commissioner. 8. Special hearings upon any general questions of law necessary for the determination of rights, priorities or other matters referred to him by said Court, and affecting all claims generally or specific groups or classes of claims, persons or rights, but not applicable solely to any individual claim, person or right, and the taking of any evidence necessary thereto, will be had by the undersigned Commissioner at such times and places and in such manner as he may hereafter determine, fix and announce. Given under my hand this 15th day of October, 1943. JOHN J. D. PRESTON, Special Commissioner in Chancery. 26,2,9

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Exams Are Tough on Teacher — By Milton Caniff

HIYA, ORETT! COME OVER TO WATCH TERRY TRY HIS NEW WINGS?
OH — IS THAT TERRY IN THE P-40?
AS IF YOU DIDN'T KNOW!... THEY DO SAY YOU'RE SORTA INTERESTED IN OUR NEW BUZZ-BOY!
SURE... I LIKE TO SEE A NEW PILOT MAKE GOOD! BUT YOU MUST BE NERVOUS ABOUT HIS FIRST P-40 FLIGHT!
NAW — HE'LL TAKE THAT AIRSCREW UP THERE AND GET IT DOWN — AND ANOTHER STUDENT WILL BE OVER THE BUMPS! I'M NOT WORRYING ME...
I SUPPOSE YOUR KNEECAPS ARE WHITE BECAUSE OF THE SUB-ZERO TEMPERATURE!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

DO YOU MEAN... YOU WANT TO ADOPT ME, MR. BRYCE?
NOT NECESSARILY, PATTI! JUST THE SIGHT OF YOU... ACROSS THE TABLE... LOOKING SO LIKE MY DAUGHTER... WOULD DO MUCH TO EASE THE PAIN...
BUT... HAVE YOU THOUGHT, SIR? HAVING LOVED THE 'REAL PAMELA', THE COUNTERFEIT MIGHT BE A DISAPPOINTMENT!
I RECOGNIZE CHARACTER WHEN I SEE IT!... PLEASE, CHILD!... SAY YOU'LL GIVE ME BACK MY DAUGHTER... FOR THE FEW YEARS I HAVE LEFT!
BUT... I DON'T WANT TO LEAVE MRS. WORTH!
A GREAT, ALL-WISE PLANNER WORKS THESE THINGS OUT, PATTI! YOU SEE, I'VE KNOWN EVER SINCE I GOT THIS LETTER THAT I'D HAVE TO LEAVE YOU!

MICKEY FINN — Luck or Brains — By Lank Leonard

WELL, MALONEY— DID YOU GET A BET DOWN WITH PHIL, TODAY?
I'LL SAY I DID— AND TODAY I COLLECT! HE DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT HORSES!
WHAT ONE DID YOU BET ON?
THIS ONE! "HOT SHOT" IN THE THIRD! ALL THE EXPERTS PICKED HIM!
SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW MORE THAN THE EXPERTS, EH, PHIL?
I WOULDN'T SAY THAT, DEVANNY — BUT I HAVE MY OWN METHOD OF HANDICAPPIN' — AND "HOT SHOT" WON'T WIN TODAY!
ALSO RAN— MAKESHIFT, BAD NEWS, SLOWPOKE, BLOCK-BUSTER AND— HOT SHOT!
I'LL HAVE THE FIVE, MALONEY!

MR. AND MRS. — A Man Never Knows — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

BEFORE JOE'S
CAN'T THINK OF A THING. STOCKED UP WITH EVERYTHING
BIRTHDAY
ISN'T THERE ANYTHING YOU NEED? SOCKS OR SHIRTS?
NOPE. GOT PLENTY OF BOTH. THANKS
AFTER JOE'S
HAVEN'T I GOT ANY SOCKS? WHAT'S HAPPENED TO 'EM?
WHY, JOE GREEN!
SHY ON SHIRTS TOO
BIRTHDAY
WHEN I SUGGESTED SOCKS OR SHIRTS FOR YOUR BIRTHDAY, YOU SWORE YOU HAD PLENTY!
CAN'T HAVE TOO MANY SOCKS OR SHIRTS

DIXIE DUGAN — Is It Possible? — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

DOCTOR! QUICK! SOMETHING'S HAPPENED TO ARTHUR!
WHEN DID HE COLLAPSE??
COLLAPSE?? HE — HE'S WALKING!
LOOK!
GOOD NIGHT!! WHAT'D YOU DO TO HIM??
I—I ONLY SAID I'D MARRY HIM
ONLY??? HEY, DOC! — I CAN WALK!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Determined Search — By Frank Martinek

MEANWHILE
LIEUTENANT, LED MEBEE WE CALL P'LICE?
NO, CHEN, I GOT DON INTO THIS AND I'M GOING TO GET HIM OUT!!
CHEN, YOU HAVE THE INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN BY GIMP?
ALLEE SAMEE HAVE ALL INFLOMATION!
CONFLUCIOUS SAY.....
NEVER MIND WHAT HE SAYS... LET'S TURN ON THE RADIO!
DISAPPEARING INTO THIN AIR DON WINSLOW, NAVAL INTELLIGENCE ACE, HAS CREATED A NATIONWIDE SEARCH... FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED....

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

I DON'T GET YOUR ANGLE, CHIEF! IF CRYING IS PROOF THAT A WOMAN'S CRAZY, THERE AREN'T MANY SANE ONES, BLESS THEIR HEARTS!
BUT IN-JUN WOMAN NEVER CRY, STEVE!
WAHOO'S RIGHT, STEVE! ALL THE TIME WE THOUGHT YOU BOYS WERE DONE FOR, HER EYES WERE AS DRY AS DEATH VALLEY!
PLEASE DON'T MAKE SUCH A FUSS OVER ME!---I'M JUST---HAPPY!---THAT'S ALL!
OH, STEVE! DON'T LEAVE ME--DON'T EVER LEAVE ME AGAIN!

DONALD DUCK — Air-Raid Siren! — By Walt Disney

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

NO, KING! YOU MUST NOT FOLLOW DIABLO... HE HAS OUR LITTLE PRINCESS!
DIABLO WON'T KILL WHITE FAWN! SHE'S HIS SHIELD AGAINST YOUR ARROWS!
BUT HE WILL MURDER KID AND PENNY!

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

I JUST CAME OVER TO SHOW YOU MY NEW SHOES THAT USED TO BE MY POP'S!
YOUR FATHER IS VERY GENEROUS TO GIVE YOU HIS SHOES THESE DAYS, EVEN VERY OLD SHOES!
HE DIDN'T EXACTLY GIVE 'EM TO ME.
HE TRADED 'EM TO ME FOR MY NUMBER 18 COUPON!
GOSH! ISN'T SAMPSON'S POP SWELL TO HIM?
JUST WONDERFUL!!!

JOE PALOOKA — Gotta Stay! — By Ham Fisher

YES--YES, WE SHALL HAVE TO CLEAR SOME BEDS.
HOW'M I, COMIN', DOC?
YOUR WOUND IS COMING ALONG IN GOOD SHAPE. YOU'RE ALMOST HEALED.
YOU'LL HAVE TO GIVE UP YOUR BED, WE HAVE MORE WOUNDED COMING IN.
OH NO, DOC---I GOTTA STAY HERE--- OH DOC---I CAN'T DO THIS---HOW ABOUT MY DIZZY SPELLS?
SORRY BUT WE NEED THE BED.
LOOK DOCTOR---I GOTTA STAY HERE--- MEBBE I COULD HELP AROUND THE JOINT--- I NEED HELP---

JANE ARDEN — Flora "Accepts" — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

ALL READY FOR LUNCH, FLORA IS WAITING FOR SIUN TO APPEAR-OOPS!
OH EXCUSE ME, MR. STUN- I WAS JUST STARTING FOR LUNCH- I HAVE TO HURRY, YOU KNOW--THE CAFETERIA IS SO CROWDED-TUT-TUT-THAT'S A SHAME— I'D ASK YOU TO HAVE LUNCH WITH ME, BUT—
ER-WELL— YOU SEE, IF WE'RE SEEN TOGETHER SO OFTEN, IT MIGHT CAUSE TALK—
YOU'RE SUCH A DEAR— ALWAYS TRYING TO PROTECT ME— I'D LOVE TO HAVE LUNCH WITH YOU!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

B-BUT, LOIS— USUALLY WHEN I RESCUE YOU, YOU THANK ME!
NOT THIS TIME! I'D RATHER HAVE DIED THAN BE RESCUED BY A TRAITOR!
MEANWHILE, MR. AND MRS. EVAN DOLT TAKE ADVANTAGE OF SUPERMAN'S PREOCCUPATION...
WHILE THUPERMAN AND MITH LANE ARE THCREAMING AT EACH OTHER, WE HAD BETHT ETHCAPE!
STOP TALKING AND HURRY!
AND YOU'RE A TRAITOR!--BECAUSE YOU DROPPED THAT FIFTY BILLION DOLLARS IN PERFECT COUNTERFEIT CURRENCY OVER THE CITIES OF AMERICA TO DESTROY THE ECONOMIC SYSTEM!
YES, I DROPPED THE MONEY--BUT THERE'S AN ANGLE TO THAT WHICH I BELIEVE YOU AND THE DOUTS WILL BE INTERESTED TO HEAR!
SPEAKING OF THE DOUTS--WHERE ARE THEY!!?
THEY'VE ESCAPED!

Chapple Discusses Creative Analysis for Performer

Stanley Chapple addresses the Washington Music Teachers' Association on Monday night in the Arts Club. Subject: Creative Analysis for the Performer.

Those laymen who thought that Stanley Chapple was the most interesting of the guest conductors at the Watergate concerts of the National Symphony Orchestra last summer would have discovered one reason for that opinion, if they could have heard his informal remarks last evening before members and guests of the Washington Music Teachers Association in the Arts Club. His formal subject was "Creative Analysis for the Performer," and his comments illuminated the vague terrain that lies between the performer and the listener, the No Man's Land where the two meet either in bewilderment or in mutual understanding.

BROWN

It may seem odd to say that the performer must understand the listener as well as the other way around, but Mr. Chapple made it clear that the performer, whether he be a conductor, an ensemble player, a chorister or a solo artist, must be aware of the responses which the listener makes to music and must know, if he is to be efficient as an interpreter, the musical factors that stimulate those responses. It is not enough that he know his notes and the way they are put together, for he must know as well why certain arrangements of sounds produce the effect that they do upon the imagination and the emotions.

A stenographic report of Mr. Chapple's witty and informative talk would be of value only to musicians, but the layman can appreciate his description of the three phases through which the temperament of the musician, be he a composer or a performer, passes. The first phase is the spontaneous ardor which makes a talented amateur more interesting to hear than a pedantic professional; the second phase is the subordination of the individuality to the vanishing point and the reliance upon intellectual knowledge of music, and in the third phase all the intellectual work has become subconscious, so that the spontaneity of the first phase returns with the added impetus of knowledge.

A column would be required to record an abstract of Mr. Chapple's lecture which was both wise and humorous. One of his most memorable statements was that the place of the musical theme in relation to harmony and structure has completely changed between the nineteenth and the twentieth centuries. The themes of Bach, Haydn and Beethoven, he said, were relatively unimportant compared to what was done with them; even the leit-motifs of Wagner are but bricks in the architectural design. Using Richard Strauss and Schoenberg as examples, he showed that the theme has usurped the dominant place, with the result in the former of a dazzling virtuosity and in the latter of a crabbed cross-theme puzzle.
